Why Tie Our Hands?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

MR. FORD'S weekly says: "He (the Jew) controls the revolutionary elements of the world, on one hand, and the ultra conservative elements on the others; so he has equal power in communistic Russia and in capitalistic England."

THAT will be news to Trotzky, the only conspicuous Jew in the Russian government, from whom his powers have recently been taken one by one.

Mr. Ford also prints: "The international Jew is in direct control of all financial centers of government, including the United States federal reserve system."

Secretary Mellon and Mr. Strong, of the reserve bank, will learn something there.

The four richest men in the world are Rockefeller, Ford himself, Mr. Mellon and George F. Baker—according to those that should know. The Rothschilds compared with them are only a child's bank. The Jews have evidently shown great moderation, controlling finance, but letting "goyim" have the real money.

ONE great financial house which Henry Ford sincerely considers a Jewish institution, using Christians for a false face, actually will not give employment to any jew.

MR. LOREE, of the Delaware & Hudson, has acquired a big interest in the Lehigh Valley railroad, with an eye to future mergers. There ought to be one railroad merger, including all roads, bought at a fair price and owned by Uncle Sam. But that won't happen until Uncle Sam has more influence than the railroads.

BUT mergers that would stop waste, send freights the shortest, most economical way, cut down overhead, etc., should be encouraged, especially by farmers.

Let the roads earn enough to satisfy the owners; then, perhaps, you will get lower rates.

Senators discuss the suggestion that this country stop experiments with poison gas, binding itself irrevocably against its use in war.

CANNOT the United States be trusted with poison gases? Are we going to send asphyxiating expeditions against our neighbors? Isn't it the height of folly to say that we must be ignorant of this mode of warfare?

SHOULD we not know all about it, keep ahead of all others, in case others should start war against us and make gas a part of it?

An angry ship officer told an old Chinese sailor who bothered him, "Go tie yourself to the mast." The poor sailor obeyed orders and nearly froze. Uncle Sam shouldn't tie himself up but keep free, in every direction prepared to meet any deviltry that may come.

Fine Candies May Be Made at Home

How many girls know only three or four kinds of candy recipes! Yet there are 144 varieties that can be readily made in any home kitchen, without special appliances. Recipes for this number of candies are contained in a brand new booklet offered through the Washington Information Bureau of the Review-Tribune.

Here is just the thing you have been wanting for the Christmas candy season. The recipes are tried and tested and cover a wide range of tasty confections, some with just a few simple ingredients, others a little more elaborate. The Candy Recipes booklet is available for six cents postage and handling charge.

McDERMOTT'S DEFENSE SHOWS MELLETT CASE WITNESS' DOUBLE LIFE

UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION HE NAMES HIS SECRET SWEETHEART

Questioned by Prosecution, He Testifies That McDermott Had Told Him That "He Was Going Out and Telephone a Guy and Give Him His Last Warning."

By PAUL E. BROKAW.

COURTHOUSE, CANTON, O., Dec. 14.—A broken romance of a deserted wife and baby and an illegitimate love-nest was bared by Steve Kascholk, the state's star witness in its case against Patrick E. McDermott, on trial in connection with the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton editor, during his cross-examinaion here today.

Kascholk, without the slightest apparent reserve, admitted his secret life with Mary Chernisky, a pretty Nanty-Glo, Pa., girl, and acknowledged that she was the mother of two of his children.

Their names, he said were Mary, aged 1, and 3-year-old Steve.

Before that point in the testimony had been reached, however, Kascholk, under direct examination, declared that McDermott had told him, while they were in a hotel here previous to the murder, that "he was going out and telephone a guy and give him his last warning."

This point had never before been brought out in any of the informer's statements and had not been touched upon by the defense in cross-examination when court recessed at noon.

Indicted Several Times.

Kascholk admitted that he had been indicted several times as a result of his matrimonial affairs and that he had spent five months in a Pennsylvania jail before going to Cleveland on June 30.

"You were indicted as a result of this affair with Mary, and again for deserting and non-support of your wife and baby?" he was asked by Everett L. Mills, conducting the cross-examination.

"Yes sir," answered the unmoved witness.

"You pleaded guilty?"

"Yes sir."

"Have you ever since tried to support your wife and legitimate child?"

"Well, I sent the child $15 as soon as I got out of that Pennsylvania jail," he answered.

"But, how about your wife?"

"I said that I tried to support the child," Kascholk retorted.

Received Money From Prosecuter.

"And have you sent them any money since you were in jail here?" Mills thundered.

"Yes—the children," the witness stated.

"How much?"

"About $180," was the answer.

"Where did you get it?" Mills followed.

"From Mr. McClintock?" Kascholk answered.

"From Mr. McClintock?" shouted the defense attorney.

"Yes sir."

"Oh, from Mr. McClintock," commented Mills as the crowd in the courtroom stirred."

Ruling for State.

Kascholk was not permitted to continue the sorbid story he began yesterday afternoon until lawyers for the state and defense had wrangled for two hours over the admissability of his testimony. The arguments, begun late yesterday, were continued for two hours today when court resumed.

ROTARY HEARS DR. BLEININGER

Scientific Discoveries Discussed at Noon Luncheon.

Recent scientific discoveries were discussed by Dr. Albert V. Bleininger, head of the research department of the Homer Laughlin China company, at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Rotary club at the Y. M. C. A. today.

Plans for the anniversary party, which will be celebrated with a dinner-dance at the Country club, Tuesday evening, December 28, were announced by President Malcolm Thompson. Miss Margaret Stahl, interpreter of plays, will present Channing Pollock's play, "The Enemy." The committee in charge includes W. E. Wells, C. V. Beatty and R. L. M. Chambers.

Crippled children who are under the care of the Rotary club, will be guests at next Tuesday's luncheon. A committee, headed by F. L. Wells, met following the luncheon to arrange for the party which is one of the biggest events of the year for Rotarians.

Ambassador Sheffield Ill.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 14.—James R. Sheffield, American ambassador to Mexico, is confined to his bed today with a heavy cold. All his engagements are cancelled.

SALVATION ARMY, ELKS AND AMERICAN LEGION WILL ENGAGE IN CHRISTMAS RELIEF WORK HERE

At least three East Liverpool organizations will engage in Christmas relief work.

In keeping with a custom which has been followed for many years, the Salvation Army will provide Christmas dinners for the poor. Arrangements have been made to distribute not less than 200 baskets.

East Liverpool lodge, No. 258, B. P. O. Elks, will play Santa Claus to about 750 children on Christmas morning. The committee in charge will investigate all applications. Only children who are absolutely deserving will receive gifts.

At last night's meeting of East Liverpool Post No. 4, American Legion, plans were completed for a candy treat for inmates of the McCullough-Jefferson County Children's home at Yellow Creek on Christmas morning. A committee of the ex-service men will go to the home to distribute boxes of candy. Candy gifts also will be provided for the orphans of ex-service men in the East Liverpool district.

The Salvation Army is soliciting through street kettles and by canvassing the potteries funds to meet the expenses involved in the Christmas dinner and winter relief movement.

The organization distributed 355 baskets last Christmas, but this number will be reduced this year as the result of a clearing house, which is to be established here and which, it is claimed, will prevent duplication of relief activities. Baskets to needy families in East Liverpool, Chester, Newell, Smiths Ferry and the vicinity will be distributed from the Salvation Army barracks, East Third street, on Christmas eve. A distributing place is also to be designated in Wellsville.

Church societies, Sunday schools and fraternal organizations will engage in relief work.

Surprise For Trotzky.
Let Them Combine.
Why Tie Our Hands?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

MR. FORD'S weekly says: "He (the Jew) controls the revolutionary elements of the world, on one hand, and the ultra conservative elements on the others; so he has equal power in communistic Russia and in capitalistic England."

THAT will be news to Trotzky, the only conspicuous Jew in the Russian government, from whom his powers have recently been taken one by one.

Mr. Ford also prints: "The international Jew is in direct control of all financial centers of government, including the United States federal reserve system."

Secretary Mellon and Mr. Strong, of the reserve bank, will learn something there.

The four richest men in the world are Rockefeller, Ford himself, Mr. Mellon and George F. Baker—according to those that should know. The Rothschilds compared with them are only a child's bank. The Jews have evidently shown great moderation, controlling finance, but letting "goyim" have the real money.

ONE great financial house which Henry Ford sincerely considers a Jewish institution, using Christians for a false face, actually will not give employment to any jew.

MR. LOREE, of the Delaware & Hudson, has acquired a big interest in the Lehigh Valley railroad, with an eye to future mergers. There ought to be one railroad merger, including all roads, bought at a fair price and owned by Uncle Sam. But that won't happen until Uncle Sam has more influence than the railroads.

BUT mergers that would stop waste, send freights the shortest, most economical way, cut down overhead, etc., should be encouraged, especially by farmers.

Let the roads earn enough to satisfy the owners; then, perhaps, you will get lower rates.

Senators discuss the suggestion that this country stop experiments with poison gas, binding itself irrevocably against its use in war.

CANNOT the United States be trusted with poison gases? Are we going to send asphyxiating expeditions against our neighbors? Isn't it the height of folly to say that we must be ignorant of this mode of warfare?

SHOULD we not know all about it, keep ahead of all others, in case others should start war against us and make gas a part of it?

An angry ship officer told an old Chinese sailor who bothered him, "Go tie yourself to the mast." The poor sailor obeyed orders and nearly froze. Uncle Sam shouldn't tie himself up but keep free, in every direction prepared to meet any deviltry that may come.

LAWYER CALLS OFF FIGHT TO ESCAPE TERM OF FIVE YEARS

East Liverpool Man Will Surrender Bond Tomorrow.

Carried Wheeling, W. Va., Indictments to Supreme Court.

A. E. Bowdler, former East Liverpool attorney, and his business associate, Gordon Ulyatt, officers in the defunct Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage company, of Wheeling, who were convicted of violating the West Virginia speculative securities act in the Ohio county intermediate court nearly a year ago, will surrender their bonds tomorrow to begin sentences of five years in the Moundsville penitentiary, according to a dispatch today from Wheeling.

Convicted Last December.

Fines of $5,000 each were also assessed against the two men.

The West Virginia supreme court of appeals recently refused them a new trial. Bowdler and Ulyatt had planned to carry the case to the United States supreme court, the state supreme court granting a 60-day stay of execution. However, after a conference with counsel, the defendants decided to accept the ruling of the state tribunal.

Bowdler, who at one time was a candidate for the Republican nomination for city solicitor here, resided in Akron for several years where he engaged in the building and loan business. About six years ago he moved to Wheeling where he and Ulyatt organized the Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage company. Hundreds of in-

Blizzard Rides On Frigid Winds From Northwest

Zero Temperatures Reported in Many States, With North and South Dakota and Minnesota Hardest Hit.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Untold suffering was caused today by the severe cold wave that holds Chicago and the middle west in its icy grip. The paralyzing blizzard rode in on frigid winds from the northwest that sent the mercury down from five degrees at 7 o'clock yesterday morning to three below zero at dawn today.

Zero temperatures are general over the northern middle sections of the United States and Canada. North and South Dakota and Minnesota are the hardest hit. A blizzard of major proportions blowing in from Alaska swept over those states and extended into the adjoining states of Montana, Kansas, Nebraska, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Althought 15 deaths have been attributed to the cold wave, only two are known to have been caused directly by exposure. The others were the result of accidents of various kinds, principally automobile smashups incidental to the blizzard.

Below Zero in Montana Town.

The lowest temperature was reported from Wilder, Mont., where the mercury touched 31 degrees below zero. Devil's Lake, N. D., reported 25 below. The sub-zero line extended south to the Minnesota-Iowa boundary.

Heavy blankets of snow cover the affected area. The furious gales drifted the snow into railroad cuts and highways and tied up traffic in many sections. Air mail pilots were forced to abandon many scheduled

McDERMOTT'S DEFENSE SHOWS MELLETT CASE WITNESS' DOUBLE LIFE

UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION HE NAMES HIS SECRET SWEETHEART

Questioned by Prosecution, He Testifies That McDermott Had Told Him That "He Was Going Out and Telephone a Guy and Give Him His Last Warning."

By PAUL E. BROKAW.

COURTHOUSE, CANTON, O., Dec. 14.—A broken romance of a deserted wife and baby and an illegitimate love-nest was bared by Steve Kascholk, the state's star witness in its case against Patrick E. McDermott, on trial in connection with the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton editor, during his cross-examinaion here today.

Kascholk, without the slightest apparent reserve, admitted his secret life with Mary Chernisky, a pretty Nanty-Glo, Pa., girl, and acknowledged that she was the mother of two of his children.

Their names, he said were Mary, aged 1, and 3-year-old Steve.

Before that point in the testimony had been reached, however, Kascholk, under direct examination, declared that McDermott had told him, while they were in a hotel here previous to the murder, that "he was going out and telephone a guy and give him his last warning."

This point had never before been brought out in any of the informer's statements and had not been touched upon by the defense in cross-examination when court recessed at noon.

Indicted Several Times.

Kascholk admitted that he had been indicted several times as a result of his matrimonial affairs and that he had spent five months in a Pennsylvania jail before going to Cleveland on June 30.

"You were indicted as a result of this affair with Mary, and again for deserting and non-support of your wife and baby?" he was asked by Everett L. Mills, conducting the cross-examination.

"Yes sir," answered the unmoved witness.

"You pleaded guilty?"

"Yes sir."

"Have you ever since tried to support your wife and legitimate child?"

"Well, I sent the child $15 as soon as I got out of that Pennsylvania jail," he answered.

"But, how about your wife?"

"I said that I tried to support the child," Kascholk retorted.

Received Money From Prosecutor.

"And have you sent them any money since you were in jail here?" Mills thundered.

"Yes—the children," the witness stated.

"How much?"

"About $180," was the answer.

"Where did you get it?" Mills followed.

"From Mr. McClintock?" Kascholk answered.

"From Mr. McClintock?" shouted the defense attorney.

"Yes sir."

"Oh, from Mr. McClintock," commented Mills as the crowd in the courtroom stirred."

Ruling for State.

Kascholk was not permitted to continue the sorbid story he began yesterday afternoon until lawyers for the state and defense had wrangled for two hours over the admissability of his testimony. The arguments, begun late yesterday, were continued for two hours today when court resumed.

NEW GOVERNOR OF TEXAS HAS MAN-SIZED JOB

Dan Moody to Take Office Early in January.

IS YOUNG MAN

Saved State $420,000 in One Contracting Job is Claim.

BY T. J. O'CONNELL.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 14.—After an experimentation in state government by the election of a woman, in the person of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, the state of Texas is awaiting the result of an other departure from established custom in the election of one of the youngest executives ever to head a great state.

Governor-elect Dan Moody, who will take office early in January, is a brilliant young attorney still in his early thirties.

It was he who, as Attorney General during the regime of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, started the series of investigations of state departments and affairs under Texas' first woman governor. From the outset he fought a stubborn battle against the Fergusons but his efforts were rewarded when the recent called session of the legislature appointed an inquisitorial body to probe the conduct of several state departments, particularly the highway department where it was charged crruption was extant.

Attacked Ferguson.

Moody centered his attacks on the alleged "government by proxy" of ex-Governor James E. Ferguson, husband of the noted woman governor, who himself was impeached several years ago.

As a result of this impeachment a desire of her husband's vindication prompted Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson to enter the political arena as a candidate for governor two years ago. During her gubneratorial campaign she evcriated the Ku Klux Klan and its political activities in Texas.

Mrs. Ferguson won a notable victory at the polls and during the past year has seen the Klan ousted from the control it once held on the state government, as well as that of the counties and municipalities.

She did not fare so well in other matters, however, for her opponents have charged time and again that the "real" governor was not Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson but her husband, James E. Ferguson, whom they alleged was the "power behind the throne," dictating appointments and in general doing pretty much as he used to when he was an occupant of the state executive chair in his own right, they said.

Assailed for Pardons.

Practically the whole of the Ferguson administration has been marked by the most intense and uncompromising attacks at every possible opening. Her opponents have assailed what they term her "abuse of the pardon powers" of the governor. They have criticized her appointments to the various commissions. They have delivered broadside against the contracts awarded by the state highway commission, charging that James E. Ferguson had considerable to say about who was to get contracts for road building and improvements.

Dan Moody, as Attorney General, decided to investigate the highway department and, as a result, several suits were instituted against contractors for excess profits. The state was successful in winning several, notably the suit against the Hoffman Construction company, whom the state sued for, approximately $420,000, which recently was decided in favor of the state.

All this welter of charges and counter charges was aired during the recent gubernatorial campaign, which Moody won after a run-off primary with Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

A railway 100 miles long is to be constructed in Madagascar at a cost of more than $20,000,000, and part of it may be electrified.

NEW GOVERNOR OF TEXAS HAS MAN-SIZED JOB

IS YOUNG MAN

BY T. J. O'CONNELL.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 14.—After an experimentation in state government by the election of a woman, in the person of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, the state of Texas is awaiting the result of an other departure from established custom in the election of one of the youngest executives ever to head a great state.

Governor-elect Dan Moody, who will take office early in January, is a brilliant young attorney still in his early thirties.

It was he who, as Attorney General during the regime of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, started the series of investigations of state departments and affairs under Texas' first woman governor. From the outset he fought a stubborn battle against the Fergusons but his efforts were rewarded when the recent called session of the legislature appointed an inquisitorial body to probe the conduct of several state departments, particularly the highway department where it was charged crruption was extant.

Attacked Ferguson.

Moody centered his attacks on the alleged "government by proxy" of ex-Governor James E. Ferguson, husband of the noted woman governor, who himself was impeached several years ago.

As a result of this impeachment a desire of her husband's vindication prompted Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson to enter the political arena as a candidate for governor two years ago. During her gubneratorial campaign she evcriated the Ku Klux Klan and its political activities in Texas.

Mrs. Ferguson won a notable victory at the polls and during the past year has seen the Klan ousted from the control it once held on the state government, as well as that of the counties and municipalities.

She did not fare so well in other matters, however, for her opponents have charged time and again that the "real" governor was not Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson but her husband, James E. Ferguson, whom they alleged was the "power behind the throne," dictating appointments and in general doing pretty much as he used to when he was an occupant of the state executive chair in his own right, they said.

Assailed for Pardons.

Practically the whole of the Ferguson administration has been marked by the most intense and uncompromising attacks at every possible opening. Her opponents have assailed what they term her "abuse of the pardon powers" of the governor. They have criticized her appointments to the various commissions. They have delivered broadside against the contracts awarded by the state highway commission, charging that James E. Ferguson had considerable to say about who was to get contracts for road building and improvements.

Dan Moody, as Attorney General, decided to investigate the highway department and, as a result, several suits were instituted against contractors for excess profits. The state was successful in winning several, notably the suit against the Hoffman Construction company, whom the state sued for, approximately $420,000, which recently was decided in favor of the state.

All this welter of charges and counter charges was aired during the recent gubernatorial campaign, which Moody won after a run-off primary with Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

A railway 100 miles long is to be constructed in Madagascar at a cost of more than $20,000,000, and part of it may be electrified.

A martyr to rheumatism for almost a lifetime, a man from Wyocena, Wis., writes that he can always get relief with a simple home treatment.

"As a man of seventy, for years a sufferer from rheumatism, I want to give my recommendation for Sloan's Liniment," he says. "It is a fine remedy and will do all that is claimed for it."

LABOR CONDITIONS GOOD LAST MONTH

Employment conditions during November were exceptionally good, C. M. O'Neil, examiner in charge of the federal state labor bureau, says in his report for the month to Commissioner of Labor Howard S. Jarrett. All classes of labor were well employed, the report says, the demand, in a great many instances, being greater than the supply.

Continuing his report, Mr. O'Neil says that the demand was greater than the supply, especially in the coal industry, where there is yet a shortage of experienced coal miners.

Since his report was prepared, however, Mr. O'Neil has unofficially announced that there has been a falling off of 50 per cent in the demand for miners, occurring since the first of December.

Mr. O'Neil's report regarding other kinds of employment, follows, in part:

"Out side construction work held up good during the month and as a result there was very little unemployment in common or unskilled labor. At the present time the supply of this class of labor is slightly in excess of the demand. There is also a surplus of carpenters in and around Charleston. A great many carpenters have secured employment in the coal fields as car builders and repair men.

STATE SCHOOL FIGURES HIGH

The total enrollment at the West Virginia schools, including both elementary and high schools for white and colored pupils was 382,830 at the close of the last fiscal year June 30, 1926, figures just compiled by the state department educational show. The figures are to go into the department's biennial report.

Totals in the elementary schools are: white: boys 166,759; girls 158,625; total white attendance 325,384; colored pupils, boys 9,799; girls 10,158; total colored 19,957. Total elementary attendance 345,341.

High school attendance: white pupils: boys 985; girls 1,339; total colored 2,324; total high school attendance 36,114.

In the case of white pupils the enrollment shows that the number of boys attending elementary schools is far ahead of the girls, while in high schools the enrollment of girls is greater.

In the same table the daily average attendance at schools in the state is 307,250.

SCHOOL CLOSING DATE IS FIXED

A. D. Osborne, superintendent of the Grant district schools, announced today that the schools would close for the annual Christmas vacation on Thursday, December 23. Sessions will be resumed on Monday, January 3.

Owing to the fact that many of the pupils are rehearsing for Christmas entertainments in the various churches no programs will be given the closing day in the Newell schools.

Aid Society to Meet.

Members of the Ladies Aid society of the First Methodist Episcopal church will meet this evening with Mrs. John Talbott at her home in Grant street. The regular program will be carried out.

Mid Week Services.

Mid week prayer meetings will be held tomorrow night in the Newell churches. Devotionals will be in charge of the respective pastors.

HARRY LAUDER COMING TO CITY

Noted Scotch Comedian at Ceramic Dec. 22.

Sir Harry Lauder, the famous singing comedian full of pep and bubbling over with that inimitable something that make imitations of his work so futile, has returned to the United States after an absence of three years, during which he made a complete tour of the world, and will appear at the Ceramic theatre, Wednesday, Dec. 22. The noted Scot will confine his tour of the United States and Canada to a period of twenty-five weeks, which means that only a few favored cities will have an opportunity to hear and see him this season. He comes back with a program of new songs and impersonations, and with the record of having made the most successful world tour ever accomplished by an entertainer. Lauder is indeed an international celebrity.

The songs that he will sing here, include of course, some of the most popular of the old favorites—songs will will never die and which are always in demand during a Lauder engagement. There will, however, be many new ones, the most promising of which have these interesting titles: "I'm Lookin' fer a Bonnie Lass tae Love Me," "The Boss o' th' Hoose," "When I Meet Mackay" and "Susie Maclean." These new offerings are said to be typically Lauderesque, with all the merry swing and liting melody, that make the Lauder songs so distinctive.

Lauder's art has developed and rounded out since he first came to this country. Age has increased, rather than diminished, his cleverness in characterizing a song and "putting it over." Those who go to hear the famous Sir Harry are always sure of a good laugh, with an occasional touch of homely pathos to steady the comedy.

All of Lauder's songs are built around distinctive characters, and each one has its appropriate costume and scenic background. Sir Harry's associate entertainers are also presented in most attractive stage settings.

LABOR CONDITIONS GOOD LAST MONTH

Employment conditions during November were exceptionally good, C. M. O'Neil, examiner in charge of the federal state labor bureau, says in his report for the month to Commissioner of Labor Howard S. Jarrett. All classes of labor were well employed, the report says, the demand, in a great many instances, being greater than the supply.

Continuing his report, Mr. O'Neil says that the demand was greater than the supply, especially in the coal industry, where there is yet a shortage of experienced coal miners.

Since his report was prepared, however, Mr. O'Neil has unofficially announced that there has been a falling off of 50 per cent in the demand for miners, occurring since the first of December.

Mr. O'Neil's report regarding other kinds of employment, follows, in part:

"Out side construction work held up good during the month and as a result there was very little unemployment in common or unskilled labor. At the present time the supply of this class of labor is slightly in excess of the demand. There is also a surplus of carpenters in and around Charleston. A great many carpenters have secured employment in the coal fields as car builders and repair men.

STATE SCHOOL FIGURES HIGH

The total enrollment at the West Virginia schools, including both elementary and high schools for white and colored pupils was 382,830 at the close of the last fiscal year June 30, 1926, figures just compiled by the state department educational show. The figures are to go into the department's biennial report.

Totals in the elementary schools are: white: boys 166,759; girls 158,625; total white attendance 325,384; colored pupils, boys 9,799; girls 10,158; total colored 19,957. Total elementary attendance 345,341.

High school attendance: white pupils: boys 985; girls 1,339; total colored 2,324; total high school attendance 36,114.

In the case of white pupils the enrollment shows that the number of boys attending elementary schools is far ahead of the girls, while in high schools the enrollment of girls is greater.

In the same table the daily average attendance at schools in the state is 307,250.

HARRY LAUDER COMING TO CITY

Noted Scotch Comedian at Ceramic Dec. 22.

Sir Harry Lauder, the famous singing comedian full of pep and bubbling over with that inimitable something that make imitations of his work so futile, has returned to the United States after an absence of three years, during which he made a complete tour of the world, and will appear at the Ceramic theatre, Wednesday, Dec. 22. The noted Scot will confine his tour of the United States and Canada to a period of twenty-five weeks, which means that only a few favored cities will have an opportunity to hear and see him this season. He comes back with a program of new songs and impersonations, and with the record of having made the most successful world tour ever accomplished by an entertainer. Lauder is indeed an international celebrity.

The songs that he will sing here, include of course, some of the most popular of the old favorites—songs will will never die and which are always in demand during a Lauder engagement. There will, however, be many new ones, the most promising of which have these interesting titles: "I'm Lookin' fer a Bonnie Lass tae Love Me," "The Boss o' th' Hoose," "When I Meet Mackay" and "Susie Maclean." These new offerings are said to be typically Lauderesque, with all the merry swing and liting melody that make the Lauder songs so distinctive.

Lauder's art has developed and rounded out since he first came to this country. Age has increased, rather than diminished, his cleverness in characterizing a song and "putting it over." Those who go to hear the famous Sir Harry are always sure of a good laugh, with an occasional touch of homely pathos to steady the comedy.

All of Lauder's songs are built around distinctive characters, and each one has its appropriate costume and scenic background. Sir Harry's associate entertainers are also presented in most attractive stage settings.

A Billion Christmas Car

Something like a billion greeting cards are expected to change hands in the next two or three weeks. Every kind of card will be in the mail, from the simplest little printed affair at two or three cents to hand-painted or individually designed cards and etchings and copies of famous paintings, selling as high as $50.

Once in a while some one is moved to ask what it's all about. Certainly it helps to make the postmen's life harder one month every year. It is also an unpleasant but inescapable fact that a good many recipients of these cards glance at the names of the senders, feel pleased a moment and then throw the cards into the nearest wastebasket.

However, the greeting card industry has become a big one and the popular demand for its product shows no weakening. If it really adds to true Christmas joy and good will, then it is probably worth the $16,000,000 at which it is now estimated.

A Mechanical Heart

Russian doctors have found that life may be continued long after the heart and lungs have stopped working, if the blood is kept circulating by artificial means. One of them has devised a machine which "mechanically takes over the functions of the heart." It is an electrical pump that can be connected with the circulatory system. By means of that pump, a dog which had been "put to death with chloroform" was restored to life.

It looks like an improvement on the pulmotor, which merely takes over the function of the lungs until it revives the vital spark and enables them to reassume their normal activity. Many lives may be saved by the new device, in cases of accident or sudden shock, and life may be prolonged in cases of serious heart disease.

No such mechanical contrivance, however, will be a real improvement on the heart. We are not going to have mechanical men or mechanical organs.

Wheels may have certain points of superiority over feet, and the centrifugal pump may seem more efficient than the human heart as a pumping machine. Still, industry has no machine which, day in and day out, year after year, does its work so well as this same delicate and sensitive heart.

With all the imperfections of this elaborate factory of life, the human body, where is the man-made factory that functions so well or lasts so long?

The Roumanian Crisis

Queen Marie's tour of America created greater curiosity about her own country than Americans had ever felt before. Her return home, with the conflicting reports regarding the health of King Ferdinand and the complicated political situation there, has intensified the interest.

Here is what looks like "the low down" on the Roumanian situation, as told by Hamilton Fish Armstrong in "The New Balkans." The quotation, though a mere fragment, is highly illuminating:

"King Ferdinand is seldom mentioned in dispatches from Bucharest except when he is ill. He has never been a directing factor in Roumanian politics, and he would not be today even if he were in good health. Unlike many in his entourage, he is not interested in politics, either theoretical or applied, and is ignorant of his country's needs and wishes.

"An impotent broken sovereign; a scintillating consort with an infinite fund of energy, ambition and determination, marred by bad judgment; a young gentleman (the crown prince) with no particular qualification for leadership, unnecessarily elevated to martyrdom through exile and disbarment from a throne which neither inclination nor temperament adapt him to fill very acceptably; a deserted wife and healthy five-year-old son, about whose head are already gathering the rivalries and strife that seem the inevitable lot of minor rulers—these are the leading personal factors which the politicians of Roumania are trying to manipulate today."

Smake and Pneumonia

City smoke does more than run up laundry bills, aggravate the housecleaning job and make it necessary for people to wash face and hands ofterner than is good for them. Smoke is a powerful source of diseases, especially of one of the most deadly diseases—pneumonia.

Using Pittsburgh as an experimental laboratory, Dr. William C. White of the U. S. Public Health Service finds that city has "the highest constant pneumonia death rate of any community in the world," and that the more smoky the air in any particular ward, the higher is the pneumonia death rate in that ward.

Pneumonia, of course, is a germ disease, and smoke can hardly be accused of carrying the germs. But what the smoke does is to produce such irritation of the membranes of the nose, throat and lungs that the germs, which are present almost everywhere, find easier lodgment and less resistance to growth.

This is perhaps the worst accusation yet brought against city smoke. And it is in order to point out again, in Pittsburgh and every other community suffering from smoky air, that that condition is not necessary. It means imperfect combustion and fuel waste, whose avoidance by well known methods means economy as well as health.

Twin needs of the modern city: Parking space for motor cars and subterranean burrows for pedestrians.

My Favorite Stories

By IRVIN S. COBB

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED.

It was the first night of a revival meeting among the negroes on a Mississippi plantation. The church was a crude affair of logs, lighted by a single lamp which was set upon the pulpit.

Following an earnest sermon on repentance and an impassioned plea for all those present who felt convicted of sin to come forward for confession and surrender, the old preacher said:

"Now, I wants Br'er Johnson to take dis lamp an' stand up yere insides de altar an' hold it up high so all kin see, an' sing dat beatuiful hymn:

"'W'ile de lamp holds out ter burn,
De vilest sinner may return.'

"I'm gwine to look an' see w'ich one of you niggers is gwine to be de fust to come up yere an' confess yore sins an' start on de new life. Sing on, Br'r Johnson, an' hold dat lamp high!"

As the first notes of the song burst forth from Brother Johnson's lips, a man arose from the extreme back part of the church and started forward. As he drew nearer, the peacher recognized him as a man who bore the reputation of being the worst reprobate in the whole country—known far and wide as one utterly devoid of virtue or morality of any kind—guilty of every vice and sin.

As the full consciousness of the enormity of the penitent's sins and his utter abandonment came to the preacher even his faith gave way.

"Br'er Johnson," he shouted, "stop singin' an' blow out de lamp!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Some of the toniest men sartorially in New York are those whose finger prints grace the Bertillon room at headquarters. The skilled crook has learned clothes add greatly to his security. So does his address.

Few tenants of high class apartment buildings realize how thoroughly their pasts are fine combed before they are permitted to sign a lease. There is a private detective bureau specializing in this sort of work.

A crook in a respectable apartment house is like speck in an apple. In the end it will decay the whole and vast property depreciation results. Two years ago a newspaper discovered that one of those super buildings housed a crook. Tenants broke their leases hurriedly and it is still jinxed.

In the roundup of an international gang of blackmailers the leader was found dining with a beautiful lady in a restaurant. He was a shining symbol of a man of fashion. His capsuled needle pointed mustache would have made Menjou and Lew Cody pout.

He clapped a silk hat on his head at a spruce angle before riding in his limousine to the station. Even the calloused detectives were a little dubious about their catch. He was too grand. Yet he had been a guest at four different state prsisons.

Big cities are gullible for such superb tosh. Contact being casual it is natural for people to judge largely by what is known as "a front." Any number of successful crooks also maintain luxurious offices as a mere gesture but this aids in deception.

The crook has learned the boobery of sitting around in cellars wearing sweaters when he might as well slip into a dinner jacket and join the swells. His chances of detection are slighter and he is also able to have a spry ear cocked for information that will be of cash value.

A little Broadway fad shop is selling small hot water bottles to be placed in women's muffs on cold days. A spy tells me some are used also to carry hot and potent drinks.

The most distinctive handwriting I have seen in New York is that of Herb Roth, the caricaturist. Every letter is in bold print but he has mastered it so well he can write faster than the average person.

This ad in a theatrical weekly: "Refined, white haired lady, widow of an educator, desires to act as stage mother to some young and pretty girl who needs such maternal protection."

One wonders what the refined lady's reaction at 3 a. m. to a chorine's pleading: "Now mother just one more highball, a Charleston and a look in at Tex Guinan's and we'll toddle home."

And doubtless on the way home mother will have to detour for just one sandwich at Reuben's. Or go on her way alone.

One of the aging voluptuaries who had parafine shot into his chin with a result that might be described as lumpy—a sort of alligator skin effect—has camouflaged the disaster with a luxuriant French beard. Not a lump is to be seen through the new foliage.

It is always interesting to watch those monocle wearers who are inexpert at the art. They hold the monocle as long as they can and when they feel it slipping they have an expression of one just about to bust out crying. The experienced monoclist—my own word and don't write me it is not in the dictionary—is found only in Europe. He sleeps with a monocle, takes a bath wearing it and doubtless is able to skip the gutter without jouncing it out, the silly old egg.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Bequest Week the Latest.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 14. — And now we have Bequest Week! We have had Don't Get Hurt Week, Prevent Fire Week, Clean Up, Paint Up Week, and various others. But Bequest Week is something new. This is to be a week devoted to an effort to induce people to make bequests to various religious and philanthropic organizations. The plan is being fostered by the Committee on Financial and Fiduciary Matters of the Federal Council of Churches.

It has been explained that frequently people wish to make some provision for a particular organization in which they are interested, but do not know just how to go about it so that there can be no doubt of the money's reaching the intended parties. Attention is called to the fact that it is not uncommon to pick up a daily newspaper and see that a will is being contested and very often the church or philanthropic organization to which a bequest has been made never gets the money.

The idea now is to establish a central office where persons interested in making such bequests may consult an expert regarding the proper method of procedure. This central office will not only aid in the correct manner of making a bequest, but will give advice regarding various organizations to which such a bequest might be acceptable. It is believed that this is a much more satisfactory method of giving money than merely to decide upon some institution in a hit or miss fashion.

An example of the latter is given in the case of a wealthy manufacturer who decided to establish a home for orphans. It is said that he invested several million dollars in this. Those who have made a study of such philanthropic work are of the opinion that it would have been much better had he consulted with experts before launching upon such an undertaking.

On the other hand an interesting story is told of a man in one of the large eastern cities. It appears that this man lived alone with his wife. There were no children and no direct heirs. He was known to be a man of means, but it was never suspected that he had great wealth as it is viewed by modern standards. It was true that when five or ten thousand dollars was needed for some project he would come forward with the amount on the condition that his name not be used.

A Man of Many Millions.

Upon his death, however, it was discovered that he had left an estate of some sixty million dollars. This had been systematically divided among various religious, educational, and philantthropic enterprises, with the exception of what was left to the widow. It is said that the manner in which this money was left, indicated that he had made a most careful study of the problem and had availed himself of expert advice.

Bequest Week is featuring the insurance idea—that is, its sponsors are making a drive to induce people all over the country to take out insurance in favor of some religious, educational, or philanthropic organization. This is a new idea and it is not believed to have been tried before on a very large scale. A year ago in Pittsburgh, Bequest Day was held when the local representatives of one of the large insurance companies interviewed 1,370 prospects in the interest of 545 charitable and religious organizations. Out of this number of prospects 57 applications for insurance were secured, the aggregate amount of the policies being $169,500. For one day's work on an entirely new idea this seems a fair return.

During Bequest Week this same company will co-operate with the Federal Council of Churches in its nation-wide attempt to persuade people to insure their lives for the benefit of churches, mission boards, colleges and universities, hospitals, orphanages, old people's homes, and the varied charitable and benevolent work related to the church. It is believed that through this method many people who would like to give something for such purposes will be able to do so, whereas it would be impossible for them to put out a flat sum.

Money Paid As Indicated.

Also when an insurance policy is made payable to a particular person or organization there is no question but that it will be paid as indicated.

Alfred Williams Anthony, chairman of the Committee on Financial and Fiduciary Matters of the Federal Council of Churches has said: "It is good business for life underwriters and it is good business for educational institutions to have these underwriters, when writing life insurance, write pol-

A Billion Christmas Car

Something like a billion greeting cards are expected to change hands in the next two or three weeks. Every kind of card will be in the mail, from the simplest little printed affair at two or three cents to hand-painted or individually designed cards and etchings and copies of famous paintings, selling as high as $50.

Once in a while some one is moved to ask what it's all about. Certainly it helps to make the postmen's life harder one month every year. It is also an unpleasant but inescapable fact that a good many recipients of these cards glance at the names of the senders, feel pleased a moment and then throw the cards into the nearest wastebasket.

However, the greeting card industry has become a big one and the popular demand for its product shows no weakening. If it really adds to true Christmas joy and good will, then it is probably worth the $16,000,000 at which it is now estimated.

A Mechanical Heart

Russian doctors have found that life may be continued long after the heart and lungs have stopped working, if the blood is kept circulating by artificial means. One of them has devised a machine which "mechanically takes over the functions of the heart." It is an electrical pump that can be connected with the circulatory system. By means of that pump, a dog which had been "put to death with chloroform" was restored to life.

It looks like an improvement on the pulmotor, which merely takes over the function of the lungs until it revives the vital spark and enables them to reassume their normal activity. Many lives may be saved by the new device, in cases of accident or sudden shock, and life may be prolonged in cases of serious heart disease.

No such mechanical contrivance, however, will be a real improvement on the heart. We are not going to have mechanical men or mechanical organs.

Wheels may have certain points of superiority over feet, and the centrifugal pump may seem more efficient than the human heart as a pumping machine. Still, industry has no machine which, day in and day out, year after year, does its work so well as this same delicate and sensitive heart.

With all the imperfections of this elaborate factory of life, the human body, where is the man-made factory that functions so well or lasts so long?

The Roumanian Crisis

Queen Marie's tour of America created greater curiosity about her own country than Americans had ever felt before. Her return home, with the conflicting reports regarding the health of King Ferdinand and the complicated political situation there, has intensified the interest.

Here is what looks like "the low down" on the Roumanian situation, as told by Hamilton Fish Armstrong in "The New Balkans." The quotation, though a mere fragment, is highly illuminating:

"King Ferdinand is seldom mentioned in dispatches from Bucharest except when he is ill. He has never been a directing factor in Roumanian politics, and he would not be today even if he were in good health. Unlike many in his entourage, he is not interested in politics, either theoretical or applied, and is ignorant of his country's needs and wishes.

"An impotent broken sovereign; a scintillating consort with an infinite fund of energy, ambition and determination, marred by bad judgment; a young gentleman (the crown prince) with no particular qualification for leadership, unnecessarily elevated to martyrdom through exile and disbarment from a throne which neither inclination nor temperament adapt him to fill very acceptably; a deserted wife and healthy five-year-old son, about whose head are already gathering the rivalries and strife that seem the inevitable lot of minor rulers—these are the leading personal factors which the politicians of Roumania are trying to manipulate today."

Smake and Pneumonia

City smoke does more than run up laundry bills, aggravate the housecleaning job and make it necessary for people to wash face and hands ofterner than is good for them. Smoke is a powerful source of diseases, especially of one of the most deadly diseases—pneumonia.

Using Pittsburgh as an experimental laboratory, Dr. William C. White of the U. S. Public Health Service finds that city has "the highest constant pneumonia death rate of any community in the world," and that the more smoky the air in any particular ward, the higher is the pneumonia death rate in that ward.

Pneumonia, of course, is a germ disease, and smoke can hardly be accused of carrying the germs. But what the smoke does is to produce such irritation of the membranes of the nose, throat and lungs that the germs, which are present almost everywhere, find easier lodgment and less resistance to growth.

This is perhaps the worst accusation yet brought against city smoke. And it is in order to point out again, in Pittsburgh and every other community suffering from smoky air, that that condition is not necessary. It means imperfect combustion and fuel waste, whose avoidance by well known methods means economy as well as health.

Twin needs of the modern city: Parking space for motor cars and subterranean burrows for pedestrians.

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED.

It was the first night of a revival meeting among the negroes on a Mississippi plantation. The church was a crude affair of logs, lighted by a single lamp which was set upon the pulpit.

Following an earnest sermon on repentance and an impassioned plea for all those present who felt convicted of sin to come forward for confession and surrender, the old preacher said:

"Now, I wants Br'er Johnson to take dis lamp an' stand up yere insides de altar an' hold it up high so all kin see, an' sing dat beatuiful hymn:

"'W'ile de lamp holds out ter burn,
De vilest sinner may return.'

"I'm gwine to look an' see w'ich one of you niggers is gwine to be de fust to come up yere an' confess yore sins an' start on de new life. Sing on, Br'r Johnson, an' hold dat lamp high!"

As the first notes of the song burst forth from Brother Johnson's lips, a man arose from the extreme back part of the church and started forward. As he drew nearer, the peacher recognized him as a man who bore the reputation of being the worst reprobate in the whole country—known far and wide as one utterly devoid of virtue or morality of any kind—guilty of every vice and sin.

As the full consciousness of the enormity of the penitent's sins and his utter abandonment came to the preacher even his faith gave way.

"Br'er Johnson," he shouted, "stop singin' an' blow out de lamp!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Some of the toniest men sartorially in New York are those whose finger prints grace the Bertillon room at headquarters. The skilled crook has learned clothes add greatly to his security. So does his address.

Few tenants of high class apartment buildings realize how thoroughly their pasts are fine combed before they are permitted to sign a lease. There is a private detective bureau specializing in this sort of work.

A crook in a respectable apartment house is like speck in an apple. In the end it will decay the whole and vast property depreciation results. Two years ago a newspaper discovered that one of those super buildings housed a crook. Tenants broke their leases hurriedly and it is still jinxed.

In the roundup of an international gang of blackmailers the leader was found dining with a beautiful lady in a restaurant. He was a shining symbol of a man of fashion. His capsuled needle pointed mustache would have made Menjou and Lew Cody pout.

He clapped a silk hat on his head at a spruce angle before riding in his limousine to the station. Even the calloused detectives were a little dubious about their catch. He was too grand. Yet he had been a guest at four different state prsisons.

Big cities are gullible for such superb tosh. Contact being casual it is natural for people to judge largely by what is known as "a front." Any number of successful crooks also maintain luxurious offices as a mere gesture but this aids in deception.

The crook has learned the boobery of sitting around in cellars wearing sweaters when he might as well slip into a dinner jacket and join the swells. His chances of detection are slighter and he is also able to have a spry ear cocked for information that will be of cash value.

A little Broadway fad shop is selling small hot water bottles to be placed in women's muffs on cold days. A spy tells me some are used also to carry hot and potent drinks.

The most distinctive handwriting I have seen in New York is that of Herb Roth, the caricaturist. Every letter is in bold print but he has mastered it so well he can write faster than the average person.

This ad. in a theatrical weekly: "Refined, white haired lady, widow of an educator, desires to act as stage mother to some young and pretty girl who needs such maternal protection."

One wonders what the refined lady's reaction at 3 a. m. to a chorine's pleading: "Now mother just one more highball, a Charleston and a look in at Tex Guinan's and we'll toddle home."

And doubtless on the way home mother will have to detour for just one sandwich at Reuben's. Or go on her way alone.

One of the aging voluptuaries who had parafine shot into his chin with a result that might be described as lumpy—a sort of alligator skin effect—has camouflaged the disaster with a luxuriant French beard. Not a lump is to be seen through the new foliage.

It is always interesting to watch those monocle wearers who are inexpert at the art. They hold the monocle as long as they can and when they feel it slipping they have an expression of one just about to bust out crying. The experienced monoclist—my own word and don't write me it is not in the dictionary—is found only in Europe. He sleeps with a monocle, takes a bath wearing it and doubtless is able to skip the gutter without jouncing it out, the silly old egg.

HASKIN'S LETTER

Bequest Week the Latest.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 14.—And now we have Bequest Week! We have had Don't Get Hurt Week, Prevent Fire Week, Clean Up, Paint Up Week, and various others. But Bequest Week is something new. This is to be a week devoted to an effort to induce people to make bequests to various religious and philanthropic organizations. The plan is being fostered by the Committee on Financial and Fiduciary Matters of the Federal Council of Churches.

It has been explained that frequently people wish to make some provision for a particular organization in which they are interested, but do not know just how to go about it so that there can be no doubt of the money's reaching the intended parties. Attention is called to the fact that it is not uncommon to pick up a daily newspaper and see that a will is being contested and very often the church or philanthropic organization to which a bequest has been made never gets the money.

The idea now is to establish a central office where persons interested in making such bequests may consult an expert regarding the proper method of procedure. This central office will not only aid in the correct manner of making a bequest, but will give advice regarding various organizations to which such a bequest might be acceptable. The most distinctive handwriting I have seen in New York is that of Herb Roth, the caricaturist. Every letter is in bold print but he has mastered it so well he can write faster than the average person.

This ad. in a theatrical weekly: "Refined, white haired lady, widow of an educator, desires to act as stage mother to some young and pretty girl who needs such maternal protection."

One wonders what the refined lady's reaction at 3 a. m. to a chorine's pleading: "Now mother just one more highball, a Charleston and a look in at Tex Guinan's and we'll toddle home."

And doubtless on the way home mother will have to detour for just one sandwich at Reuben's. Or go on her way alone.

One of the aging voluptuaries who had parafine shot into his chin with a result that might be described as lumpy—a sort of alligator sking effect—has camouflaged the disaster with a luxuriant French beard. Not a lump is to be seen through the new foliage.

It is always interesting to watch those monocle wearers who are inexpert at the art. They hold the monocle as long as they can and when they feel it slipping they have an expression of one just about to bust out crying. The experienced monoclist—my own word and don't write me it is not in the dictionary—is found only in Europe. He sleeps with a monocle, takes a bath wearing it and doubtless is able to skip the gutter without jouncing it out, the silly old egg.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Bequest Week the Latest.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 14.—And now we have Bequest Week! We have had Don't Get Hurt Week, Prevent Fire Week, Clean Up, Paint Up Week, and various others. But Bequest Week is something new. This is to be a week devoted to an effort to induce people to make bequests to various religious and philanthropic organizations. The plan is being fostered by the Committee on Financial and Fiduciary Matters of the Federal Council of Churches.

It has been explained that frequently people wish to make some provision for a particular organization in which they are interested, but do not know just how to go about it so that there can be no doubt of the money's reaching the intended parties. Attention is called to the fact that it is not uncommon to pick up a daily newspaper and see that a will is being contested and very often the church or philanthropic organization to which a bequest has been made never gets the money.

The idea now is to establish a central office where persons interested in making such bequests may consult an expert regarding the proper method of procedure. This central office will not only aid in the correct manner of making a bequest, but will give advice regarding various organizations to which such a bequest might be acceptable. It is believed that this is a much more satisfactory method of giving money than merely to decide upon some institution in a hit or miss fashion.

An example of the latter is given in the case of a wealthy manufacturer who decided to establish a home for orphans. It is said that he invested several million dollars in this. Those who have made a study of such philanthropic work are of the opinion that it would have been much better had he consulted with experts before launching upon such an undertaking.

On the other hand an interesting story is told of a man in one of the large eastern cities. It appears that this man lived alone with his wife. There were no children and no direct heirs. He was known to be a man of means, but it was never suspected that he had great wealth as it is viewed by modern standards. It was true that when five or ten thousand dollars was needed for some project he would come forward with the amount on the condition that his name not be used.

A Man of Many Millions.

Upon his death, however, it was discovered that he had left an estate of some sixty million dollars. This had been systematically divided among various religious, educational, and philanthropic enterprises, with the exception of what was left to the widow. It is said that the manner in which this money was left, indicated that he had made a most careful study of the problem and had availed himself of expert advice.

Bequest Week is featuring the insurance idea—that is, its sponsors are making a drive to induce people all over the country to take out insurance in favor of some religious, educational, or philanthropic organization. This is a new idea and it is not believed to have been tried before on a very large scale. A year ago in Pittsburgh, Bequest Day was held when the local representatives of one of the large insurance companies interviewed 1,370 prospects in the interest of 545 charitable and religious organizations. Out of this number of prospects 57 applications for insurance were secured, the aggregate amount of the policies being $169,500. For one day's work on an entirely new idea this seems a fair return.

During Bequest Week this same company will co-operate with the Federal Council of Churches in its nation-wide attempt to persuade people to insure their lives for the benefit of churches, mission boards, colleges and universities, hospitals, orphanages, old people's homes, and the varied charitable and benevolent work related to the church. It is believed that through this method many people who would like to give something for such purposes will be able to do so, whereas it would be impossible for them to put out a flat sum.

Money Paid As Indicated.

Also when an insurance policy is made payable to a particular person or organization there is no question but that it will be paid as indicated.

Alfred Williams Anthony, chairman of the Committee on Financial and Fiduciary Matters of the Federal Council of Churches has said: "It is good business for life underwriters and it is good business for educational institutions to have these underwriters, when writing life insurance, write pol-

500 BALLOTS CAST AT NOON

Heavy Vote Expected on School Bond Issue Proposal.

Approximately 500 votes, it was estimated, had been cast here at noon today in the special election on the proposal to issue $60,000 bonds for improvements to several school buildings and enclosing the high school athletic field with a steel and concrete fence.

The heaviest voting is expected to take place late in the afternoon at the close of working hours. It is predicted that the total poll will probably exceed the 1,200 mark.

During the past few days interest in the election has been running high with both sides advancing arguments for and against the proposal.

The polls will close at 6:30 and it is expected that the result will be known one hour later due to the fact that the ballot is only a yes and no proposition.

DATES ANNOUNCED FOR STATE FAIR

The West Virginia State Fair for 1927 will be held at the State Fair grounds September 3 to the 10th. This was announced today by Bert Schwartz, secretary. Mr. and Mrs Schwartz returned from Chicago, Ill., where they were in attendance at the annual convention of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions of the United States and Canada.

When the dates for the fairs over the country were assigned the West Virginia Fair association was again favored with Labor Day week. The fair will start on Saturday and continue through Labor day week, the same as during the past year.

At the same time that the fair convention was being held the National Association of Amusement Parks was in progress in Chicago. Those who represented the local amusement park on the Island were John J. Carlin, Paul Heinze and J. R. Trimble.

The conventions lasted during the entire week and one of the big features was the banquet last Wednesday, which was attended by Governor Howard M. Gore of West Virginia. Governor Gore was in Chicago at the time in attendance of the annual Chicago Livestock show.

CORONER PROBES AUTO FATALITY

Coroner George A. Arner, of Chester, conducted an investigation last night at New Cumberland into the deaths of Harry Fink and Arthur Ross, both of New Cumberland, who were killed yesterday morning when a car driven by the former left the road and plunged over an embankment at Blackhorse station.

After heaving the evidence of several persons who were in the vicinity the coroner returned a verdict of "accidental death."

GAS-ELECTRIC TRAIN RUNNING

New Service Being Tried Out on Chester-Steubenville Division.

Pennsylvania Railroad company officials were in charge of the run of the new gasoline-electric train operated for the first time last night on the Chester-Steubenville division.

Operations in charge of the regular train crews will be continued during the balance of the week, it was stated today by officials of the company after which it will be determined whether or not the services will be continued indefinitely.

The first train consisted of two cars, the first housing the gasoline engine, which operated the electric generator. In this same coach was a baggage and smoking compartment for passengers with a seating capacity of 45 persons. There was a trailer or coach for women. Each car measures 60 feet in length.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company has decided to try out the gasoline-electric trains, and if a success will continue them. They have been successfully operated in a number of instances, and for the past two years have been under consideration of installation on the branch from Steubenville to Chester. It is claimed that they can be operated at less expense and are just as efficient for service to the public.

The change is also effective on the Wheeling and Lake Erie line.

Named Acting Prosecutor.

Attorney E. A. Hart, of New Cumberland, will act as prosecuting attorney of Hancock county during the absence of Prosecutor Thomas Hoffman who left recently for Dayton, Beach, Fla.; where he is visiting during the holidays with his family.

Fultz, suspended by Mayor W. L. Fogo last Thursday following the former's refusal to give up a bottle containing a small quantity of liquor which had been introduced in the case of James Pugia, arrested on a possession charge, placed his appeal in the hands of the commission yesterday afternoon.

The appeal reads:

"To the Wellsville Civil Service Commission:

"Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, having been removed from the office of chief of police of Wellsville by Wallace L. Fogo, mayor, desires to appeal to your honorable body from such order of removal and requests that a time be fixed within the limit provided by law for a hearing upon said appeal.

"JOHN H. FULTZ."

To Fultz's appeal was attached an affidavit certifying that he had served copies of the appeal on Dwight McLean, chairman of the civil service commission, A. C. Fogo and Harry Hammond, members, as well as Grattan V. Dugan, secretary of the commission.

Delivery in most of the case was made personally by Fultz.

It is probable, according to commission members, that the body will convene sometime during the latter part of the week or the first of next week, at least within 10 days of the filing of the appeal.

It is necessary, the commission explains, that a date for a hearing on the appeal be set within the 30-day time limit prescribed by statutes.

DISTRIBUTE AUTO PLATES

1927 Licenses Ready for Wellsville Motorists.

Distribution of 1,500 automobile tags, the first shipment of the 1927 license plates received here, was started yesterday by C. W. Arnold, deputy automobile commissioner for Wellsville.

The tags include pleasure car, truck and commercial plates.

The Wellsville tags are part of the 14,000 pairs received in Columbiana county.

The local series numbers run from 391-101 to 392-600. The plates have a grey background for black letters and figures.

Applicants must produce their bills of sale or sworn statements of ownership. All bills of sale must bear the recorder's stamp showing that the car has been registered at Lisbon. The number of the bill of sale or sworn statement of ownership, as designated at Lisbon, is also to be made a matter of record upon the registration blank.

Motorists are urged to secure their next year's licenses as soon as possible in order to avoid congestion which usually prevails at the license station during the last few days of the month. The 1927 plates will not be honored by police however, until after January 1, 1927.

Licenses this year will cost $4 for the small type cars, $6 for medium sized and $10 for the larger type. Trucks will be graded according to their weight.

ELKS PLANNING ANNUAL TREAT

Donnelly Heads Committee for Christmas Event.

Needy children of the city will be beneficiaries of the Wellsville lodge of Elks at the organization's annual Christmas treat on Christmas morning in the home in Riverside avenue and Eighth street.

Howard Donnelly heads the committee appointed to supervise the project and will be aided by John Fickes, James Scott, Henry Wooster and Harry Shipley.

Clothing, toys, gifts, candy and fruit will be distributed to the children from the Christmas tree that will be erected in the lodge home for the occasion, by "Santa Claus."

SOLONS TO ACT ON FIRE TRUCK

May Start Legislation at Meeting Tonight.

First legislative action toward the purchase of a fire truck and pumper for the municipal fire department probably will be taken by city officials and members of council tonight at an adjourned meeting of the solons in the city hall.

One of the most important steps that probably will be taken will be the selection of the type of truck that meets with the approval of the officials.

That the truck will be one of three—the American La France, the Seagraves, and the Ahrons-Fox—was indicated by Mayor W. L. Fogo and Safety-Service Director George P. Ashley at a meeting of volunteer and regular firemen Sunday night in the fire station when the fire fighters were asked to indicate their desire in a secret ballot.

Mayor Fogo and Director Ashley at that time pointed out that they had decided that any one of the three types would be adequate to meet the city's requirements.

DISTRIBUTE AUTO PLATES

1927 Licenses Ready for Wellsville Motorists.

Distribution of 1,500 automobile tags, the first shipment of the 1927 license plates received here, was started yesterday by C. W. Arnold, deputy automobile commissioner for Wellsville.

The tags include pleasure car, truck and commercial plates.

The Wellsville tags are part of the 14,000 pairs received in Columbiana county.

The local series numbers run from 391-101 to 392-600. The plates have a grey background for black letters and figures.

Applicants must produce their bills of sale or sworn statements of ownership. All bills of sale must bear the recorder's stamp showing that the car has been registered at Lisbon. The number of the bill of sale or sworn statement of ownership, as designated at Lisbon, is also to be made a matter of record upon the registration blank.

Motorists are urged to secure their next year's licenses as soon as possible in order to avoid congestion which usually prevails at the license station during the last few days of the month. The 1927 plates will not be honored by police however, until after January 1, 1927.

Licenses this year will cost $4 for the small type cars, $6 for medium sized and $10 for the larger type. Trucks will be graded according to their weight.

SOLONS TO ACT ON FIRE TRUCK

May Start Legislation at Meeting Tonight.

First legislative action toward the purchase of a fire truck and pumper for the municipal fire department probably will be taken by city officials and members of council tonight at an adjourned meeting of the solons in the city hall.

One of the most important steps that probably will be taken will be the selection of the type of truck that meets with the approval of the officials.

That the truck will be one of three—the American La France, the Seagraves, and the Ahrons-Fox—was indicated by Mayor W. L. Fogo and Safety-Service Director George P. Ashley at a meeting of volunteer and regular firemen Sunday night in the fire station when the fire fighters were asked to indicate their desire in a secret ballot.

Mayor Fogo and Director Ashley at that time pointed out that they had decided that any one of the three types would be adequate to meet the city's requirements.

COMMISSION WILL SET DATE FOR FULTZ HEARING

MAY CALL MEET THIS WEEK TO ACT ON APPEAL

Notice is Filed with City Tribunal by Deposed Chief.

TEN-DAY LIMIT

Service Made on Individual Members of Body.

Action looking toward the determination of a date for a hearing on the appeal of John H. Fultz, suspended chief of police, may be taken by the Wellsville Civil Service commission within the next week or 10 days, according to announcement today by members of the municipal tribunal.

Fultz, suspended by Mayor W. L. Fogo last Thursday following the former's refusal to give up a bottle containing a small quantity of liquor which had been introduced in the case of James Pugia, arrested on a possession charge, placed his appeal in the hands of the commission yesterday afternoon.

The appeal reads:

"To the Wellsville Civil Service Commission:

"Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, having been removed from the office of chief of police of Wellsville by Wallace L. Fogo, mayor, desires to appeal to your honorable body from such order of removal and requests that a time be fixed within the limit provided by law for a hearing upon said appeal.

"JOHN H. FULTZ."

To Fultz's appeal was attached an affidavit certifying that he had served copies of the appeal on Dwight McLean, chairman of the civil service commission, A. C. Fogo and Harry Hammond, members, as well as Grattan V. Dugan, secretary of the commission.

Delivery in most of the case was made personally by Fultz.

It is probable, according to commission members, that the body will convene sometime during the latter part of the week or the first of next week, at least within 10 days of the filing of the appeal.

It is necessary, the commission explains, that a date for a hearing on the appeal be set within the 30-day time limit prescribed by statutes.

HIGH PASSERS OPEN SEASON DECEMBER 17

Rochester Quint Will Pry Off Cage Lid.

19 DATES CARDED

Pittsburgh Technical High Billed for First 1927 Tilt.

Wellsville High school's basketball squad, rounding into shape under the direction of Coach Earl S. Klinck, will open 1926-27 campaign on Friday night, December 17 with the Rochester, Pa., school five, according to announcement today by Faculty Manager Robert Trumbull.

A squad of 17 candidates are working out diligently at the high school gymnasium, and enough material has been uncovered to indicate another good Orange and Black quint.

Forward Dickey, Center and Captain Calhoun and Guard Perry are the nucleus around which the team will be organized this year. Dickey, Calhoun and Perry are the hold-overs from last year. With this trio on the job, Coach Klinck does not expect to find the job of completing the squad extraordinarily difficult.

In addition, new material this year has shown plenty of promise. Snowden, Wyper, Foley, Fogo, Householder and a number of others have been working well in practice sessions and will be among the outstanding candidates when the varsity squad finally is chosen.

Practice for the girls' team was launched yesterday afternoon with a squad of 38 players reporting to Coach Klinck from the various gymnasium classes. This squad will be drilled the remainder of the week and then probably will be reduced to a great extent. Miss Pauline Smith, side center and captain of this year's team, and Miss Jean Irwin, a forward are the only veterans from last season's combine.

Following the Rochester game, prior to Christmas, the teams will be idle until January 7 when the boys clash with Pittsburgh Technical high school here, a new opponent this year.

The remainder of the schedule follows:

Jan. 8—At East Palestine.
Jan. 14—Carrollton here.
Jan. 15—Mingo Junction here.
Jan. 21—Salem here.
Jan. 22—Open.
Jan. 28—At Salem.
Jan. 29—Columbiana here.
Feb. 4—At Carrollton.
Feb. 5—East Palestine here.
Feb. 11—At Mingo Junction.
Feb. 12—Chester here.
Feb. 15—East Liverpool here.
Feb. 18 and 19— Open.
Feb. 22—At Lisbon.
Feb. 25—At Chester.
March 1—At East Liverpool.

Manager Trumbull is considering a trip for the open dates on Feb. 18 and 19 but has not concluded negotiations at the present time. The girls' team will figure in 12 contests, including, beside that with the Alumni, games with East Palestine, Mingo Junction, Salem, Columbiana, Chester, Lisbon and East Liverpool.

NEW RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL BEFORE SENATE

WILLIS FIGHTS DIVERSION OF LAKE WATERS

Battle Centers Around Illinois River Appropriation.

OHIO RIVER AID

Leaders Predict Final Vote Before Christmas Recess.

BY WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The new rivers and harbors bill, attacked by foes as "pork barrel" legislation and defended by its friends as necessary for the development of inland transportation, came before the senate today for final enactment, following its passage by the house last spring.

The measure will be given right of way over all other legislation. This action was agreed upon by the senate before it adjourned last July and the agreement included a limitation of debate.

Administration leaders predicted a final vote before the Christmas recess.

The measure, however, faces a stiff fight. It is attacked by three groups, the principal assault revolving around the item for deepening the channel of the Illinois river. This plan came under fire from representatives of virtually every other Great Lakes state on the ground that it would result in diversion of water from the great lakes into the Mississippi valley.

Items of Discussion.

Two other items promoting discussion where the senate commerce committee's action in reducing an appropriation from $50,000,000 to $12,000,000 for improving the Missouri river from Kansas City to Sioux City, Iowa, and the inclusion of a $11,500,000 appropriation for purchase of the Cape Cod ship canal. The senate once rejected the latter appropriation.

The Illinois river item, appropriating $1,350,000 to build a channel nine feet deep and 200 feet wide, without any definite limit on diversion of water from the Great Lakes, will be fought by a senate bloc, led by Senator Willis (R.) of Ohio. It will be defended by Senator Deneen (R.) of Illinois and Senator Jones (R.) of Washington. A Chicago delegation headed by Former Mayor William Hale Thompson, attended the debate.

"I am going to carry out my original intention of fighting this bill," said Willis. "There will be no compromise unless it includes a provision that there shall be no diversion of water from the Great Lakes."

To this, Senator Jones replied: "The bill will pass whenever we get a vote on it. It is designed for the development of the country and especially of inland transportation. It will pass."

$110,000 For Ice Piers.

The senate measure included several items not approved by the house, including $1,655,000 for developing the Hackensack River, N. J. and $621,000 for the Galveston, Tex. channel.

The house items, which the senate must approve are $350,000 for Thames river, Conn., $2,000,000 for a waterway from Gravesend bay to Jamaica bay, N. Y. $62,000 for Great Kills, Staten Island, N. Y., $858,000 for Passaic river, N. J., and $91,000 for Appomattox river, $7,000,000 for an intra-coastal waterway from the Mississippi river, near New Orleans, to Corpus Christi, Texas, and $654,000 for a Sabine-Neches waterway, Texas.

Other items are $40,000 for Rock Island and Moline harbors, Ill., $67,000 for Mill Creek and South Slough, Milan Ill., $110,000 for Ohio River ice piers, $35,000 for Youghiogheny river, Pa., $4,921,000 for St. Mary's river, Mich., and $22,000 for Buffalo harbor, N. Y.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Enthusiastic buying of the motor stocks in early trading today was stimulated by the official denial of the Ford Motor company that new models of low priced cars would be ready for the market early next year. Freed from the bugaboo of Ford competition, the stocks of the well known motor companies continued their spectacular forward move, with Chrysler, General Motors, Hudson, Willys Overland, Packard, Dodge, Hupp and White reaching the highest price levels on the move.

The call loan rate of 5 per cent reflected the temporary hardening of the short term money market on the eve of the treasury department's billion dollar "settlements" at the banking institutions.

McDermott's Defense

until Judge E. W. Diehl finally ruled in favor of the state and ordered Kascholk back into the witness box.

Resuming where he left off, after telling how he met McDermott in Cleveland and accompanied him to Massillon, Kascholk continued, under direct examination by the state's attorneys, declaring that he accompanied McDermott to Rudner's hardware store in Massillon.

"I got into a car with a Mr. Smith, McDermott and a big German police dog, and we drove to Canton," the witness said. "We stopped in front of a hotel and Pat and I went in and got a room.

Says Defendant Showed Revolver.

"What happened then?" asked Prosecutor C. B. McClintock.

"McDermott showed me a revolver," he answered.

Kascholk said that after McDermott showed him a revolver the defendant said:

"We'll get him (Mellett) to the door, and I'll shove the gun into his ribs. Then we'll get him outside."

"We went out on a street car, looked the place over and went to a drug store for a soda."

"This is a rotten business, Pat, I told him," said Kascholk, then relating the details of his refusing to go through with the "slugging of an editor," the witness said he went to Cleveland and returned here on July 24 with an attorney of the Legal Aid Society there.

"Have you seen this Mr. Smith since returning here from Cleveland?" McClintock asked.

"Yes, that was Mazer" he said.

"Where did you see Mazer?"

Steve replied that he had seen Louis Mazer, who with McDermott and Ben Rudner, was indicted in connection with the Mellett murder, in United States Attorney A. E. Bernsteen's office in Cleveland.

Reference to Rudner.

"Have you seen the automobile you rode over here in that night?" he asked.

"Yes, but I don't remember much about that," Steve said.

"Do you remember going some place with a Mr. Armstrong?" asked McClintock referring to the Cincinnati detective who assisted Ora Slater, another Cincinnati private detective officer on the case.

"You mean in reference to the car," countered Steve.

"Yes" urged the prosecutor.

"I'm not clear on that auto," Kascholk insisted and could not remember, although the state pressed the question several times.

McClintock then retraced some of the original Kascholk testimony.

"When you went to Massillon did you ever see Ben Rudner in the presence of Pat?" he asked.

"Yes," answered Kascholk. "And Pat said 'this man has more guts than any man that ever walked.'"

After introducing certain clothes which Steve said had been in a suitcase in his hotel room here, McClintock announced that he was temporarily through with the witness.

Cross examination by Attorney Everett Mills was then started.

Will Call "Surprise" Witness.

The state's star "surprise" witness, expected to be called on Friday to testify against McDermott, is William Betzeler, it was announced today. Betzeler, originally from Johnstown, Pa., will tell details of McDermott's activities on the night of the killing of Mellett, it was said by an attorney for the prosecution. He has been kept carefully in hiding since he was located by the investigators of the case.

ROBERTS FLAYS "SILENT MAN" IN OIL LAND CASE

Prosecution Trains Guns on "Invisible Witness."

COTTER NAMED

Doheny Attorney and Once Secretary to Franklin Lane.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The defense today made its supreme gesture for the acquittal of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and E. L. Doheny, charged with fraudulently wresting oil lands of untold value from their government.

Following an appeal for conviction, by Owen J. Roberts, Frank J Hogan, defense ace, noted for his ability to sway a jury, took the floor.

He launched into an attack on Roberts, the government counsel. "Gentlemen," he said, "you have listened to as wholesale and vicious a villification as ever polluted the atmosphere of a court room.

"You have heard it from the lips of a man made desperate by the fact that in the past week he has seen his flimsy case collapse before him. You have seen him hopelessly trying to rebuild it from the shreds by his oratory."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—An "invisible witness" was flayed today by Owen J. Roberts, special oil counsel for the government as he completed his final argument demanding the conviction of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and E. L. Doheny, millionaire oil man, for criminal conspiracy in the leasing of naval oil reserves.

This "silent man" was described as J. J. Cotter, Doheny's attorney and former secretary to Franklin Lane, secretary of the Interior under President Wilson.

"Joe Cotter" said Roberts, "knows more about this case than anybody else—Doheny included. Why haven't we heard from him?"

Reading from the testimony of other witnesses, Roberts showed Cotter's appearance at every stage in the negotiations which culminated in Doheny's acquisition of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve.

Doheny Is Scored.

"Gentlemen," the prosecutor asked the jury, "What is the implication when a man has knowledge, is available, but is not called?

"It can only be because his testimony would neither convince you nor aid the defense cause.

"Remember that Joe Cotter was the one man who conducted the negotiations for Doheny, and he was not summoned to tell about them.

Roberts then trained his guns on Doheny.

"Mr. Doheny," he said, "has come before you with the most incredible statement imaginable. With all his knowledge of business, he has the temerity to tell you that he was "a perfect fool" about the preferential right clause in the Pearl Harbor contract, whereby he later got the naval reserve."

Roberts criticised Doheny's motive in appearing before the senate investigating committee three years ago and admitting that he, and not E. B. McLean, had loaned Fall $100,000.

"He said he wanted the public to know, but we now know why he confessed. Because Senator Walsh went to Miami and got the truth out of McLean that he didn't make the loan. Because Fall then wired Doheny that "the facts were about to come out and names be known." That's why Doheny came forward. He had to. He was about to be found out.

Thieves Attempt To Loot Carl Turk Home in East End

Two unidentified thieves made an unsuccessful attempt to loot the home of Carl Turk, Erie street and Maryland avenue, East End, at 6:30 o'clock last night.

As Turk drove up to the door of his garage two men ran from the building and disappeared in the darkness. Turk, upon investigation, discovered that a glass in the garage door had been smashed and the doors opened. With an iron bar the intruders had also forced open the door which leads from the garage into the kitchen of the house.

Nothing in the house was disturbed. Turk believes that the robbers had just entered the house and that his return frightened them away. Captain of Police Conley made an investigation.

vestors in the Panhandle section of West Virginia and eastern Ohio lost thousands of dollars, it was alleged, when the institution closed its doors following an examination by a representative of the state banking commissioner's office.

Delay after delay occurred in the trial of the two men, who were released under bond. They faced a jury in December, 1925, and on the 18th day a verdict of guilty was returned. Sentence was passed in February after motions for new trials were overruled. In the interim, the case has been pending before the state supreme court of appeals.

Items of Discussion.

Two other items promoting discussion where the senate commerce committee's action in reducing an appropriation from $50,000,000 to $12,000,000 for improving the Missouri river from Kansas City to Sioux City, Iowa, and the inclusion of a $11,500,000 appropriation for purchase of the Cape Cod ship canal. The senate once rejected the latter appropriation.

The Illinois river item, appropriating $1,350,000 to build a channel nine feet deep and 200 feet wide, without any definite limit on diversion of water from the Great Lakes, will be fought by a senate bloc, led by Senator Willis (R.) of Ohio. It will be defended by Senator Deneen (R.) of Illinois and Senator Jones (R.) of Washington. A Chicago delegation headed by Former Mayor William Hale Thompson, attended the debate.

"I am going to carry out my original intention of fighting this bill," said Willis. "There will be no compromise unless it includes a provision that there shall be no diversion of water from the Great Lakes."

To this, Senator Jones replied: "The bill will pass whenever we get a vote on it. It is designed for the development of the country and especially of inland transportation. It will pass."

$110,000 For Ice Piers.

The senate measure included several items not approved by the house, including $1,655,000 for developing the Hackensack River, N. J. and $621,000 for the Galveston, Tex. channel.

The house items, which the senate must approve are $350,000 for Thames river, Conn., $2,000,000 for a waterway from Gravesend bay to Jamaica bay, N. Y. $62,000 for Great Kills, Staten Island, N. Y., $858,000 for Passaic river, N. J., and $91,000 for Appomattox river, $7,000,000 for an intra-coastal waterway from the Mississippi river, near New Orleans, to Corpus Christi, Texas, and $654,000 for a Sabine-Neches waterway, Texas.

Other items are $40,000 for Rock Island and Moline harbors, Ill., $67,000 for Mill Creek and South Slough, Milan Ill., $110,000 for Ohio River ice piers, $35,000 for Youghiogheny river, Pa., $4,921,000 for St. Mary's river, Mich., and $22,000 for Buffalo harbor, N. Y.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Enthusiastic buying of the motor stocks in early trading today was stimulated by the official denial of the Ford Motor company that new models of low priced cars would be ready for the market early next year. Freed from the bugaboo of Ford competition, the stocks of the well known motor companies continued their spectacular forward move, with Chrysler, General Motors, Hudson, Willys Overland, Packard, Dodge, Hupp and White reaching the highest price levels on the move.

The call loan rate of 5 per cent reflected the temporary hardening of the short term money market on the eve of the treasury department's billion dollar "settlements" at the banking institutions.

McDermott's Defense

until Judge E. W. Diehl finally ruled in favor of the state and ordered Kascholk back into the witness box.

Resuming where he left off, after telling how he met McDermott in Cleveland and accompanied him to Massillon, Kascholk continued, under direct examination by the state's attorneys, declaring that he accompanied McDermott to Rudner's hardware store in Massillon.

"I got into a car with a Mr. Smith, McDermott and a big German police dog, and we drove to Canton," the witness said. "We stopped in front of a hotel and Pat and I went in and got a room.

Says Defendant Showed Revolver.

"What happened then?" asked Prosecutor C. B. McClintock.

"McDermott showed me a revolver," he answered.

Kascholk said that after McDermott showed him a revolver the defendant said.

"We'll get him (Mellett) to the door, and I'll shove the gun into his ribs. Then we'll get him outside."

"We went out on a street car, looked the place over and went to a drug store for a soda."

"This is a rotten business, Pat, I told him," said Kascholk, then relating the details of his refusing to go through with the "slugging of an editor," the witness said he went to Cleveland and returned here on July 24 with an attorney of the Legal Aid Society there.

"Have you seen this Mr. Smith since returning here from Cleveland?" McClintock asked.

"Yes, that was Mazer" he said.

"Where did you see Mazer?"

Steve replied that he had seen Louis Mazer, who with McDermott and Ben Rudner, was indicted in connection with the Mellett murder, in United States Attorney A. E. Bernsteen's office in Cleveland.

Reference to Rudner.

"Have you seen the automobile you rode over here in that night?" he asked.

"Yes, but I don't remember much about that," Steve said.

"Do you remember going some place with a Mr. Armstrong?' asked McClintock referring to the Cincinnati detective who assisted Ora Slater, another Cincinnati private detective officer on the case.

"You mean in reference to the car," countered Steve.

"Yes" urged the prosecutor.

"I'm not clear on that auto," Kascholk insisted and could not remember, although the state pressed the question several times.

McClintock then retraced some of the original Kascholk testimony.

"When you went to Massillon did you ever see Ben Rudner in the presence of Pat?" he asked.

"Yes," answered Kascholk. "And Pat said 'this man has more guts than any man that ever walked.'"

After introducing certain clothes which Steve said had been in a suitcase in his hotel room here, McClintock announced that he was temporarily through with the witness.

Cross examination by Attorney Everett Mills was then started.

Will Call "Surprise" Witness.

The state's star "surprise" witness, expected to be called on Friday to testify against McDermott, is William Betzeler, it was announced today. Betzeler, originally from Johnstown, Pa., will tell details of McDermott's activities on the night of the killing of Mellett, it was said by an attorney for the prosecution. He has been kept carefully in hiding since he was located by the investigators of the case.

ROBERTS FLAYS "SILENT MAN" IN OIL LAND CASE

Prosecution Trains Guns on "Invisible Witness."

COTTER NAMED

Doheny Attorney and Once Secretary to Franklin Lane.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The defense today made its supreme gesture for the acquittal of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and E. L. Doheny, charged with fraudulently wresting oil lands of untold value from their government.

Following an appeal for conviction, by Owen J. Roberts, Frank J Hogan, defense ace, noted for his ability to sway a jury, took the floor.

He launched into an attack on Roberts, the government counsel. "Gentlemen," he said, "you have listened to as wholesale and vicious a villification as ever polluted the atmosphere of a court room.

"You have heard it from the lips of a man made desperate by the fact that in the past week he has seen his flimsy case collapse before him. You have seen him hopelessly trying to rebuild it from the shreds by his oratory."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—An "invisible witness" was flayed today by Owen J. Roberts, special oil counsel for the government as he completed his final argument demanding the conviction of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and E. L. Doheny, millionaire oil man, for criminal conspiracy in the leasing of naval oil reserves.

This "silent man" was described as J. J. Cotter, Doheny's attorney and former secretary to Franklin Lane, secretary of the Interior under President Wilson.

"Joe Cotter" said Roberts, "knows more about this case than anybody else—Doheny included. Why haven't we heard from him?"

Reading from the testimony of other witnesses, Roberts showed Cotter's appearance at every stage in the negotiations which culminated in Doheny's acquisition of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve.

Doheny is Scored.

"Gentlemen," the prosecutor asked the jury, "What is the implication when a man has knowledge, is available, but is not called?

"It can only be because his testimony would neither convince you nor aid the defense cause.

"Remember that Joe Cotter was the one man who conducted the negotiations for Doheny, and he was not summoned to tell about them.

Roberts then trained his guns on Doheny.

"Mr. Doheny," he said, "has come before you with the most incredible statement imaginable. With all his knowledge of business, he has the temerity to tell you that he was "a perfect fool" about the preferential right clause in the Pearl Harbor contract, whereby he later got the naval reserve."

Roberts criticised Doheny's motive in appearing before the senate investigating committee three years ago and admitting that he, and not E. B. McLean, had loaned Fall $100,000.

"He said he wanted the public to know, but we now know why he confessed. Because Senator Walsh went to Miami and got the truth out of McLean that he didn't make the loan. Because Fall then wired Doheny that "the facts were about to come out and names be known." That's why Doheny came forward. He had to. He was about to be found out.

Thieves Attempt To Loot Carl Turk Home in East End

Two unidentified thieves made an unsuccessful attempt to loot the home of Carl Turk, Erie street and Maryland avenue, East End, at 6:30 o'clock last night.

As Turk drove up to the door of his garage two men ran from the building and disappeared in the darkness. With an iron bar the intruders had also forced open the door which leads from the garage into the kitchen of the house.

Nothing in the house was disturbed. Turk believes that the robbers had just entered the house and that his return frightened them away. Captain of Police Conley made an investigation.

NEW RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL BEFORE SENATE

WILLIS FIGHTS DIVERSION OF LAKE WATERS

Battle Centers Around Illinois River Appropriation.

OHIO RIVER AID

Leaders Predict Final Vote Before Christmas Recess.

BY WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The new rivers and harbors bill, attacked by its foes as "pork barrel" legislation and defended by its friends as necessary for the development of inland transportation, came before the senate today for final enactment, following its passage by the house last spring.

The measure will be given right of way over all other legislation. This action was agreed upon by the senate before it adjourned last July and the agreement included a limitation of debate.

Administration leaders predicted a final vote before the Christmas recess.

The measure, however, faces a stiff fight. It is attacked by three groups, the principal assault revolving around the item for deepening the channel of the Illinois river. This plan came under fire from representatives of virtually every other Great Lakes state on the ground that it would result in diversion of water from the great lakes into the Mississippi valley.

Items of Discussion.

Two other items promoting discussion where the senate commerce committee's action in reducing an appropriation from $50,000,000 to $12,000,000 for improving the Missouri river from Kansas City to Sioux City, Iowa, and the inclusion of a $11,500,000 appropriation for purchase of the Cape Cod ship canal. The senate once rejected the latter appropriation.

The Illinois river item, appropriating $1,350,000 to build a channel nine feet deep and 200 feet wide, without any definite limit on diversion of water from the Great Lakes, will be fought by a senate bloc, led by Senator Willis (R.) of Ohio. It will be defended by Senator Deneen (R.) of Illinois and Senator Jones (R.) of Washington. A Chicago delegation headed by Former Mayor William Hale Thompson, attended the debate.

"I am going to carry out my original intention of fighting this bill," said Willis. "There will be no compromise unless it includes a provision that there shall be no diversion of water from the Great Lakes."

To this, Senator Jones replied: "The bill will pass whenever we get a vote on it. It is designed for the development of the country and especially of inland transportation. It will pass."

$110,000 For Ice Piers.

The senate measure included several items not approved by the house, including $1,655,000 for developing the Hackensack River, N. J. and $621,000 for the Galveston, Tex. channel.

The house items, which the senate must approve are $350,000 for Thames river, Conn., $2,000,000 for a waterway from Gravesend bay to Jamaica bay, N. Y. $62,000 for Great Kills, Staten Island, N. Y., $858,000 for Passaic river, N. J., and $91,000 for Appomattox river, $7,000,000 for an intra-coastal waterway from the Mississippi river, near New Orleans, to Corpus Christi, Texas, and $654,000 for a Sabine-Neches waterway, Texas.

Other items are $40,000 for Rock Island and Moline harbors, Ill., $67,000 for Mill Creek and South Slough, Milan Ill., $110,000 for Ohio River ice piers, $35,000 for Youghiogheny river, Pa., $4,921,000 for St. Mary's river, Mich., and $22,000 for Buffalo harbor, N. Y.

Keen suffering was reported among the poor in Chicago. The drop in temperature was so sudden that many were caught unprepared. Officials were preparting today to cope with the situations, to prevent if possible, any loss of life.

Shippers were warned to protect shipments passing through Chicago from temperatures ranging from 5 to 20 below zero. The cold wave will continue for the next two days, the weather forecast indicated today.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Enthusiastic buying of the motor stocks in early trading today was stimulated by the official denial of the Ford Motor company that new models of low priced cars would be ready for the market early next year. Freed from the bugaboo of Ford competition, the stocks of the well known motor companies continued their spectacular forward move, with Chrysler, General Motors, Hudson, Willys Overland, Packard, Dodge, Hupp and White reaching the highest price levels on the move.

The call loan rate of 5 per cent reflected the temporary hardening of the short term money market on the eve of the treasury department's billion dollar "settlements" at the banking institutions.

McDermott's Defense

until Judge E. W. Diehl finally ruled in favor of the state and ordered Kascholk back into the witness box.

Resuming where he left off, after telling how he met McDermott in Cleveland and accompanied him to Massillon, Kascholk continued, under direct examination by the state's attorneys, declaring that he accompanied McDermott to Rudner's hardware store in Massillon.

"I got into a car with a Mr. Smith, McDermott and a big German police dog, and we drove to Canton," the witness said. "We stopped in front of a hotel and Pat and I went in and got a room.

Says Defendant Showed Revolver.

"What happened then?" asked Prosecutor C. B. McClintock.

"McDermott showed me a revolver," he answered.

Kascholk said that after McDermott showed him a revolver the defendant said.

"We'll get him (Mellett) to the door, and I'll shove the gun into his ribs. Then we'll get him outside."

"We went out on a street car, looked the place over and went to a drug store for a soda."

"This is a rotten business, Pat, I told him," said Kascholk, then relating the details of his refusing to go through with the "slugging of an editor," the witness said he went to Cleveland and returned here on July 24 with an attorney of the Legal Aid Society there.

"Have you seen this Mr. Smith since returning here from Cleveland?" McClintock asked.

"Yes, that was Mazer" he said.

"Where did you see Mazer?"

Steve replied that he had seen Louis Mazer, who with McDermott and Ben Rudner, was indicted in connection with the Mellett murder, in United States Attorney A. E. Bernsteen's office in Cleveland.

Reference to Rudner.

"Have you seen the automobile you rode over here in that night?" he asked.

"Yes, but I don't remember much about that," Steve said.

"Do you remember going some place with a Mr. Armstrong?' asked McClintock referring to the Cincinnati detective who assisted Ora Slater, another Cincinnati private detective officer on the case.

"You mean in reference to the car," countered Steve.

"Yes" urged the prosecutor.

"I'm not clear on that auto," Kascholk insisted and could not remember, although the state pressed the question several times.

McClintock then retraced some of the original Kascholk testimony.

"When you went to Massillon did you ever see Ben Rudner in the presence of Pat?" he asked.

"Yes," answered Kascholk. "And Pat said 'this man has more guts than any man that ever walked.'"

After introducing certain clothes which Steve said had been in a suitcase in his hotel room here, McClintock announced that he was temporarily through with the witness.

Cross examination by Attorney Everett Mills was then started.

Will Call "Surprise" Witness.

The state's star "surprise" witness, expected to be called on Friday to testify against McDermott, is William Betzeler, it was announced today. Betzeler, originally from Johnstown, Pa., will tell details of McDermott's activities on the night of the killing of Mellett, it was said by an attorney for the prosecution. He has been kept carefully in hiding since he was located by the investigators of the case.

ROBERTS FLAYS "SILENT MAN" IN OIL LAND CASE

Prosecution Trains Guns on "Invisible Witness."

COTTER NAMED

Doheny Attorney and Once Secretary to Franklin Lane.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The defense today made its supreme gesture for the acquittal of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and E. L. Doheny, charged with fraudulently wresting oil lands of untold value from their government.

Following an appeal for conviction, by Owen J. Roberts, Frank J Hogan, defense ace, noted for his ability to sway a jury, took the floor.

He launched into an attack on Roberts, the government counsel. "Gentlemen," he said, "you nave listened to as wholesale and vicious a villification as ever polluted the atmosphere of a court room.

"You have heard it from the lips of a man made desperate by the fact that in the past week he has seen his flimsy case collapse before him. You have seen him hopelessly trying to rebuild it from the shreds by his oratory."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—An "invisible witness" was flayed today by Owen J. Roberts, special oil counsel for the government as he completed his final argument demanding the conviction of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and E. L. Doheny, millionaire oil man, for criminal conspiracy in the leasing of naval oil reserves.

This "silent man" was described as J. J. Cotter, Doheny's attorney and former secretary to Franklin Lane, secretary of the Interior under President Wilson.

"Joe Cotter" said Roberts, "knows more about this case than anybody else—Doheny included. Why haven't we heard from him?"

Reading from the testimony of other witnesses, Roberts showed Cotter's appearance at every stage in the negotiations which culminated in Doheny's acquisition of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve.

Doheny is Scored.

"Gentlemen," the prosecutor asked the jury, "What is the implication when a man has knowledge, is available, but is not called?

"It can only be because his testimony would neither convince you nor aid the defense cause.

"Remember that Joe Cotter was the one man who conducted the negotiations for Doheny, and he was not summoned to tell about them.

Roberts then trained his guns on Doheny.

"Mr. Doheny," he said, "has come before you with the most incredible statement imaginable. With all his knowledge of business, he has the temerity to tell you that he was "a perfect fool" about the preferential right clause in the Pearl Harbor contract, whereby he later got the naval reserve."

Roberts criticised Doheny's motive in appearing before the senate investigating committee three years ago and admitting that he, and not E. B. McLean, had loaned Fall $100,000.

"He said he wanted the public to know, but we now know why he confessed. Because Senator Walsh went to Miami and got the truth out of McLean that he didn't make the loan. Because Fall then wired Doheny that "the facts were about to come out and names be known." That's why Doheny came forward. He had to. He was about to be found out.

Thieves Attempt To Loot Carl Turk Home in East End

Two unidentified thieves made an unsuccessful attempt to loot the home of Carl Turk, Erie street and Maryland avenue, East End, at 6:30 o'clock last night.

As Turk drove up to the door of his garage two men ran from the building and disappeared in the darkness. Turk, upon investigation, discovered that a glass in the garage door had been smashed and the doors opened. With an iron bar the intruders had also forced open the door which leads from the garage into the kitchen of the house.

Nothing in the house was disturbed. Turk believes that the robbers had just entered the house and that his return frightened them away. Captain of Police Conley made an investigation.

vestors in the Panhandle section of West Virginia and eastern Ohio lost thousands of dollars, it was alleged, when the institution closed its doors following an examination by a representative of the state banking commissioner's office.

Delay after delay occurred in the trial of the two men, who were released under bond. They faced a jury in December, 1925, and on the 18th day a verdict of guilty was returned. Sentence was passed in February after motions for new trials were overruled. In the interim, the case has been pending before the state supreme court of appeals.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Senator Tom Walsh of Montana is a bit too old to play Hamlet.

It's an infinite pity. He was made for the part, physically and mentally.

Observe him, enroute from his quarters in the Senate Office Building to the Capitol, to "start something."

WALSH

He has a thin, highly intelligent, ascetic, hatchet face, with a very wide, lofty forehead. He's profoundly abstracted. He doesn't see the people he's passing. He scowls introspectively. His mouth is bitter. If he'd lived, Hamlet would have had just such a physiognomy at 67.

Walsh is a slight, smallish individual, but acting, like a swordsman, same as Hamlet. He strides briskly. He's on his way to skewer somebody and is in a hurry to get there, as Hamlet would have been.

He's extremely spruce, in black cutaway, pearl gray throusers and patent leathers. Hamlet was a dandy.

Walsh drips gloom, pessim'sm. He never smiles. He never jokes. He can't see anything funny in other folks' jokes. His mission is vengeance and he can't waste a minute on anything else until he's wreaked it.

If he ever had a sense of humor it's atrophied.

Yes, Walsh was on his way to skewer somebody.

It was the opening day of the short session of the 69th congress and it was his purpose to make the first speech and raise the first hades of the occasion—to usher in the session with a demand for the investigation of charges made against Arthur R. Gould, new Republican senator from Maine, in the recent campaign in that state.

He made his speech, he raised his hades and the senate adopted his investgation resolution.

Walsh settled back in his seat contentedly. He didn't smile but he looked satisfied. He had pointed to something which may possibly prove to be rotten in the state of Denmark.

As an instigator of troublesome investigations, Senator Jim Reed of Missouri is the only member of the upper house of congress in a class with Senator Walsh.

Reed, however, is a different type from Walsh.

Reed investigates largely in a spirit of pure mischief. He likes to get a witness on toast and have fun with him. He's a witty senator. His wit has a good deal of malice in it and a good deal of partisanship, but he can see a joke's point, even when it's at his expense, and get a laugh out of it.

To Walsh an investigation is a painful thing. He's sorry there's so much wickedness in the world. He regrets that the opposition party can't play honest politics, as his party does, in his opinion. He considers it his duty to expose wrongdoing and he goes ahead and exposes as much as he can of it, but he doesn't get any enjoyment out of it. At any rate, he doesn't get the same kind that Senator Reed does.

France Passing New Laws for Curbing Power of Landlords

PARIS.—American as well as other foreign holders of real estate in France cannot evict French tenants who occupy their property for "personal habitation or for commercial, industrial or agricultural purposes" under the terms of an amendment to the financial bill coming before the French Chamber soon.

The amendment already has been approved by the finance committee, but still has to go through parliament before it becomes a law. The law now allows French landlords to exercise the right of eviction in certain circumstances.

We used to wonder what became of all the dull boys and girls after they left school, but lately we've begun to suspect that a good many of them are drifting into vaudeville.—Columbus Dispatch.

PARIS.—American as well as other foreign holders of real estate in France cannot evict French tenants who occupy their property for "personal habitation or for commercial, industrial or agricultural purposes" under the terms of an amendment to the financial bill coming before the French Chamber soon.

The amendment already has been approved by the finance committee, but still has to go through parliament before it becomes a law. The law now allows French landlords to exercise the right of eviction in certain circumstances.

We used to wonder what became of all the dull boys and girls after they left school, but lately we've begun to suspect that a good many of them are drifting into vaudeville.—Columbus Dispatch.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Senator Tom Walsh of Montana is a bit too old to play Hamlet.

It's an infinite pity. He was made for the part, physically and mentally.

WALSH

He has a thin, highly intelligent, ascetic, hatchet face, with a very wide, lofty forehead. He's profoundly abstracted. He doesn't see the people he's passing. He scowls introspectively. His mouth is bitter. If he'd lived, Hamlet would have had just such a physiognomy at 67.

Walsh is a slight, smallish individual, but acting, like a swordsman, same as Hamlet. He strides briskly. He's on his way to skewer somebody and is in a hurry to get there, as Hamlet would have been.

He's extremely spruce, in black cutaway, pearl gray throusers and patent leathers. Hamlet was a dandy.

Walsh drips gloom, pessimism. He never smiles. He never jokes. He can't see anything funny in other folks' jokes. His mission is vengeance and he can't waste a minute on anything else until he's wreaked it.

If he ever had a sense of humor it's atrophied.

Yes, Walsh was on his way to skewer somebody.

It was the opening day of the short session of the 69th congress and it was his purpose to make the first speech and raise the first hades of the occasion—to usher in the session with a demand for the investigation of charges made against Arthur R. Gould, new Republican senator from Maine, in the recent campaign in that state.

He made his speech, he raised his hades and the senate adopted his investgation resolution.

Walsh settled back in his seat contentedly. He didn't smile but he looked satisfied. He had pointed to something which may possibly prove to be rotten in the state of Denmark.

As an instigator of troublesome investigations, Senator Jim Reed of Missouri is the only member of the upper house of congress in a class with Senator Walsh.

Reed, however, is a different type from Walsh.

Reed investigates largely in a spirit of pure mischief. He likes to get a witness on toast and have fun with him. He's a witty senator. His wit has a good deal of malice in it and a good deal of partisanship, but he can see a joke's point, even when it's at his expense, and get a laugh out of it.

To Walsh an investigation is a painful thing. He's sorry there's so much wickedness in the world. He regrets that the opposition party can't play honest politics, as his party does, in his opinion. He considers it his duty to expose wrongdoing and he goes ahead and exposes as much as he can of it, but he doesn't get any enjoyment out of it. At any rate, he doesn't get the same kind that Senator Reed does.

Today's definition: monolog—a conversation between a man and his wife.—Canton News.

This report was forwarded today and shows the following:

Brick—53.40 on state system; 26.84 on county; total, 80.24.

Asphaltic concrete—1.17 on state; total, 1.17.

Asphaltic concrete willite method—1.41 county; total 1.41.

There has been a marked increase in the concrete roads in the last year and a marked decrease in brick and macadam and all classes of asphaltic roads.

In the matter of county line road one-half of the mileage on these roads is credited to this county, the remaining half to adjoining counties.

CLUB SUGGESTS CLEAR CROSSING

The Youngstown & Ohio River Railroad company is to be petitioned by the county commissioners to have both north and south bound cars "clear" all intercounty highway crossings before stopping to permit the discharge or receipt of passengers.

This proposition was placed before the commissioners by the county automobile club, the latter asking that the commissioners use their friendly office in having the carrier issue such instructions to its trainmen.

Reports of near wrecks and cars being ditched because cars did not clear crossings when stopping caused the automobile club to lay the proposition before the commissioners.

Made Party Defendant.

On his own motion, C. A. Shaffer has been made a party defendant in the action for receivership filed in common pleas court by Frank G. Jones, doing business as the Ohio Valley Oil company, and against M. G. Martin and Ray Kaul, partners, and doing a coal business at East Liverpool.

The court appointed a receiver on the original petition last week.

Leave To File Granted.

Leave to file an answer and cross petition has been granted the defendant in the case of Edward Wardles against James Pugie. This action is for the recovery of $500 claimed to be due the plaintiff as damages as a result of an automobile accident. The answer and cross petition can be filed immediately.

icies which make social, educational, and religious institutions ultimate beneficiaries. Those whose business it is to help the safeguarding and protecting influences of husband and father to care for widow and children after death, can also help graduates and friends of a college to benefit it either directly or by letting remainders, after life interests have been served, come to it."

The advance in the cost of living has affected the churches, hospitals, orphanages, old people's homes, etc., in the same way it has individuals. It is figured that it now costs from two two three times as much to maintain one person in a home for the aged as it did 25 years ago. Hospitals are constantly emphasizing the increased cost of operation.

A member of the pension board of one of the large Protestant denominations in one city says that their fund must be increased from eight million to fifteen or twenty million. This sounds like a tremendous sum, and of course it is. When it is considered, however, that the number of persons who must be pensioned under the eight million dollar fund makes the amount available to each only about $300 a year, it can be seen readily that the need for more money is very real. Twenty-five years ago $300 a year was sufficient for an old person to live in some degree of comfort, but now it would not go far even if used frugally.

Individual institutions make drives for funds with more or less success but for the most part there appears always to be less money available than that needed to carry on the work in an adequate fashion. If enough people can be persuaded to insure their lives for the benefit of such institutions this may be one solution of the problem. As has been said before, no doubt there are many who would be glad to pay out a moderate such each year so that in time a substantial amount might be paid to a particular institution or organization in which they were interested.

The first Request Week began yesterday and whether it will be the forerunner of an annual event depends largely upon the way in which the idea is received by the public.

ROAD REPORT IS SUBMITTED

County Surveyor Files Date With State Highway Officials.

CLUB SUGGESTS CLEAR CROSSING

The Youngstown & Ohio River Railroad company is to be petitioned by the county commissioners to have both north and south bound cars "clear" all intercounty highway crossings before stopping to permit the discharge or receipt of passengers.

This proposition was placed before the commissioners by the county automobile club, the latter asking that the commissioners use their friendly office in having the carrier issue such instructions to its trainmen.

Reports of near wrecks and cars being ditched because cars did not clear crossings when stopping caused the automobile club to lay the proposition before the commissioners.

The court appointed a receiver on the original petition last week.

icies which make social, educational, and religious institutions ultimate beneficiaries. Those whose business it is to help the safeguarding and protecting influences of husband and father to care for widow and children after death, can also help graduates and friends of a college to benefit it either directly or by letting remainders, after life interests have been served, come to it."

The advance in the cost of living has affected the churches, hospitals, orphanages, old people's homes, etc., in the same way it has individuals. It is figured that it now costs from two two three times as much to maintain one person in a home for the aged as it did 25 years ago. Hospitals are constantly emphasizing the increased cost of operation.

A member of the pension board of one of the large Protestant denominations in one city says that their fund must be increased from eight million to fifteen or twenty million. This sounds like a tremendous sum, and of course it is. When it is considered, however, that the number of persons who must be pensioned under the eight million dollar fund makes the amount available to each only about $300 a year, it can be seen readily that the need for more money is very real. Twenty-five years ago $300 a year was sufficient for an old person to live in some degree of comfort, but now it would not go far even if used frugally.

Individual institutions make drives for funds with more or less success but for the most part there appears always to be less money available than that needed to carry on the work in an adequate fashion. If enough people can be persuaded to insure their lives for the benefit of such institutions this may be one solution of the problem. As has been said before, no doubt there are many who would be glad to pay out a moderate such each year so that in time a substantial amount might be paid to a particular institution or organization in which they were interested.

The first Bequest Week began yesterday and whether it will be the forerunner of an annual event depends largely upon the way in which the idea is received by the public.

icies which make social, educational, and religious institutions ultimate beneficiaries. Those whose business it is to help the safeguarding and protecting influences of husband and father to care for widow and children after death, can also help graduates and friends of a college to benefit it either directly or by letting remainders, after life interests have been served, come to it."

The advance in the cost of living has affected the churches, hospitals, orphanages, old people's homes, etc., in the same way it has individuals. It is figured that it now costs from two two three times as much to maintain one person in a home for the aged as it did 25 years ago. Hospitals are constantly emphasizing the increased cost of operation.

A member of the pension board of one of the large Protestant denominations in one city says that their fund must be increased from eight million to fifteen or twenty million. This sounds like a tremendous sum, and of course it is. When it is considered, however, that the number of persons who must be pensioned under the eight million dollar fund makes the amount available to each only about $300 a year, it can be seen readily that the need for more money is very real. Twenty-five years ago $300 a year was sufficient for an old person to live in some degree of comfort, but now it would not go far even if used frugally.

Individual institutions make drives for funds with more or less success but for the most part there appears always to be less money available than that needed to carry on the work in an adequate fashion. If enough people can be persuaded to insure their lives for the benefit of such institutions this may be one solution of the problem. As has been said before, no doubt there are many who would be glad to pay out a moderate such each year so that in time a substantial amount might be paid to a particular institution or organization in which they were interested.

The first Bequest Week began yesterday and whether it will be the forerunner of an annual event depends largely upon the way in which the idea is received by the public.

British Engineers Win Over German Builders For Buenos Aires Tubes

LONDON.—A victory for British over German engineering is claimed as the result of the concession to a British group for the construction of a tube railroad in Buenos Aires. Over $50,000,000 will be expended in Britain for materials alone.

Not for fifteen years has such an engineering concession been secured in South America by British industries. It came as result of terrific contest between those engaged in the British electrical industry and German and other industries in South America.

During the past twenty years, German interests have secured almost a monopoly of electric light, power and tramway operations in South America, while other big German concerns have secured huge contracts for various public works.

This has largely been the result of the active assistance of German banks, who have supported the manufacturers throughout, while British industrialists have hitherto relied on individual efforts. On the present occasion the British interests made a concerted drive and it is stated that the people of Buenos Aires are enthusiastic of the plans submitted to them.

W. C. FIELDS IN COMEDY ROLE

Alice Joyce Also Featured in Ceramic Film.

The story of a glazier which can be seen through and laughed at! That's W. C. Fields' latest Paramount starring comedy, "So's Your Old Man," which opened at the Ceramic last night. Fields, long a favorite on the stage and rapidly developing into a screen comic of the first water, has more than hit his stride.

This picture, adapted from Julian Street's O. Henry Memorial Prize Short Story, "Mr. Bisbee's Princess," is the very human tale of one Samuel Bisbee, glazier and village character of Waukeagus. The despair of his wife and daughter, he has invented an unbreakable glass windshield which he hopes will make their fortune.

At a big convention, he displays his wares but picks on the wrong windshield. Taking deliberate aim at what he believes to be his own car, a brick flies through the air and causes a fusillade of flying glass. He tries again and again, but doesn't succeed in finding the right windshield. As a result of his failure, Sam has to resort to the efforts of his feet in endeavoring to catch a train.

On board, he is accidentally thrown into contact with a beautiful Princess. They compare notes and she promises to look him up if she should ever arrive in Waukegus. 'Snuff said. Unknown to Bisbee, a neighbor witnesses this and immediately spreads the rumor of impending scandal when she arrives home. Afraid to see his wife, he hides at a friend's house. Then the Princess comes to town! As do complications, laughs and trouble!

"So's Your Old Man" is unreservedly recommended as good light entertainment. Alice Joyce and Charles Rogers are featured. Gregory La Cava, director of the last three Richard Dix successes, directed.

THE NAME TELLS A TRUE STORY

The very name, Foley's Horey and Tar Compound, tells why, without opiates or chloroform, it is so quickly effective in stopping coughs and in healing the distressing cause. Because it alone combines the curative virtues of pure Pine Tar and other healing ingredients, together with the mollifying demulcent effects of clear fresh Honey. From 651 E. 46th St., Chicago, comes this: "A stubborn cough worried me, kept me awake nights, and resisted other cough medicines, but quickly yielded to your good Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. My druggist recommended it." Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

DEAR FRIENDS:

December 14, 1926.

Well, there's just 9 more shopping days until Christmas. I can see right now that they're going to be busy days for us, too.

I'm getting a big thrill out of it.

For instance, I know a little lady who is going to be made happy with a new wrist watch; I know a man who will find a beautiful cigarette case in his stocking on Christmas morning; I know a wife who will get a whole chest of silverware.

Can't tell you their names, of course. But don't you hope it's you?

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. DEAR FRIENDS:

December 14, 1926.

Well, there's just 9 more shopping days until Christmas. I can see right now that they're going to be busy days for us, too.

I'm getting a big thrill out of it.

For instance, I know a little lady who is going to be made happy with a new wrist watch; I know a man who will find a beautiful cigarette case in his stocking on Christmas morning; I know a wife who will get a whole chest of silverware.

Can't tell you their names, of course. But don't you hope it's you?

G. O. P. HOUSE MEMBERS-ELECT TO ORGANIZE

SENATE PARLEY

State Legislature Will Convene on January 3.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 14.—Republican house members-elect were to meet here this afternoon in caucus and nominate a speaker, majority floor leader, clerk, sergeant-at-arms, parliamentarian and other assistants.

Nominations are equivalent to election, which will take place during the organization of the lower legislative branch when the state legislature convenes here in regular biennial session on Monday, January 3.

The Republican state senators-elect will caucus here Friday and nominate their slate of officials.

Candidates for the speakership include Representatives-elect O. C. Gary, Cadiz banker; E. H. Kreuger, Cleveland, second termer, and John T. Brown, Mechanicsburg, farmer. In event that a deadlock between this trio developes, house members today hinted that a dark horse may win.

Representatives-elect Martin S. Dodd, Toledo; C. E. Knepp, Medina, third termer; Dallas Sullivan, Union county, and Earle Stewart, Ironton, fourth termer, are candidates for majority floor leader.

House Clerk John P. Maynard, Lima; Dr. Alfred Robinson, Ironton, sergeant-at-arms, and Edward Hughes, parliamentarian, are expected to be renominated.

British Engineers Win Over German Builders For Buenos Aires Tubes

LONDON.—A victory for British over German engineering is claimed as the result of the concession to a British group for the construction of a tube railroad in Buenos Aires. Over $50,000,000 will be expended in Britain for materials alone.

Not for fifteen years has such an engineering concession been secured in South America by British industries. It came as result of terrific contest between those engaged in the British electrical industry and German and other industries in South America.

During the past twenty years, German interests have secured almost a monopoly of electric light, power and tramway operations in South America, while other big German concerns have secured huge contracts for various public works.

This has largely been the result of the active assistance of German banks, who have supported the manufacturers throughout, while British industrialists have hitherto relied on individual efforts. On the present occasion the British interests made a concerted drive and it is stated that the people of Buenos Aires are enthusiastic of the plans submitted to them.

The Community Bank will loan you money to pay your taxes.

W. C. FIELDS IN COMEDY ROLE

Alice Joyce Also Featured in Ceramic Film.

The story of a glazier which can be seen through and laughed at! That's W. C. Fields' latest Paramount starring comedy, "So's Your Old Man," which opened at the Ceramic last night. Fields, long a favorite on the stage and rapidly developing into a screen comic of the first water, has more than hit his stride.

This picture, adapted from Julian Street's O. Henry Memorial Prize Short Story, "Mr. Bisbee's Princess," is the very human tale of one Samuel Bisbee, glazier and village character of Waukeagus. The despair of his wife and daughter, he has invented an unbreakable glass windshield which he hopes will make their fortune.

At a big convention, he displays his wares but picks on the wrong windshield. Taking deliberate aim at what he believes to be his own car, a brick flies through the air and causes a fusillade of flying glass. He tries again and again, but doesn't succeed in finding the right windshield. As a result of his failure, Sam has to resort to the efforts of his feet in endeavoring to catch a train.

On board, he is accidentally thrown into contact with a beautiful Princess. They compare notes and she promises to look him up if she should ever arrive in Waukegus. 'Snuff said. Unknown to Bisbee, a neighbor witnesses this and immediately spreads the rumor of impending scandal when she arrives home. Afraid to see his wife, he hides at a friend's house. Season Tickets For High Games To Go On Sale Wednesday

Full Period Strips Will Be Offered To Court Game Patrons

Fans May Purchase Seats for Each of Team's Eleven Home Games at One Transaction; at Slight Reduction Under Single Game Cost.

"Get your high school basketball tickets early and get them in season strips if you want to take advantage of bargain prices that accompany the full period pasteboards," is the tip offered by Faculty Manager Decker today, as he announces plans for the sale of cage admissions for 1926-27 contests in which Coach Lorah's Blue and White quint will figure.

Season tickets for the coming campaign will be placed on sale on Wednesday night at 7 o'clock in the main office in the high school building.

The ticket sale then will be continued on Thursday evening and, if there should happen to be any left, these will be offered on Tuesday night of next week.

The sale will be held at night, Manager Decker announces, in order that everyone will have an equal chance to get their applications in.

The season pasteboards will be disposed of at $5.00 and for that amount, fans will purchase seats for each of the eleven home contests on the schedule, which will bea t the rate of a fraction of a cent more than 45 cents for each game.

Single admission reserve seats will be sold before each game at 50 cents each and general admission will go at 35 cents.

The season tickets also include the games in which the Reserves play when arranged as preliminaries to high school contests. However, Manager Decker explains, special charge will be made when the Reserves are in action on the local court and the varsity squad is away.

HINT $10,000 PAY BOOST FOR JUDGE LANDIS

Major Leaguers Will Put O. K. on His Regime.

$60,000 SALARY

Baseball Czar Will be Named for Seven Year Term.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Unqualified endorsement of the Landis regime and an advance in the judge's salary by a matter of $10,000 a year was the tip in circulation today on the outcome of the major league baseball meetings, starting simultaneously in New York and Chicago.

The action in question, it was inferred, would not be taken because the judge was loved for himself alone. It was to be forced, they said, by fear of public opinion, which might become adverse in the event that the judge stood on his dignity and feet long enough to walk out on the deal. This would give the unfortunate impression of baseball being unable to tolerate a sincere regime.

The nomination of the judge for another term of seven years at $60,000 a year is supposed to come from a National league owner. An American leaguer, it was said, woud second the nomination and then there was to be nothing to it except to count the contrary vote of Phil Ball. Philip is a Johnson man to the death.

Publicly, he is the only club owner who is adverse to Landis. Privately and strictly sub rosa, there are several such in both leagues; at least, up to and including the matter of Landis' aribtrary powers. The boys may not mind being kicked into line on occasions but they object to paying for the privilege.

However, it is understood that the judge will not permit any weakening of his position by tampering with the major league agreement. So there seems to be nothing for it except for the boys to smile bravely through their tears.

The judge's contract seems to be the only matter of real moment to be considered, unless a few managers lose all self-control and pull a deal or two out of the hat. A few of the possibilities have been aired during recent weeks. Fumigation might have been better at that.

However, there seems to be some basis for the belief that the Yankees and White Sox may do business over Aaron Ward during the Chicago meting. The Yanks are said to have asked for Ted Lyons, causing the Sox to ask for smelling salts. The trade, if consumated, may be carried through on the basis of Ward and a pitcher for Hollis Thurston.

On this end, the proposed deal of the Boston Braves for Bill Terry, of the Giants, may mature. The Giants are said to want Joe Genewich in return and it may be that they will get him. Brooklyn also has declared itself in favor of Burleigh Grimes' departure. Burleigh is a good, smart pitcher but so far the silence among the bidders has been deafening. The 39-year-old Wheat also has been declared on the block without causing any great loss of life in the stampede for the gentleman's service.

Dreyfuss Assails Baseball "Farms" at Big League Meet

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—Big league club owners were characterized as "a bunch of hypocrites" because they preached the draft but practiced the maintenance of "farms," in a statement made by Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, before the National league meeting convened today. Dreyfuss said he planned to fight against minor league farms at the joint meeting in Chicago this week, declaring the system to be unfair to other owners and to minor league players.

His principal complaint seemed to be against the St. Louis Cardinals, which he said owned six minor league clubs.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

When you reach for the golf ball, in the address, you are almost certain to develop the habit of slicing, unless by some miracle you acquire the knack of somehow offsetting the falling—forward habit you are almost certain to get into. Keep that in mind: A reach for the ball in the address invariably means falling forward, toward the ball in the forward swing. This often causes the club to dig into the ground just back of the ball or, if the ball is hit, the heel of the club takes it and a slice results. In the stance and address stand just far enough from the ball so that the arms are clear off the body and the clubhead rests back of the ball without the slightest tendency on your part to reach for it. How far your arms clear your body is determined by the stoop you use. If you stoop greatly, the arms should be considerably out from the body, but still they should not reach for the ball. It is better to stand more erect, as this permits the easiest turning of the body.

Variety of Nom De Plumes To Be Sported By County League Teams

The Mullins, Quakers, Paragons, the Elks, Boosters and Scholastics—they're not baby foods, nor inhabitants of a menagerie—but six of the eight amateur basketball teams that will battle in the first Columbiana county circuit of its kind.

The Salem entry will show its wares under the name of the Salem Mullins Body Corporation and is figured as one of the strong combines of the recently formed loop.

The Quakers will win or lose for Damascus, whose historical data brings to the floor squad the name it will wear against county rivals.

If the East Palestine contingent, which opens the home schedule for the East Liverpool five Friday night at the high school manage; to show the ability of which north countains are boasting, it might be said of them, with a change or so in Shakespeare's orginal remark: "They have achieved a game that paragons description and wild fame." The East Palestine Paragons, with a bevy of good material, are counting on a big year.

The Elks are East Liverpool's own and while wearing the purple and white of the lodge will attempt to bring cage glory to the Ceramic City under the direction of Coach Bill Powell, old Central League star.

The Columbiana passers will be known as the "Boosters." If advance reports, which indicate that Hawkins, all around athlete, and several other of the former Miller Brothers five came into the fold, are true, Columbianans will have something worth boosting.

The Salineville and Wellsville quints, which probably will sally forth under those names, complete the list.

Tip from President.

Granting, of course, that attendance warrants, the league is certain to be a success if it is maintained and operated in the same spirit as that in which it was organized, in the opinion of Charles "Dim" Zange, of this city, who is president of the circuit.

It must be kept on an amateur basis, with high salaried players barred.

"The game for the game's sake" is the keynote.

Team Managers Busy.

Team managers have been kept busy for the last two weeks but will take a back seat the latter part of the week, as the schedule gets under way, and let the players do the work. The county league was organized in record time and the success in these preliminary plans was due entirely to the initiative and hard work of the managers. This delegation includes: Ray Adams, of the East Liverpool Elks; C. C. Roher, of Columbiana; Ralph Addison, of Salineville; Leroy Allen, of Salem; George Davis, of Wellsville; Stewart Orndorff, of East Palestine; B. M. Sullivan, of Lisbon, and A. F. Bye, of Damascus.

HINT $10,000 PAY BOOST FOR JUDGE LANDIS

Major Leaguers Will Put O. K. on His Regime.

$60,000 SALARY

Baseball Czar Will be Named for Seven Year Term.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Unqualified endorsement of the Landis regime and an advance in the judge's salary by a matter of $10,000 a year was the tip in circulation today on the outcome of the major league baseball meetings, starting simultaneously in New York and Chicago.

The action in question, it was inferred, would not be taken because the judge was loved for himself alone. It was to be forced, they said, by fear of public opinion, which might become adverse in the event that the judge stood on his dignity and feet long enough to walk out on the deal. This would give the unfortunate impression of baseball being unable to tolerate a sincere regime.

The nomination of the judge for another term of seven years at $60,000 a year is supposed to come from a National league owner. An American leaguer, it was said, would second the nomination and then there was to be nothing to it except to count the contrary vote of Phil Bali. Philip is a Johnson man to the death.

Publicly, he is the only club owner who is adverse to Landis. Privately and strictly sub rosa, there are several such in both leagues; at least, up to and including the matter of Landis' aribtrary powers. The boys may not mind being kicked into line on occasions but they object to paying for the privilege.

However, it is understood that the judge will not permit any weakening of his position by tampering with the major league agreement. So there seems to be nothing for it except for the boys to smile bravely through their tears.

The judge's contract seems to be the only matter of real moment to be considered, unless a few managers lose all self-control and pull a deal or two out of the hat. A few of the possibilities have been aired during recent weeks. Fumigation might have been better at that.

However, there seems to be some basis for the belief that the Yankees and White Sox may do business over Aaron Ward during the Chicago meting. The Yanks are said to have asked for Ted Lyons, causing the Sox to ask for smelling salts. The trade, if consumated, may be carried through on the basis of Ward and a pitcher for Hollis Thurston.

On this end, the proposed deal of the Boston Braves for Bill Terry, of the Giants, may mature. The Giants are said to want Joe Genewich in return and it may be that they will get him. Brooklyn also has declared itself in favor of Burleigh Grimes' departure. Burleigh is a good, smart pitcher but so far the silence among the bidders has been deafening. The 39-year-old Wheat also has been declared on the block without causing any great loss of life in the stampede for the gentleman's service.

Dreyfuss Assails Baseball "Farms" at Big League Meet

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—Big league club owners were characterized as "a bunch of hypocrites" because they preached the draft but practiced the maintenance of "farms," in a statement made by Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, before the National league meeting convened today. Dreyfuss said he planned to fight against minor league farms at the joint meeting in Chicago this week, declaring the system to be unfair to other owners and to minor league players.

His principal complaint seemed to be against the St. Louis Cardinals, which he said owned six minor league clubs.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

When you reach for the golf ball, in the address, you are almost certain to develop the habit of slicing, unless by some miracle you acquire the knack of somehow offsetting the falling—forward habit you are almost certain to get into. Keep that in mind: A reach for the ball in the address invariably means falling forward, toward the ball in the forward swing. This often causes the club to dig into the ground just back of the ball or, if the ball is hit, the heel of the club takes it and a slice results. In the stance and address stand just far enough from the ball so that the arms are clear off the body and the clubhead rests back of the ball without the slightest tendency on your part to reach for it. How far your arms clear your body is determined by the stoop you use. If you stoop greatly, the arms should be considerably out from the body, but still they should not reach for the ball. It is better to stand more erect, as this permits the easiest turning of the body.

Variety of Nom De Plumes To Be Sported By County League Teams

The Mullins, Quakers, Paragons, the Elks, Boosters and Scholastics—they're not baby foods, nor inhabitants of a menagerie—but six of the eight amateur basketball teams that will battle in the first Columbiana county circuit of its kind.

The Salem entry will show its wares under the name of the Salem Mullins Body Corporation and is figured as one of the strong combines of the recently formed loop.

The Quakers will win or lose for Damascus, whose historical data brings to the floor squad the name it will wear against county rivals.

If the East Palestine contingent, which opens the home schedule for the East Liverpool five Friday night at the high school manage; to show the ability of which north countains are boasting, it might be said of them, with a change or so in Shakespeare's orginal remark: "They have achieved a game that paragens description and wild fame." The East Palestine Paragons, with a bevy of good material, are counting on a big year.

The Elks are East Liverpool's own and while wearing the purple and white of the lodge will attempt to bring cage glory to the Ceramic City under the direction of Coach Bill Powell, old Central League star.

The Columbiana passers will be known as the "Boosters." If advance reports, which indicate that Hawkins, all around athlete, and several other of the former Miller Brothers five came into the fold, are true, Columbianans will have something worth boosting.

The Salineville and Wellsville quints, which probably will sally forth under those names, complete the list.

Tip from President.

Granting, of course, that attendance warrants, the league is certain to be a success if it is maintained and operated in the same spirit as that in which it was organized, in the opinion of Charles "Dim" Zange, of this city, who is president of the circuit.

It must be kept on an amateur basis, with high salaried players barred.

"The game for the game's sake" is the keynote.

Team Managers Busy.

Team managers have been kept busy for the last two weeks but will take a back seat the latter part of the week, as the schedule gets under way, and let the players do the work. The county league was organized in record time and the success in these preliminary plans was due entirely to the initiative and hard work of the managers. This delegation includes: Ray Adams, of the East Liverpool Elks; C. C. Roher, of Columbiana; Ralph Addison, of Salineville; Leroy Allen, of Salem; George Davis, of Wellsville; Stewart Orndorff, of East Palestine; B. M. Sullivan, of Lisbon, and A. F. Bye, of Damascus.

High School's Gridiron Star Was a Husband

FINDLAY, O., Dec. 14.—You seldom hear of a high school football player being married, but Findlay had one this past season in Captain Hollice Plotts, 19 years old, a tackle. Plotts played three years on the Findlay high football squad. He played tackle on the undefeated eleven of 1925. He will graduate next June. His wife was on the sidelines at every game this fall.

McGraw Knocks Out Johnny Rocco in Jersey City Fight

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 14.—Phil McGraw, spectacular lightweight from Detroit, had added to his prestige today by virtue of his clean victory over Johnny Rocco, of New Rochelle, in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

A terrific right to the heart floored Rocco in the fourth, and the New Rochelle fighter failed to arise until after the count of ten. The early knockout was somewhat of a surprise, as the bout had been fast and furious from the start. Rocco had successfully ducked McGraw's ferocious right from the beginning, and had given good blows in return.

Of last year's team, which faced a schedule of seven hard games in 10 days before the championship was won, only two players remain. Bison Passers Again Will Make Strong Bid for Tri-State Title

Schedule Being Arranged is One of Stiffest Green and White Five Has Ever Undertaken.

BETHANY, W. Va., Dec. 14—Having fully appreciated the rest since the close of the football season, the athletes of Bethany college, under Coach Furman L. Nuss and Captain Leland R. Beckwith of Buffalo, N. Y., will now turn to basketball. For the last thre years; in fact, ever since the Bisons defeated one of W. & J.'s greatest teams in 1925, holding the Washingtonians scoreless the first half of the game, Bethany has been noted for crack floor teams.

Since entering the Tri-State Conference, although they have never won the championship honors, the small West Virginia institution has ever presented a strong and formidable front against all of her opponents. Last year, when the Bisons for a time looked like possible winners of the conference, injuries to Captain Hanna and Hamill put a crimp in their chances, and the Bisons were forced to bite the dust at the hands of Duquesne by a margin of one point. This defeat practically eliminated the Green and White from the running, as Geneva later scored a 30-27 coin over the Bison Herd at Beaver Falls.

Coach Nuss has been looking over his material for this year with more interest than ever, as he feels that the football season which the Buffalo Creekers have just enjoyed is only the starting point of a great year in athletics at Bethany College. The schedule being arranged by Director of Athletics, C. V. Elder, is one of the stiffest a Green and White five has ever undertaken, but from all appearances, Coach Nuss' charges will undoubtedly come thru as expected.

In Captain Beckwith, the Bisons have a leader who has seen regular service on the Bethany varsity for two years, and around whom the Bison Mentor is expected to build a team comparable to any of those in the past, representing this institution.

Radio announcers are pestered with "mash notes" but it's easy for them to give the authors "the air."—Defiance Crescent-News.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

THE willingness of Dan Howley, new manager of the St. Louis Browns, to have George Sisler, deposed pilot, continue as a member of the team and as first baseman of the outfit presents an interesting situation.

First of all it indicates that Sisler puts baseball and his desire to win in the game above his own personal pride. It is not easy for a manager to step down into the ranks and watch another man wield the reins he once held.

Secondly it shows that Howley is not afraid of the presence of the former manager on the team—not a bit afraid that there will be a conflict in judgment at times and a wavering of the players between two loyalties.

Howley is "big" as men go He realizes that Sisler was handicapped in one way or another all of the time he manged the St. Louis club. More than anything Sisler was handicapped by his lack of experience in handling men. Through his college days Sisler didn't have to formulate and direct his team's play at Michigan. Sisler was virtually the team. No effort was needed, by the same token, to get from each member of the team the same measure of loyalty to the captain and the team.

Sisler, at St. Louis, found himself faced suddenly with the necessity of making a couple of dozen ball players appreciate the fact that he was not only their boss but able to teach them the tricks of the trade.

Howley has had the experience—has filled every position in baseball, so to speak. And he can handle men.

He is confident that he can handle the team Sisler had—with Sisler as one of the rank and file.

Murray Prepares For Battle Monday With 'Fargo Express'

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Lee Murray, English lightweight managed by Billy Gibson, will arrive in Chicago today to train for his fight with Billy Petrolle, the "Fargo Express" at Milwaukee next Monday night. After a hard day's work in a local gym, Murray will entrain for the scene of battle.

JACK DELANEY TO QUIT THRONE

Will be Contender for Heavyweight Crown.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Jack Delaney will resign as light heavyweight champion of the world within two months in order to fight, without official handicaps, as a legitimate contender for the heavyweight title.

This was the good word in circulation today and boxing men of national repute vouched for its accuracy. They declared that Delaney's action will be forced upon him in order to evade the curse of one of those New York state athletic commission edicts which would send him into the ring against Gene Tunney weighing not more than 175 pounds, under pain of disqualification. The commission already has established this precedent by ordaining that no champion may fight out of his class in this state except at the weight at which his title was won.

With the heavyweight sweepstakes promising a golden harvest for all concerned, the light heavyweight title would be worth no such sacrifice to Delaney.

The title itself, outside of this fact, would prove little encumbrance, it was said, since Delaney was smart enough to laugh off a title defense for six months, as a result of his workout with Jamaica Kid at Waterbury, Conn., last week.

Both of the principals made 175 pounds for the match; therefore, it must go down in the book as a title bout, leaving Delaney to his own devices for the next six months. In brief, he no longer can be confronted by some sap who wishes to battle him for the light heavyweight title at a time when the young man will be absorbed with the heavyweight problems.

However, even this strategy will not be sufficiently effective to make the light heavyweight title worth its burden, they say. The answer is found in the action taken some time ago by the New York commission in ordering Paul Berlenbach, then champion, to weigh 175 pounds or abandon his idea of fighting Johnny Risko, a heavyweight. The board was so pleased with the idea that they made it apply to champions in all classes. It still applies—for the reason that the commission's last guess is always its best.

Of course, Delaney could avoid the edict by fighting his heavyweights in Jersey. This would be an easy out, if it wasn't for the fact that Rickard and Fugazy, the leading promoters, have leases on the two ball parks in New York and I presume they mean to use them.

Rickard has a Jersey site but Delaney isn't his man, anyhow, and says he won't be.

Fugazy will bring Delaney and Jack Sharkey together before February or break a bicep in the attempt. By that time, Delaney, who is alleged to have weighed less than 173 pounds the other night, may be well above the 175 pound class at his natural weight. He won't want to meet Sharkey at any other; therefore, they say the light heavyweight title must be cast off, at least for the time being.

Anyhow that woman swimmer who insists on wearing nothing more than a coat of axle grease in the Pacific race doesn't intend to "muddy the water."—Zanesville Signal.

High School's Gridiron Star Was a Husband

PLOTTS

FINDLAY, O., Dec. 14.—You seldom hear of a high school football player being married, but Findlay had one this past season in Captain Hollice Plotts, 19 years old, a tackle. The announcement that he had married Carolyn Irvina Benner, of Findlay, in Covington, Ky., on August 31, was made just a few days ago.

Plotts played three years on the Findlay high football squad. He played tackle on the undefeated eleven of 1925. He will graduate next June. His wife was on the sidelines at every game this fall.

McGraw Knocks Out Johnny Rocco in Jersey City Fight

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 14.—Phil McGraw, spectacular lightweight from Detroit, had added to his prestige today by virtue of his clean victory over Johnny Rocco, of New Rochelle, in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

A terrific right to the heart floored Rocco in the fourth, and the New Rochelle fighter failed to arise until after the count of ten. The early knockout was somewhat of a surprise, as the bout had been fast and furious from the start. Rocco had successfully ducked McGraw's ferocious right from the beginning, and had given good blows in return.

High School's Gridiron Star Was a Husband

FINDLAY, O., Dec. 14.—You seldom hear of a high school football player being married, but Findlay had one this past season in Captain Hollice Plotts, 19 years old, a tackle. The announcement that he had married Carolyn Irvina Benner, of Findlay, in Covington, Ky., on August 31, was made just a few days ago.

PLOTTS

Plotts played three years on the Findlay high football squad. He played tackle on the undefeated eleven of 1925. He will graduate next June. His wife was on the sidelines at every game this fall.

McGraw Knocks Out Johnny Rocco in Jersey City Fight

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 14.—Phil McGraw, spectacular lightweight from Detroit, had added to his prestige today by virtue of his clean victory over Johnny Rocco, of New Rochelle, in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

A terrific right to the heart floored Rocco in the fourth, and the New Rochelle fighter failed to arise until after the count of ten. The early knockout was somewhat of a surprise, as the bout had been fast and furious from the start. Rocco had successfully ducked McGraw's ferocious right from the beginning, and had given good blows in return.

Girl Champs Hope To Retain Honors

SHARON, Pa., Dec. 14.—If the Sharon high school girls are to retain the national scholastic basketball title which they won last year in the third annual tournament held at Youngstown O., they will have to step some.

COACH FLYNN

MISS GILL

MISS SPEIZER

Of last year's team, which faced a schedule of seven hard games in 10 days before the championship was won, only two players remain. Miss Josephine Gill, captain and Miss Selma Speizer are the stars who are left. Both are guards. Coach Agnes Flinn, a graduate of Sargent Physical Culture school is working hard to whip the team in shape.

It is very probable that the 1927 tournament will be staged in some southern city.

South Dakota State College Eleven to Play at Honolulu

HONOLULU, Dec. 14.—The South Dakota state college football team will meet the University of Hawaii on Christmas day and a town team on New Year's day, according to a schedule made public today.

Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, will arrive here today from the United States.

WHALEN CANCELS BOUT WITH GANS

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 14.—Russell Whalen, Chicago lightweight, has cancelled his bout with Baby Joe Gans at Hollywood, Calif., tonight, owing to a sudden attack of "flu," according to a telegram received here today from Whalen's manager, Dave Barry.

Bison Passers Again Will Make Strong Bid for Tri-State Title

Schedule Being Arranged is One of Stiffest Green and White Five Has Ever Undertaken.

BETHANY, W. Va., Dec. 14—Having fully appreciated the rest since the close of the football season, the athletes of Bethany college, under Coach Furman L. Nuss and Captain Leland R. Beckwith of Buffalo, N. Y., will now turn to basketball. For the last thre years; in fact, ever since the Bisons defeated one of W. & J.'s greatest teams in 1925, holding the Washingtonians scoreless the first half of the game, Bethany has been noted for crack floor teams.

Since entering the Tri-State Conference, although they have never won the championship honors, the small West Virginia institution has ever presented a strong and formidable front against all of her opponents. Last year, when the Bisons for a time looked like possible winners of the conference, injuries to Captain Hanna and Hamill put a crimp in their chances, and the Bisons were forced to bite the dust at the hands of Duquesne by a margin of one point. This defeat practically eliminated the Green and White from the running, as Geneva later scored a 30-27 coin over the Bison Herd at Beaver Falls.

Coach Nuss has been looking over his material for this year with more interest than ever, as he feels that the football season which the Buffalo Creekers have just enjoyed is only the starting point of a great year in athletics at Bethany College. The schedule being arranged by Director of Athletics, C. V. Elder, is one of the stiffest a Green and White five has ever undertaken, but from all appearances, Coach Nuss' charges will undoubtedly come thru as expected.

In Captain Beckwith, the Bisons have a leader who has seen regular service on the Bethany varsity for two years, and around whom the Bison Mentor is expected to build a team comparable to any of those in the past, representing this institution.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

THE willingness of Dan Howley, new manager of the St. Louis Browns, to have George Sisler, deposed pilot, continue as a member of the team and as first baseman of the outfit presents an interesting situation.

First of all it indicates that Sisler puts baseball and his desire to win in the game above his own personal pride. It is not easy for a manager to step down into the ranks and watch another man wield the reins he once held.

Secondly it shows that Howley is not afraid of the presence of the former manager on the team—not a bit afraid that there will be a conflict in judgment at times and a wavering of the players between two loyalties.

Howley is "big" as men go He realizes that Sisler was handicapped in one way or another all of the time he manged the St. Louis club. More than anything Sisler was handicapped by his lack of experience in handling men. Through his college days Sisler didn't have to formulate and direct his team's play at Michigan. Sisler was virtually the team. No effort was needed, by the same token, to get from each member of the team the same measure of loyalty to the captain and the team.

Sisler, at St. Louis, found himself faced suddenly with the necessity of making a couple of dozen ball players appreciate the fact that he was not only their boss but able to teach them the tricks of the trade.

Howley has had the experience—has filled every position in baseball, so to speak. And he can handle men.

He is confident that he can handle the team Sisler had—with Sisler as one of the rank and file.

Murray Prepares For Battle Monday With 'Fargo Express'

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Lee Murray, English lightweight managed by Billy Gibson, will arrive in Chicago today to train for his fight with Billy Petrolle, the "Fargo Express" at Milwaukee next Monday night. After a hard day's work in a local gym, Murray will entrain for the scene of battle.

JACK DELANEY TO QUIT THRONE

Will be Contender for Heavyweight Crown.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Jack Delaney will resign as light heavyweight champion of the world within two months in order to fight, without official handicaps, as a legitimate contender for the heavyweight title.

This was the good word in circulation today and boxing men of national repute vouched for its accuracy. They declared that Delaney's action will be forced upon him in order to evade the curse of one of those New York state athletic commission edicts which would send him into the ring against Gene Tunney weighing not more than 175 pounds, under pain of disqualification. The commission already has established this precedent by ordaining that no champion may fight out of his class in this state except at the weight at which his title was won.

With the heavyweight sweepstakes promising a golden harvest for all concerned, the light heavyweight title would be worth no such sacrifice to Delaney.

The title itself, outside of this fact, would prove little encumbrance, it was said, since Delaney was smart enough to laugh off a title defense for six months, as a result of his workout with Jamaica Kid at Waterbury, Conn., last week.

Both of the principals made 175 pounds for the match; therefore, it must go down in the book as a title bout, leaving Delaney to his own devices for the next six months. In brief, he no longer can be confronted by some sap who wishes to battle him for the light heavyweight title at a time when the young man will be absorbed with the heavyweight problems.

However, even this strategy will not be sufficiently effective to make the light heavyweight title worth its burden, they say. The answer is found in the action taken some time ago by the New York commission in ordering Paul Berlenbach, then champion, to weigh 175 pounds or abandon his idea of fighting Johnny Risko a heavyweight. The board was so pleased with the idea that they made it apply to champions in all classes. It still applies—for the reason that the commission's last guess is always its best.

Of course, Delaney could avoid the edict by fighting his heavyweights in Jersey. This would be an easy out, if it wasn't for the fact that Rickard and Fugazy, the leading promoters, have leases on the two ball parks in New York and I presume they mean to use them.

Rickard has a Jersey site but Delaney isn't his man, anyhow, and says he won't be.

Fugazy will bring Delaney and Jack Sharkey together before February or break a bicep in the attempt. By that time, Delaney, who is alleged to have weighed less than 173 pounds the other night, may be well above the 175 pound class at his natural weight. He won't want to meet Sharkey at any other; therefore, they say the light heavyweight title must be cast off, at least for the time being.

Anyhow that woman swimmer who insists on wearing nothing more than a coat of axle grease in the Pacific race doesn't intend to "muddy the water."—Zanesville Signal.

A word to the WIVES—

For every pipe-smoker on your list

AT THIS season, when you are being urged on every hand to "Give this" and "Give that," be assured of this truth: Nothing you could give a pipe-smoker could make more of a hit than a generous supply of Prince Albert . . . mild, mellow, fragrant Prince Albert.

Here, for instance, is the crystal-glass humidor, all dolled up in holiday clothes. It contains a full pound of P. A.—the grandest tobacco that ever lined the bowl of a pipe. There's a little sponge in the top of the humidor to keep the tobacco "just right."

Every pipe-smoker on your list would be tickled to death to find this good-looking package among his gifts on Christmas morning. It will brighten the Big Day for him and furnish deep-down pipe-joy for the days that follow. The Prince Albert humidor, by all means!

This prime favorite of experienced smokers also comes in pound and half-pound tins. At the nearest shop, you will find Prince Albert in sizes to suit every purse and purpose. If he smokes a pipe, your Christmas problem is settled . . . and settled satisfactorily.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT

TO REARRANGE VOTING WARDS

Annexation Means Additional Polling Places in City.

Legislation fixing the boundary lines of the four voting wards in East Liverpool will be considered by council at an early date as the result of the county commissioners' approval of the annexation proposal.

Unless held up by a court injunction the new territory, amounting to about 560 acres, will be added to the city within 60 days. Council will be required to complete its legislation fixing the ward lines early in the year if the newly acquired voters are to vote at the municipal primary election in August.

After council fixes the ward lines, the county election board will then establish precincts. At least one more voting precinct will be established probably in the Third ward to take care of the voters who now reside in what is known as the Maplewood and Park boulevard sections. This precinct will probably be located along St. Clair avenue near Maplewood.

Voters in the newly acquired territory will be required to register in the city before they are permitted to vote.

POSTCARDS IN UNIQUE CONTEST

One of the most novel round-the-world contests for a substantial prize on record is announced. Whether a post card can be sent from New York around the world in faster time by the east-bound route than the west-bound, is the point to be decided. On the outcome depends a wager of $500, made by two prominent New York philatelists, Hugh Clark and Theodore E. Steinway.

Within a few days the two postcards, Mr. Clark's bearing a portrait of President Coolidge, and that of Mr. Steinway a picture of Governor Al. Smith, will be started around the world, in opposite directions. The first to circumnavigate the globe and arrive at the Collectors club, No. 51 West 48th street, this city, will be declared winner. The rules of the contest are simple, it being agreed that the card traveling eastward, of course, shall be entitled to forty-eight hours handicap to make up for the difference in time—the east bound card losing a day and the other gaining twenty-four hours.

Anywhere you go . . .
you can buy this safe low-cost anti-freeze

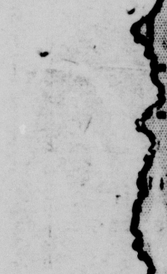
TONIGHT you must have an anti-freeze in your radiator.

And on any road you take there's a garage or filling station supplying Pyro. Stop there. Have the right mixture put in. Take home a can of Pyro, too, then add a little Pyro and water from time to time to take care of the natural evaporation. It's as easy as adding water alone.

Pyro is so inexpensive, so safe, so easy to use that 40% of all motorists in America last winter depended on Pyro to protect cars against cold. Pyro won't clog cooling systems, won't rot hose connections, won't leak out, nor eat through metal parts. Any make of car can use Pyro safely.

You can't buy equal safety cheaper—you can't buy greater safety at any price. The Pyro Proportion Chart shows how much Pyro is needed to give you complete protection at any temperature. Ask the garage man for your copy.

Look for the blue and white Pyro label on the drum.



Take home a gallon can of Pyro and keep it in your garage

Garages and filling stations sell Pyro from the blue-labeled Pyro drum

DORIS KENYON AT AMERICAN

Star Tells How Women Can Improve Looks.

Any woman who likes to be photographed occasionally—and who doesn't—can get better pictures if she listens to a few hints from Doris Kenyon, star of "Ladies at Play," now showing at the American theatre.

Miss Kenyon has to sit before a camera daily. It's her business. So she knows how to get the best results from the lenses. Here are a few words of her advice:

"Beware of too much rouge; the red photographs dark, and it makes the cheeks appear hollow and the cheek bones prominent.

"The woman who has a florid complexion should use a lighter shade of powder than she would use for the street.

"Eyebrows of the brunette should be darkened quite heavily.

"The lip rouge should be dark red. It will photograph black, but that is the way lips appear in photographs normally, and it makes the teeth appear whiter. Just before the photo is snapped, wet the lips slightly. This will impart a glisten that improves the appearance of the photograph.

"Use black mascara for the eyelashes, applying a heavier coat than most women wear for street use. A thin black line right at the edge of the lids is also an advantage, if it is desired to make the eyes appear larger and brighter.

"As for costumes, remember that reds, strong yellows, red-golds, and orange tints photograph black, while blues and purples normally appear much lighter in photographs than they do to the eye. Beware, too, of the use of lavender, if you do not understand that its brighter shades, which look fairly dark to the eye, often photograph a dazzling white!

"Bearing these facts about colors in mind, plan your costumes for portrait sittings accordingly and your pictures will benefit greatly."

A campaign has been started in Palestine to induce families to use Palestine-made products in their homes.

Canada is Rapidly Overtaking America In Phone Ownership

MONTREAL, P. Q. — Canada is catching up to the United States in the per capita ownership of telephones. The Dominion has an average of one phone to every 8.4 people, while America has one to every 7.3, according to P. A. McFarlane, president of the Telephone Association of Canada, in an address here before the association's annual convention.

"Telephones passed the 1,000,000 mark in Canada this year," said Mr. McFarlane. "The total stood at 1,072,454 on January 1, compared with 902,090 in 1921. Investment in telephones in the Dominion now amounts to $200,000,000.

"Ownership of telephones on farms ish higher per capita in Western Canada than in any other area in North America. There are two rural telephone subscribers to every urban subscriber in Saskatchewan. In Manitoba where the population is more than 60 per cent rural, there is a phone for every 7.5 residents."

(Compiled by United Press)

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 15

"CURSE YOU, MURGATROYD!" and such choice lines from the 10-20-30 melodrama have been deliciously satirized by Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan in "Ruddigore," to be sung for WEAF, WCAE and WRC to-night.

¶ KOA puts another candle in its birthday cake to-night with appropriate musical festivities.

¶ The Kansas City Little Symphony Orchestra is WDAF's enticement.

DORIS KENYON AT AMERICAN

Star Tells How Women Can Improve Looks.

Any woman who likes to be photographed occasionally—and who doesn't—can get better pictures if she listens to a few hints from Doris Kenyon, star of "Ladies at Play," now showing at the American theatre.

Miss Kenyon has to sit before a camera daily. It's her business. So she knows how to get the best results from the lenses. Here are a few words of her advice:

"Beware of too much rouge; the red photographs dark, and it makes the cheeks appear hollow and the cheek bones prominent.

"The woman who has a florid complexion should use a lighter shade of powder than she would use for the street.

"Eyebrows of the brunette should be darkened quite heavily.

"The lip rouge should be dark red. It will photograph black, but that is the way lips appear in photographs normally, and it makes the teeth appear whiter. Just before the photo is snapped, wet the lips slightly. This will impart a glisten that improves the appearance of the photograph.

"Use black mascara for the eyelashes, applying a heavier coat than most women wear for street use. A thin black line right at the edge of the lids is also an advantage, if it is desired to make the eyes appear larger and brighter.

"As for costumes, remember that reds, strong yellows, red-golds, and orange tints photograph black, while blues and purples normally appear much lighter in photographs than they do to the eye. Beware, too, of the use of lavender, if you do not understand that its brighter shades, which look fairly dark to the eye, often photograph a dazzling white!

"Bearing these facts about colors in mind, plan your costumes for portrait sittings accordingly and your pictures will benefit greatly."

A campaign has been started in Palestine to induce families to use Palestine-made products in their homes.

Canada is Rapidly Overtaking America In Phone Ownership

MONTREAL, P. Q. — Canada is catching up to the United States in the per capita ownership of telephones. The Dominion has an average of one phone to every 8.4 people, while America has one to every 7.3, according to P. A. McFarlane, president of the Telephone Association of Canada, in an address here before the association's annual convention.

"Telephones passed the 1,000,000 mark in Canada this year," said Mr. McFarlane. "The total stood at 1,072,454 on January 1, compared with 902,090 in 1921. Investment in telephones in the Dominion now amounts to $200,000,000.

"Owenrship of telephones on farms ish higher per capita in Western Canada than in any other area in North America. There are two rural telephone subscribers to every urban subscriber in Saskatchewan. In Manitoba where the population is more than 60 per cent rural, there is a phone for every 7.5 residents."

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 15

"CURSE YOU, MURGATROYD!"
and such choice lines from the 10-20-30 melodrama have been deliciously satirized by Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan in "Ruddigore," to be sung for WEAF, WCAE and WRC to-night.
¶ KOA puts another candle in its birthday cake to-night with appropriate musical festivities.
¶ The Kansas City Little Symphony Orchestra is WDAF's enticement.

DORIS KENYON AT AMERICAN

Star Tells How Women Can Improve Looks.

Any woman who likes to be photographed occasionally—and who doesn't—can get better pictures if she listens to a few hints from Doris Kenyon, star of "Ladies at Play," now showing at the American theatre.

Miss Kenyon has to sit before a camera daily. It's her business. So she knows how to get the best results from the lenses. Here are a few words of her advice:

"Beware of too much rouge; the red photographs dark, and it makes the cheeks appear hollow and the cheek bones prominent.

"The woman who has a florid complexion should use a lighter shade of powder than she would use for the street.

"Eyebrows of the brunette should be darkened quite heavily.

"The lip rouge should be dark red. It will photograph black, but that is the way lips appear in photographs normally, and it makes the teeth appear whiter. Just before the photo is snapped, wet the lips slightly. This will impart a glisten that improves the appearance of the photograph.

"Use black mascara for the eyelashes, applying a heavier coat than most women wear for street use. A thin black line right at the edge of the lids is also an advantage, if it is desired to make the eyes appear larger and brighter.

"As for costumes, remember that reds, strong yellows, red-golds, and orange tints photograph black, while blues and purples normally appear much lighter in photographs than they do to the eye. Beware, too, of the use of lavender, if you do not understand that its brighter shades, which look fairly dark to the eye, often photograph a dazzling white!

"Bearing these facts about colors in mind, plan your costumes for portrait sittings accordingly and your pictures will benefit greatly."

Canada is Rapidly Overtaking America In Phone Ownership

MONTREAL, P. Q. — Canada is catching up to the United States in the per capita ownership of telephones. The Dominion has an average of one phone to every 8.4 people, while America has one to every 7.3, according to P. A. McFarlane, president of the Telephone Association of Canada, in an address here before the association's annual convention.

"Telephones passed the 1,000,000 mark in Canada this year," said Mr. McFarlane. "The total stood at 1,072,454 on January 1, compared with 902,090 in 1921. Investment in telephones in the Dominion now amounts to $200,000,000.

"Owenrship of telephones on farms ish higher per capita in Western Canada than in any other area in North America. There are two rural telephone subscribers to every urban subscriber in Saskatchewan. In Manitoba where the population is more than 60 per cent rural, there is a phone for every 7.5 residents."

The ENTERTAINING ANGEL

By SAMUEL MERWIN

By Samuel Merwin Released Through Central Press Ass'n

SYNOPSIS:

Julian Reed is wandering southern California in his little roadster. At luncheon in a small restaurant he meets, by chance, a charming rather wistful young woman. She has missed connections with a troupe of vagabonding actors and he offers to drive her to the troupe's next stopping place, La Jolla. She accepts his offer. Julian meets Watt, the chief of the "Wayside Theatre"; Sadie, an ex-chorus girl, and the rest. Julian comes to the rescue of the troupe financially. Sadie is attracted to him. She tells him how Hester risked everything to try for the leading role in a movie of a play written by "Robert Johns," failed and joined the troupe as a last resort. Julian falls in love with Hester but when she learns of his financial help to Watt, is angry and will have nothing to do with him. Watt offers him a half interest in the enterprise for $4,000 and he accepts. Then he goes away for a time. A new member of the troupe, a college boy, Joe Maybury, is introduced. He, too, loves Hester. She knows he is much younger than she, but to her he is the symbol of youth and his love helps restore her faith in herself. The other members of the troupe understand and pity her. Julian rejoins the troupe at San Diego. Hester has nothing to say to him and walks away when he tries to speak to her. He has bought her a beautiful bracelet, but when she snubs him he thrusts it upon Sadie. Because of his clumsiness in helping with the scenery Joe names Julian "Marceline" after a famous old clown who tries to help but is in everyone's way. Unintentionally at first he calls Julian Marceline to his face, which angers him. Julian has a talk with Hester, telling her he loves her and considers her wonderful. Jim Wilde, stage manager, tells Julian that Lester, the young leading man, is leaving the troupe and that Hester and Watt think Joe may be trained to fill his place. It is decided that he will be given the chance. Joe again calls him "Marceline," whereat Julian warns him not to use that name again, but Joe laughs. Sadie overhears the conversation. Julian writes a play for Hester and is so engrossed he pays attention to no one.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE.

The only downright unhappy moments that Julian experienced during this period came when, on occasions, he wandered around behind the audience and watched the two in their scenes. Sadie watched for him there during her off half-hours. He seemed to her dazed about what was going on, but still carried forward by his faith in what he was doing. One night even Henry Harper slipped back and joined them there, in costume as the comic old-world farmer. For a brief time he watched the young actor through narrowed eyes. Then his always wrinkled face wrinkled a little more. The audience was applauding with honest enthusiasm.

"What do they know?" he remarked. "If they like you, you're a good actor." After which sentious observation he walked away.

Julian seemed not to hear. Sadie covertly watched him. He'd speak before long. She knew that. When he did, it was to say, out of a clear sky, "Do you know, Sadie, when you get absorbed in a piece of work like this play . . . when it hits you so hard, I mean .. . . carries you up out of yourself . . . you have just one thought?"

"What's that?" The emotional girl's eyes were filling again, but it was dark back here, and he needn't know.

"Oh, just to get it done and put safely away somewhere before any thing can happen to stop it. I mean like being hit by a taxi. You know, dying. Things like that."

They passed the Sunday at Pomona. Julian worked desperately all day in the men's tent. Sadie dragged him out for a late luncheon. When dinner time arrived he radiantly refused to budge. So Sadie, with Grace's help, brought coffee and doughnuts from a convenient lunch room. But he pushed these aside and, while the coffee cooled, wrote the final scene of his second act. Then he insisted on reading snatches of scenes to the two girls. He didn't read well, and his excited, chuckling attempts to explain the characters and the events that preceded these bits were so confusing that they could make nothing of it. He seemed to know something of the playwright's craft, how to get the characters into and out of scenes, and a few of the lines read rather well, but they caught nothing more. Before that midnight he was deep in act three. And by mid-afternoon of the following day, at Pasadena, the play was done.

Sadie was impressed by the extraordinary force in him, if by nothing else. There was bulk to the play. He had written it virtually at a sitting. She knew that the creative work of the theater was often done in that burning swift way, but hadn't before witnessed such a performance. He was empty now, wistful as a sensitive child, even moodily happy. She walked with him to the postoffice, where he mailed a flat parcel. She felt certain that it was the carbon of the play, but he didn't explain. Nor could she see the address. But she noted that he paid for a special delivery stamp and for registry. And he seemed to know exactly where he wanted it to go. Later, as the afternoon wore on, he grew restless. She sensed the difficulty. His spirit was driving on again. He wouldn't rest until Hester had read the thing; and Hester was off, Heaven knew where, with Joe.

He caught her, after dinner, and pressed the script into her hands. She hesitated, in sober inquiry; then, because she didn't know what else to do, accepted it. They hadn't had a word together since that intense little scene at the filling station. She couldn't remember what town it was—the towns simply flitted by with the days—but she wouldn't soon forget the scene. She had almost wished that day she could care for him. For a moment Joe had seemed hopelessly young and a little cheap. It was such a tangle! He had left the memory of burning eyes in a pathetic face. But he had told her point-blank that he loved her and that he wouldn't let go. He had left with her, too, a more puzzling, even poignant sense of force, of spirit . . . that other man, grown stronger, more compelling, was staring down at her now. She wished she might throw the extraordinarily thick manuscript down at his feet and run. But, of course, she could hardly do that. So she waited.

"I told you, Hester, I could do something for you. Well, I've done it. This play. I've just written my heart out. The play is yours."

"Oh, I could let you . . ."

But he interrupted. "First, I'm only going to ask you to read it. Then, if you like it, I'll find a lawyer and make it over to you. Just so that nobody can get it away from you. Nobody else can play it, you know."

What could she say? It was unnerving. He couldn't know, this mad dreamer, the difficulties in the way of having a play produced. Even a good play, a great play. It might take years.

"Just read it, Hester,' he said, gently. That's all I ask now. I think I've caught a little of your spirit. I may be fooled about it, but I think I have. Will you do that for me? Read it?"

She felt that if she stood there another moment she would burst into tears. And so, contriving to get out something about reading it as soon as she could get her mind clear, she walked away . . . walked quietly and with every outward sign of firm character, like the little New Englander she was.

During the performace that night Sadie found Julian wandering restlessly back of the audience. She carried the script in her hand. She saw his eyes looking down at it, trying to make it out, in the dim light, just what it was.

"Hester asked me to read it dear," she said, uncomfortably. He wouldn't like that. But she had to say it as a preliminary to the dominant new thought that was in her mind. "She doesn't feel well tonight. A sick headache. It's all she can do to get through her scenes. I've been helping her dress. And Julian dear . .. . I've been thinking .. . . won't you let me show it to Murry? He knows all about plays, you know. He's an awful fool, but he does know his theater. What you can do and what you can't. I'm sure he wouldn't mind reading it. And . . . don't you see, dear, he might be able to help you. You know, with practical suggestions."

He stood motionless, staring toward the brightly lighted stage. He was hurt. She knew that. She wanted to kiss him.

"Of course, dear . . . ."

"All right," he said shortly. Then, sensing his own ungentleness, he added, hurriedly, "I'm going back and help Jim. I'm afraid I haven't been quite fair with him."

So it came about that J. Murry Watt carried the script into his private tent behind the stage. The audience was gone. A not unpleasant jangle of voices carried out from the two other tents. The hands were setting up their beds on the stage and drawing the curtains. He switched on the light over the folding table and sank down on his cot.

A small suit case that lay open beside him was heaped with papers. He really ought to get at those. But he sighed and glanced at this new script. Why was it that every mortal being appeared to belive in his heart that he could write plays? This boy now, a charming fellow and generous to a fault, couldn't possibly have the maturity, the craft, to build real drama. The thing was incredible on its face. He had shown in a hundred ways that he knew nothing . . . nothing .. . about the theater.

But it was a situation that must be met squarely. The lad's friendship meant everything. He'd be waiting impatiently for judgment of course. Young authors, all authors, were impatient. Mr. Watt looked again at the case full of papers. Bewilderment had lately come to him. Julian's four thousand dollars had seemed, at first, an inexhaustible fortune. But so many old claims had had to be met. He had been amazed by the number of those and their magnitude. And the new equipment was costly beyond his sketchy computations. The new generator alone come to nearly nine hundred dollars, and must be paid for on delivery.

And there was the new touring car! Mr. Watt had lately permitted himself to think that still another car, a small one, was really necessary in order that one or another of the boys might run on ahead at times for advance work. He had, indeed, set his heart on that. It might soon be necessary to approach his dear friend again. He sighed. Life was ever difficult. Heavy of mood he undressed. A blanket, rolled tightly, served for an extra pillow. And propping his head thus, stretched out on his cot, he read the play.

SYNOPSIS:

Julian Reed is wandering southern California in his little roadster. At luncheon in a small restaurant he meets, by chance, a charming rather wistful young woman. She has missed connections with a troupe of vagabonding actors and he offers to drive her to the troupe's next stopping place, La Jolla. She accepts his offer. Julian meets Watt, the chief of the "Wayside Theatre"; Sadie, an ex-chorus girl, and the rest. Julian comes to the rescue of the troupe financially. Sadie is attracted to him. She tells him how Hester risked everything to try for the leading role in a movie of a play written by "Robert Johns," failed and joined the troupe as a last resort. Julian falls in love with Hester but when she learns of his financial help to Watt, is angry and will have nothing to do with him. Watt offers him a half interest in the enterprise for $4,000 and he accepts. Then he goes away for a time. A new member of the troupe, a college boy, Joe Maybury, is introduced. He, too, loves Hester. She knows he is much younger than she, but to her he is the symbol of youth and his love helps restore her faith in herself. The other members of the troupe understand and pity her. Julian rejoins the troupe at San Diego. Hester has nothing to say to him and walks away when he tries to speak to her. He has bought her a beautiful bracelet, but when she snubs him he thrusts it upon Sadie. Because of his clumsiness in helping with the scenery Joe names Julian "Marceline" after a famous old clown who tries to help but is in everyone's way. Unintentionally at first he calls Julian Marceline to his face, which angers him. Julian has a talk with Hester, telling her he loves her and considers her wonderful. Jim Wilde, stage manager, tells Julian that Lester, the young leading man, is leaving the troupe and that Hester and Watt think Joe may be trained to fill his place. It is decided that he will be given the chance. Joe again calls him "Marceline," whereat Julian warns him not to use that name again, but Joe laughs. Sadie overhears the conversation. Julian writes a play for Hester and is so engrossed he pays attention to no one.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE.

The only downright unhappy moments that Julian experienced during this period came when, on occasions, he wandered around behind the audience and watched the two in their scenes. Sadie watched for him there during her off half-hours. He seemed to her dazed about what was going on, but still carried forward by his faith in what he was doing. One night even Henry Harper slipped back and joined them there, in costume as the comic old-world farmer. For a brief time he watched the young actor through narrowed eyes. Then his always wrinkled face wrinkled a little more. The audience was applauding with honest enthusiasm.

"What do they know?" he remarked. "If they like you, you're a good actor." After which sentious observation he walked away.

Julian seemed not to hear. Sadie covertly watched him. He'd speak before long. She knew that. When he did, it was to say, out of a clear sky, "Do you know, Sadie, when you get absorbed in a piece of work like this play . . . when it hits you so hard, I mean .. . . carries you up out of yourself . . . you have just one thought?"

"What's that?" The emotional girl's eyes were filling again, but it was dark back here, and he needn't know.

"Oh, just to get it done and put safely away somewhere before any thing can happen to stop it. I mean like being hit by a taxi. You know, dying. Things like that."

They passed the Sunday at Pomona. Julian worked desperately all day in the men's tent. Sadie dragged him out for a late luncheon. When dinner time arrived he radiantly refused to budge. So Sadie, with Grace's help, brought coffee and doughnuts from a convenient lunch room. But he pushed these aside and, while the coffee cooled, wrote the final scene of his second act. Then he insisted on reading snatches of scenes to the two girls. He didn't read well, and his excited, chuckling attempts to explain the characters and the events that preceded these bits were so confusing that they could make nothing of it. He seemed to know something of the playwright's craft, how to get the characters into and out of scenes, and a few of the lines read rather well, but they caught nothing more. Before that midnight he was deep in act three. And by mid-afternoon of the following day, at Pasadena, the play was done.

Sadie was impressed by the extraordinary force in him, if by nothing else. There was bulk to the play. He had written it virtually at a sitting. She knew that the creative work of the theater was often done in that burning swift way, but hadn't before witnessed such a performance. He was empty now, wistful as a sensitive child, even moodily happy. She walked with him to the postoffice, where he mailed a flat parcel. She felt certain that it was the carbon of the play, but he didn't explain. Nor could she see the address. But she noted that he paid for a special delivery stamp and for registry. And he seemed to know exactly where he wanted it to go. Later, as the afternoon wore on, he grew restless. She sensed the difficulty. His spirit was driving on again. He wouldn't rest until Hester had read the thing; and Hester was off, Heaven knew where, with Joe.

He caught her, after dinner, and pressed the script into her hands. She hesitated, in sober inquiry; then, because she didn't know what else to do, accepted it. They hadn't had a word together since that intense little scene at the filling station. She couldn't remember what town it was—the towns simply flitted by with the days—but she wouldn't soon forget the scene. She had almost wished that they she could care for him. For a moment Joe had seemed hopelessly young and a little cheap. It was such a tangle! He had left the memory of burning eyes in a pathetic face. But he had told her point-blank that he loved her and that he wouldn't let go. He had left with her, too, a more puzzling, even poignant sense of force, of spirit . . . that other man, grown stronger, more compelling, was staring down at her now. She wished she might throw the extraordinarily thick manuscript down at his feet and run. But, of course, she could hardly do that. So she waited.

"I told you, Hester, I could do something for you. Well, I've done it. This play. I've just written my heart out. The play is yours."

"Oh, I could let you . . ."

But he interrupted. "First, I'm only going to ask you to read it. Then, if you like it, I'll find a lawyer and make it over to you. Just so that nobody can get it away from you. Nobody else can play it, you know."

What could she say? It was unnerving. He couldn't know, this mad dreamer, the difficulties in the way of having a play produced. Even a good play, a great play. It might take years.

"Just read it, Hester,' he said, gently. That's all I ask now. I think I've caught a little of your spirit. I may be fooled about it, but I think I have. Will you do that for me? Read it?"

She felt that if she stood there another moment she would burst into tears. And so, contriving to get out something about reading it as soon as she could get her mind clear, she walked away . . . walked quietly and with every outward sign of firm character, like the little New Englander she was.

During the performace that night Sadie found Julian wandering restlessly back of the audience. She carried the script in her hand. She saw his eyes looking down at it, trying to make it out, in the dim light, just what it was.

"Hester asked me to read it dear," she said, uncomfortably. He wouldn't like that. But she had to say it as a preliminary to the dominant new thought that was in her mind. "She doesn't feel well tonight. A sick headache. It's all she can do to get through her scenes. I've been helping her dress. And Julian dear . .. . I've been thinking .. . . won't you let me show it to Murry? He knows all about plays, you know. He's an awful fool, but he does know his theater. What you can do and what you can't. I'm sure he wouldn't mind reading it. And . . . don't you see, dear, he might be able to help you. You know, with practical suggestions."

He stood motionless, staring toward the brightly lighted stage. He was hurt. She knew that. She wanted to kiss him.

"Of course, dear . . . ."

"All right," he said shortly. Then, sensing his own ungentleness, he added, hurriedly, "I'm going back and help Jim. I'm afraid I haven't been quite fair with him."

So it came about that J. Murry Watt carried the script into his private tent behind the stage. The audience was gone. A not unpleasant jangle of voices carried out from the two other tents. The hands were setting up their beds on the stage and drawing the curtains. He switched on the light over the folding table and sank down on his cot.

A small suit case that lay open beside him was heaped with papers. He really ought to get at those. But he sighed and glanced at this new script. Why was it that every mortal being appeared to belive in his heart that he could write plays? This boy now, a charming fellow and generous to a fault, couldn't possibly have the maturity, the craft, to build real drama. The thing was incredible on its face. He had shown in a hundred ways that he knew nothing . . . nothing .. . about the theater.

But it was a situation that must be met squarely. The lad's friendship meant everything. He'd be waiting impatiently for judgment of course. Young authors, all authors, were impatient. Mr. Watt looked again at the case full of papers. Bewilderment had lately come to him. Julian's four thousand dollars had seemed, at first, an inexhaustible fortune. But so many old claims had had to be met. He had been amazed by the number of those and their magnitude. And the new equipment was costly beyond his sketchy computations. The new generator alone come to nearly nine hundred dollars, and must be paid for on delivery.

And there was the new touring car! Mr. Watt had lately permitted himself to think that still another car, a small one, was really necessary in order that one or another of the boys might run on ahead at times for advance work. He had, indeed, set his heart on that. It might soon be necessary to approach his dear friend again. He sighed. Life was ever difficult. Heavy of mood he undressed. A blanket, rolled tightly, served for an extra pillow. And propping his head thus, stretched out on his cot, he read the play.

Surprise For Trotzky.

Let Them Combine.

Why Tie Our Hands?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

MR. FORD'S weekly says: "He (the Jew) controls the revolutionary elements of the world on one hand, and the ultra conservative elements on the others; so he has equal power in communistic Russia and in capitalistic England."

THAT will be news to Trotzky, the only conspicuous Jew in the Russian government, from whom his powers have recently been taken one by one.

Mr. Ford also prints: "The international Jew is in direct control of all financial centers of government, including the United States federal reserve system."

Secretary Mellon and Mr. Strong, of the reserve bank, will learn something there.

The four richest men in the world are Rockefeller, Ford himself, Mr. Mellon and George F. Baker—according to those that should know. The Rothschilds compared with them are only a child's bank. The Jews have evidently shown great moderation, controlling finance, but letting "goyim" have the real money.

ONE great financial house which Henry Ford sincerely considers a Jewish institution, using Christians for a false face, actually will not give employment to any jew.

MR. LOREE, of the Delaware & Hudson, has acquired a big interest in the Lehigh Valley railroad, with an eye to future mergers. There ought to be one railroad merger, including all roads, bought at a fair price and owned by Uncle Sam. But that won't happen until Uncle Sam has more influence than the railroads.

BUT mergers that would stop waste, send freights the shortest, most economical way, cut down overhead, etc., should be encouraged, especially by farmers.

Let the roads earn enough to satisfy the owners; then, perhaps, you will get lower rates.

Senators discuss the suggestion that this country stop experiments with poison gas, binding itself irrevocably against its use in war.

CANNOT the United States be trusted with poison gases? Are we going to send asphyxiating expeditions against our neighbors? Isn't it the height of folly to say that we must be ignorant of this mode of warfare?

SHOULD we not know all about it, keep ahead of all others, in case others should start war against us and make gas a part of it?

An angry ship officer told an old Chinese sailor who bothered him, "Go tie yourself to the mast." The poor sailor obeyed orders and nearly froze. Uncle Sam shouldn't tie himself up but keep free, in every direction prepared to meet any devilry that may come.

LAWYER CALLS OFF FIGHT TO ESCAPE TERM OF FIVE YEARS

East Liverpool Man Will Surrender Bond Tomorrow.

Carried Wheeling, W. Va., Indictments to Supreme Court.

A. E. Bowdler, former East Liverpool attorney, and his business associate, Gordon Ulyatt, officers in the defunct Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage company, of Wheeling, who were convicted of violating the West Virginia speculative securities act in the Ohio county intermediate court nearly a year ago, will surrender their bonds tomorrow to begin sentences of five years in the Moundsville penitentiary, according to a dispatch today from Wheeling.

Convicted Last December.

Fines of $5,000 each were also assessed against the two men.

The West Virginia supreme court of appeals recently refused them a new trial. Bowdler and Ulyatt had planned to carry the case to the United States supreme court, the state supreme court granting a 60-day stay of execution. However, after a conference with counsel, the defendants decided to accept the ruling of the state tribunal.

Bowdler, who at one time was a candidate for the Republican nomination for city solicitor here, resided in Akron for several years where he engaged in the building and loan business. About six years ago he moved to Wheeling where he and Ulyatt organized the Real Estate Guaranty Mortgage company. Hundreds of in-

Zero Temperatures Reported in Many States, With North and South Dakota and Minnesota Hardest Hit.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Untold suffering was caused today by the severe cold wave that holds Chicago and the middle west in its icy grip. The paralyzing blizzard rode in on frigid winds from the northwest that sent the mercury down from five degrees at 7 o'clock yesterday morning to three below zero at dawn today.

Zero temperatures are general over the northern middle sections of the United States and Canada. North and South Dakota and Minnesota are the hardest hit. A blizzard of major proportions blowing in from Alaska swept over those states and extended into the adjoining states of Montana, Kansas, Nebraska, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Althought 15 deaths have been attributed to the cold wave, only two are known to have been caused directly by exposure. The others were the result of accidents of various kinds, principally automobile smashups incidental to the blizzard.

Below Zero in Montana Town.

The lowest temperature was reported from Wilder, Mont., where the mercury touched 31 degrees below zero. Devil's Lake, N. D., reported 25 below. The sub-zero line extended south to the Minnesota-Iowa boundary.

Heavy blankets of snow cover the affected area. The furious gales drifted the snow into railroad cuts and highways and tied up traffic in many sections. Air mail pilots were forced to abandon many scheduled

Woman is Rushed to Hospital in Waltham, Mass.

SHE MAY DIE

Police Believe Despondent Prisoner Drowned Her Children.

Neighbors said that Mrs. Locassio suffered a nervous breakdown recently and had been despondent.

The tragedy was discovered by a neighbor. The bathtub was filled to overflowing and the bodies of the drowned children were at the bottom of the tub.

McDERMOTT'S DEFENSE SHOWS MELLETT CASE WITNESS' DOUBLE LIFE

UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION HE NAMES HIS SECRET SWEETHEART

Questioned by Prosecution, He Testifies That McDermott Had Told Him That "He Was Going Out and Telephone a Guy and Give Him His Last Warning."

By PAUL E. BROKAW.

COURTHOUSE, CANTON, O., Dec. 14.—A broken romance of a deserted wife and baby and an illegitimate lovenest was bared by Steve Kascholk, the state's star witness in its case against Patrick E. McDermott, on trial in connection with the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton editor, during his cross-examinaion here today.

Kascholk, without the slightest apparent reserve, admitted his secret life with Mary Chernisky, a pretty Nanty-Glo, Pa., girl, and acknowledged that she was the mother of two of his children.

Their names, he said were Mary, aged 1, and 3-year-old Steve.

Before that point in the testimony had been reached, however, Kascholk, under direct examination, declared that McDermott had told him, while they were in a hotel here previous to the murder, that "he was going out and telephone a guy and give him his last warning."

This point had never before been brought out in any of the informer's statements and had not been touched upon by the defense in cross-examination when court recessed at noon.

Indicted Several Times.

Kascholk admitted that he had been indicted several times as a result of his matrimonial affairs and that he had spent five months in a Pennsylvania jail before going to Cleveland on June 30.

"You were indicted as a result of this affair with Mary, and again for deserting and non-support of your wife and baby?" he was asked by Everett L. Mills, conducting the cross-examination.

"Yes sir," answered the unmoved witness.

"You pleaded guilty?"

"Yes sir."

"Have you ever since tried to support your wife and legitimate child?"

"Well, I sent the child $15 as soon as I got out of that Pennsylvania jail," he answered.

"But, how about your wife?"

"I said that I tried to support the child," Kascholk retorted.

Received Money From Prosecutor.

"And have you sent them any money since you were in jail here?" Mills thundered.

"Yes—the children," the witness stated.

"How much?"

"About $180," was the answer.

"Where did you get it?" Mills followed.

"From Mr. McClintock?" Kascholk answered.

"From Mr. McClintock?" shouted the defense attorney.

"Yes sir."

"Oh, from Mr. McClintock," commented Mills as the crowd in the courtroom stirred."

Ruling for State.

Kascholk was not permitted to continue the sorbid story he began yesterday afternoon until lawyers for the state and defense had wrangled for two hours over the admissability of his testimony. The arguments, begun late yesterday, were continued for two hours today when court resumed.

Scientific Discoveries Discussed at Noon Luncheon.

Recent scientific discoveries were discussed by Dr. Albert V. Bleininger, head of the research department of the Homer Laughlin China company, at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Rotary club at the Y. M. C. A. today.

Plans for the anniversary party, which will be celebrated with a dinner-dance at the Country club, Tuesday evening, December 28, were announced by President Malcolm Thompson. Miss Margaret Stahl, interpreter of plays, will present Channing Pollock's play, "The Enemy." The committee in charge includes W. E. Wells, C. V. Beatty and R. L. E. Chambers.

Crippled children who are under the care of the Rotary club, will be guests at next Tuesday's luncheon. A committee, headed by F. L. Wells, met following the luncheon to arrange for the party which is one of the biggest events of the year for Rotarians.

SALVATION ARMY, ELKS AND AMERICAN LEGION WILL ENGAGE IN CHRISTMAS RELIEF WORK HERE

At least three East Liverpool organizations will engage in Christmas relief work.

In keeping with a custom which has been followed for many years, the Salvation Army will provide Christmas dinners for the poor. Arrangements have been made to distribute not less than 200 baskets.

East Liverpool lodge, No. 258, B. P. O. Elks, will play Santa Claus to about 750 children on Christmas morning. The committee in charge will investigate all applications. Only children who are absolutely deserving will receive gifts.

At last night's meeting of East Liverpool Post No. 4, American Legion, plans were completed for a candy treat for inmates of the McCullough-Jefferson County Children's home at Yellow Creek on Christmas morning. A committee of the ex-service men will go to the home to distribute boxes of candy. Candy gifts also will be provided for the orphans of ex-service men in the East Liverpool district.

The Salvation Army is soliciting through street kettles and by canvassing the potteries funds to meet the expenses involved in the Christmas dinner and winter relief movement.

The organization distributed 355 baskets last Christmas, but this number will be reduced this year as the result of a clearing house, which is to be established here and which, it is claimed, will prevent duplication of relief activities. Baskets to needy families in East Liverpool, Chester, Newell, Smiths Ferry and the vicinity will be distributed from the Salvation Army barracks, East Third street, on Christmas eve. A distributing place is also to be designated in Wellsville.

Church societies, Sunday schools and fraternal organizations will engage in relief work.

NEW GOVERNOR OF TEXAS HAS MAN-SIZED JOB

Dan Moody to Take Office Early in January.

IS YOUNG MAN

BY T. J. O'CONNELL.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 14.—After an experimentation in state government by the election of a woman, in the person of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, the state of Texas is awaiting the result of an other departure from established custom in the election of one of the youngest executives ever to head a great state.

Governor-elect Dan Moody, who will take office early in January, is a brilliant young attorney still in his early thirties.

It was he who, as Attorney General during the regime of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, started the series of investigations of state departments and affairs under Texas' first woman governor. From the outset he fought a stubborn battle against the Fergusons but his efforts were rewarded when the recent called session of the legislature appointed an inquisitorial body to probe the conduct of several state departments, particularly the highway department where it was charged crruption was extant.

Attacked Ferguson.

Moody centered his attacks on the alleged "government by proxy" of ex-Governor James E. Ferguson, husband of the noted woman governor, who himself was impeached several years ago.

As a result of this impeachment a desire of her husband's vindication prompted Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson to enter the political arena as a candidate for governor two years ago. During her gubneratorial campaign she evcriated the Ku Klux Klan and its political activities in Texas.

Mrs. Ferguson won a notable victory at the polls and during the past year has seen the Klan ousted from the control it once held on the state government, as well as that of the counties and municipalities.

She did not fare so well in other matters, however, for her opponents have charged time and again that the "real" governor was not Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson but her husband, James E. Ferguson, whom they alleged was the "power behind the throne," dictating appointments and in general doing pretty much as he used to when he was an occupant of the state executive chair in his own right, they said.

Assailed for Pardons.

Practically the whole of the Ferguson administration has been marked by the most intense and uncompromising attacks at every possible opening. Her opponents have assailed what they term her "abuse of the pardon powers" of the governor. They have criticized her appointments to the various commissions. They have delivered broadside against the contracts awarded by the state highway commission, charging that James E. Ferguson had considerable to say about who was to get contracts for road building and improvements.

Dan Moody, as Attorney General, decided to investigate the highway department and, as a result, several suits were instituted against contractors for excess profits. The state was successful in winning several, notably the suit against the Hoffman Construction company, whom the state sued for, approximately $420,000, which recently was decided in favor of the state.

All this welter of charges and counter charges was aired during the recent gubernatorial campaign, which Moody won after a run-off primary with Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

A railway 100 miles long is to be constructed in Madagascar at a cost of more than $20,000,000, and part of it may be electrified.

LABOR CONDITIONS GOOD LAST MONTH

Employment conditions during November were exceptionally good, C. M. O'Neil, examiner in charge of the federal state labor bureau, says in his report for the month to Commissioner of Labor Howard S. Jarrett. All classes of labor were well employed, the report says, the demand, in a great many instances, being greater than the supply.

Continuing his report, Mr. O'Neil says that the demand was greater than the supply, especially in the coal industry, where there is yet a shortage of experienced coal miners.

Since his report was prepared, however, Mr. O'Neil has unofficially announced that there has been a falling off of 50 per cent in the demand for miners, occurring since the first of December.

Mr. O'Neil's report regarding other kinds of employment, follows, in part:

"Out side construction work held up good during the month and as a result there was very little unemployment in common or unskilled labor. At the present time the supply of this class of labor is slightly in excess of the demand. There is also a surplus of carpenters in and around Charleston. A great many carpenters have secured employment in the coal fields as car builders and repair men.

STATE SCHOOL FIGURES HIGH

The total enrollment at the West Virginia schools, including both elementary and high schools for white and colored pupils was 382,830 at the close of the last fiscal year June 30, 1926, figures just compiled by the state department educational show. The figures are to go into the department's biennial report.

Totals in the elementary schools are: white: boys 166,759; girls 158,625; total white attendance 325,384; colored pupils, boys 9,799; girls 10,158; total colored 19,957. Total elementary attendance 345,341.

High school attendance: white pupils: boys 985; girls 1,339; total colored 2,324; total high school attendance 36,114.

In the case of white pupils the enrollment shows that the number of boys attending elementary schools is far ahead of the girls, while in high schools the enrollment of girls is greater.

In the same table the daily average attendance at schools in the state is 307,250.

SCHOOL CLOSING DATE IS FIXED

A. D. Osborne, superintendent of the Grant district schools, announced today that the schools would close for the annual Christmas vacation on Thursday, December 23. Sessions will be resumed on Monday, January 3.

Owing to the fact that many of the pupils are rehearsing for Christmas entertainments in the various churches no programs will be given the closing day in the Newell schools.

Aid Society to Meet.

Members of the Ladies Aid society of the First Methodist Episcopal church will meet this evening with Mrs. John Talbott at her home in Grant street. The regular program will be carried out.

Mid Week Services.

Mid week prayer meetings will be held tomorrow night in the Newell churches. Devotionals will be in charge of the respective pastors.

HARRY LAUDER COMING TO CITY

Noted Scotch Comedian at Ceramic Dec. 22.

Sir Harry Lauder, the famous singing comedian full of pep and bubbling over with that inimitable something that make imitations of his work so futile, has returned to the United States after an absence of three years, during which he made a complete tour of the world, and will appear at the Ceramic theatre, Wednesday, Dec. 22. The noted Scot will confine his tour of the United States and Canada to a period of twenty-five weeks, which means that only a few favored cities will have an opportunity to hear and see him this season. He comes back with a program of new songs and impersonations, and with the record of having made the most successful world tour ever accomplished by an entertainer, Lauder is indeed an international celebrity.

The songs that he will sing here, include of course, some of the most popular of the old favorites—songs will will never die and which are always in demand during a Lauder engagement. There will, however, be many new ones, the most promising of which have these interesting titltes: "I'm Lookin' fer a Bonnie Lass tae Love Me," "The Boss o' th' Hoose," "When I Meet Mackay" and "Susie Maclean." These new offerings are said to be typically Lauderesque, with all the merry swing and liting melody that make the Lauder songs so distinctive.

Lauder's art has developed and rounded out since he first came to this country. Age has increased, rather than diminished, his cleverness in characterizing a song and "putting it over." Those who go to hear the famous Sir Harry are always sure of a good laugh, with an occasional touch of homely pathos to steady the comedy.

All of Lauder's songs are built around distinctive characters, and each one has its appropriate costume and scenic background. Sir Harry's associate entertainers are also presented in most attractive stage settings.

A Billion Christmas Car

Something like a billion greeting cards are expected to change hands in the next two or three weeks. Every kind of card will be in the mail, from the simplest little printed affair at two or three cents to hand-painted or individually designed cards and etchings and copies of famous paintings, selling as high as $50.

Once in a while some one is moved to ask what it's all about. Certainly it helps to make the postmen's life harder one month every year. It is also an unpleasant but inescapable fact that a good many recipients of these cards glance at the names of the senders, feel pleased a moment and then throw the cards into the nearest wastebasket.

However, the greeting card industry has become a big one and the popular demand for its product shows no weakening. If it really adds to true Christmas joy and good will, then it is probably worth the $16,000,000 at which it is now estimated.

A Mechanical Heart

Russian doctors have found that life may be continued long after the heart and lungs have stopped working, if the blood is kept circulating by artificial means. One of them has devised a machine which "mechanically takes over the functions of the heart." It is an electrical pump that can be connected with the circulatory system. By means of that pump, a dog which had been "put to death with chloroform" was restored to life.

It looks like an improvement on the pulmotor, which merely takes over the function of the lungs until it revives the vital spark and enables them to reassume their normal activity. Many lives may be saved by the new device, in cases of accident or sudden shock, and life may be prolonged in cases of serious heart disease.

No such mechanical contrivance, however, will be a real improvement on the heart. We are not going to have mechanical men or mechanical organs.

Wheels may have certain points of superiority over feet, and the centrifugal pump may seem more efficient than the human heart as a pumping machine. Still, industry has no machine which, day in and day out, year after year, does its work so well as this same delicate and sensitive heart.

With all the imperfections of this elaborate factory of life, the human body, where is the man-made factory that functions so well or lasts so long?

The Roumanian Crisis

Queen Marie's tour of America created greater curiosity about her own country than Americans had ever felt before. Her return home, with the conflicting reports regarding the health of King Ferdinand and the complicated political situation there, has intensified the interest.

Here is what looks like "the low down" on the Roumanian situation, as told by Hamilton Fish Armstrong in "The New Balkans." The quotation, though a mere fragment, is highly illuminating:

"King Ferdinand is seldom mentioned in dispatches from Bucharest except when he is ill. He has never been a directing factor in Roumanian politics, and he would not be today even if he were in good health. Unlike many in his entourage, he is not interested in politics, either theoretical or applied, and is ignorant of his country's needs and wishes.

"An impotent broken sovereign; a scintillating consort with an infinite fund of energy, ambition and determination, marred by bad judgment; a young gentleman (the crown prince) with no particular qualification for leadership, unnecessarily elevated to martyrdom through exile and disbarment from a throne which neither inclination nor temperament adapt him to fill very acceptably; a deserted wife and healthy five-year-old son, about whose head are already gathering the rivalries and strife that seem the inevitable lot of minor rulers—these are the leading personal factors which the politicians of Roumania are trying to manipulate today."

Smake and Pneumonia

City smoke does more than run up laundry bills, aggravate the housecleaning job and make it necessary for people to wash face and hands ofterner than is good for them. Smoke is a powerful source of diseases, especially of one of the most deadly diseases—pneumonia.

Using Pittsburgh as an experimental laboratory, Dr. William C. White of the U. S. Public Health Service finds that city has "the highest constant pneumonia death rate of any community in the world," and that the more smoky the air in any particular ward, the higher is the pneumonia death rate in that ward.

Pneumonia, of course, is a germ disease, and smoke can hardly be accused of carrying the germs. But what the smoke does is to produce such irritation of the membranes of the nose, throat and lungs that the germs, which are present almost everywhere, find easier lodgment and less resistance to growth.

This is perhaps the worst accusation yet brought against city smoke. And it is in order to point out again, in Pittsburgh and every other community suffering from smoky air, that that condition is not necessary. It means imperfect combustion and fuel waste, whose avoidance by well known methods means economy as well as health.

Twin needs of the modern city: Parking space for motor cars and subterranean burrows for pedestrians.

My Favorite Stories

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED.

It was the first night of a revival meeting among the negroes on a Mississippi plantation. The church was a crude affair of logs, lighted by a single lamp which was set upon the pulpit.

Following an earnest sermon on repentance and an impassioned plea for all those present who felt convicted of sin to come forward for confession and surrender, the old preacher said:

"Now, I wants Br'er Johnson to take dis lamp an' stand up yere insides de altar an' hold it up high so all kin see, an' sing dat beatuiful hymn:

"'W'ile de lamp holds out ter burn,
De vilest sinner may return.'

"I'm gwine to look an' see w'ich one of you niggers is gwine to be de fust to come up yere an' confess yore sins an' start on de new life. Sing on, Br'r Johnson, an' hold dat lamp high!"

As the first notes of the song burst forth from Brother Johnson's lips, a man arose from the extreme back part of the church and started forward. As he drew nearer, the peacher recognized him as a man who bore the reputation of being the worst reprobate in the whole country—known far and wide as one utterly devoid of virtue or morality of any kind—guilty of every vice and sin.

As the full consciousness of the enormity of the penitent's sins and his utter abandonment came to the preacher even his faith gave way.

"Br'er Johnson," he shouted, "stop singin' an' blow out de lamp!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Some of the tonicst men sartorially in New York are those whose finger prints grace the Bertillon room at headquarters. The skilled crook has learned clothes add greatly to his security. So does his address.

Few tenants of high class apartment buildings realize how thoroughly their pasts are fine combed before they are permitted to sign a lease. There is a private detective bureau specializing in this sort of work.

A crook in a respectable apartment house is like speck in an apple. In the end it will decay the whole and vast property depreciation results. Two years ago a newspaper discovered that one of those super buildings housed a crook. Tenants broke their leases hurriedly and it is still jinxed.

In the roundup of an international gang of blackmailers the leader was found dining with a beautiful lady in a restaurant. He was a shining symbol of a man of fashion. His capsuled needle pointed mustache would have made Menjou and Lew Cody pout.

He clapped a silk hat on his head at a spruce angle before riding in his limousine to the station. Even the calloused detectives were a little dubious about their catch. He was too grand. Yet he had been a guest at four different state prsisons.

Big cities are gullible for such superb tosh. Contact being casual it is natural for people to judge largely by what is known as "a front." Any number of successful crooks also maintain luxurious offices as a mere gesture but this aids in deception.

The crook has learned the boobery of sitting around in cellars wearing sweaters when he might as well slip into a dinner jacket and join the swells. His chances of detection are slighter and he is also able to have a spry ear cocked for information that will be of cash value.

A little Broadway fad shop is selling small hot water bottles to be placed in women's muffs on cold days. A spy tells me some are used also to carry hot and potent drinks.

The most distinctive handwriting I have seen in New York is that of Herb Roth, the caricaturist. Every letter is in bold print but he has mastered it so well he can write faster than the average person.

This ad. in a theatrical weekly: "Refined, white haired lady, widow of an educator, desires to act as stage mother to some young and pretty girl who needs such maternal protection."

One wonders what the refined lady's reaction at 3 a. m. to a chorine's pleading: "Now mother just one more highball, a Charleston and a look in at Tex Guinan's and we'll toddle home."

And doubtless on the way home mother will have to detour for just one sandwich at Reuben's. Or go on her way alone.

One of the aging voluptuaries who had parafine shot into his chin with a result that might be described as lumpy—a sort of alligator sking effect—has camouflaged the disaster with a luxuriant French beard. Not a lump is to be seen through the new foliage.

It is always interesting to watch those monocle wearers who are inexpert at the art. They hold the monocle as long as they can and when they feel it slipping they have an expression of one just about to bust out crying. The experienced monoclist—my own word and don't write me it is not in the dictionary—is found only in Europe. He sleeps with a monocle, takes a bath wearing it and doubtless is able to skip the gutter without jouncing it out, the silly old egg.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Bequest Week the Latest.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 14.—And now we have Bequest Week! We have had Don't Get Hurt Week, Prevent Fire Week, Clean Up, Paint Up Week, and various others. But Bequest Week is something new. This is to be a week devoted to an effort to induce people to make bequests to various religious and philanthropic organizations. The plan is being fostered by the Committee on Financial and Fiduciary Matters of the Federal Council of Churches.

It has been explained that frequently people wish to make some provision for a particular organization in which they are interested, but do not know just how to go about it so that there can be no doubt of the money's reaching the intended parties. Attention is called to the fact that it is not uncommon to pick up a daily newspaper and see that a will is being contested and very often the church or philanthropic organization to which a bequest has been made never gets the money.

The idea now is to establish a central office where persons interested in making such bequests may consult an expert regarding the proper method of procedure. This central office will not only aid in the correct manner of making a bequest, but will give advice regarding various organizations to which such a bequest might be acceptable. It is believed that this is a much more satisfactory method of giving money than merely to decide upon some institution in a hit or miss fashion.

An example of the latter is given in the case of a wealthy manufacturer who decided to establish a home for orphans. It is said that he invested several million dollars in this. Those who have made a study of such philanthropic work are of the opinion that it would have been much better had he consulted with experts before launching upon such an undertaking.

On the other hand an interesting story is told of a man in one of the large eastern cities. It appears that this man lived alone with his wife. There were no children and no direct heirs. He was known to be a man of means, but it was never suspected that he had great wealth as it is viewed by modern standards. It was true that when five or ten thousand dollars was needed for some project he would come forward with the amount on the condition that his name not be used.

A Man of Many Millions.

Upon his death, however, it was discovered that he had left an estate of some sixty million dollars. This had been systematically divided among various religious, educational, and philanthropic enterprises, with the exception of what was left to the widow. It is said that the manner in which this money was left, indicated that he had made a most careful study of the problem and had availed himself of expert advice.

Bequest Week is featuring the insurance idea—that is, its sponsors are making a drive to induce people all over the country to take out insurance in favor of some religious, educational, or philanthropic organization. This is a new idea and it is not believed to have been tried before on a very large scale. A year ago in Pittsburgh, Bequest Day was held when the local representatives of one of the large insurance companies interviewed 1,370 prospects in the interest of 545 charitable and religious organizations. Out of this number of prospects 57 applications for insurance were secured, the aggregate amount of the policies being $169,500. For one day's work on an entirely new idea this seems a fair return.

During Bequest Week this same company will co-operate with the Federal Council of Churches in its nation-wide attempt to persuade people to insure their lives for the benefit of churches, mission boards, colleges and universities, hospitals, orphanages, old people's homes, and the varied charitable and benevolent work related to the church. It is believed that through this method many people who would like to give something for such purposes will be able to do so, whereas it would be impossible for them to put out a flat sum.

Money Paid As Indicated.

Also when an insurance policy is made payable to a particular person or organization there is no question but that it will be paid as indicated.

Alfred Williams Anthony, chairman of the Committee on Financial and Fiduciary Matters of the Federal Council of Churches has said: "It is good business for life underwriters and it is good business for educational institutions to have these underwriters, when writing life insurance, write pol-

500 BALLOTS CAST AT NOON

Heavy Vote Expected on School Bond Issue Proposal.

Approximately 500 votes, it was estimated, had been cast here at noon today in the special election on the proposal to issue $60,000 bonds for improvements to several school buildings and enclosing the high school athletic field with a steel and concrete fence.

The heaviest voting is expected to take place late in the afternoon at the close of working hours. It is predicted that the total poll will probably exceed the 1,200 mark.

During the past few days interest in the election has been running high with both sides advancing arguments for and against the proposal.

The polls will close at 6:30 and it is expected that the result will be known one hour later due to the fact that the ballot is only a yes and no proposition.

DATES ANNOUNCED FOR STATE FAIR

The West Virginia State Fair for 1927 will be held at the State Fair grounds September 3 to the 10th. This was announced today by Bert Schwartz, secretary. Mr. and Mrs Schwartz returned from Chicago, Ill., where they were in attendance at the annual convention of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions of the United States and Canada.

When the dates for the fairs over the country were assigned the West Virginia Fair association was again favored with Labor Day week. The fair will start on Saturday and continue through Labor day week, the same as during the past year.

At the same time that the fair convention was being held the National Association of Amusement Parks was in progress in Chicago. Those who represented the local amusement park on the Island were John J. Carlin, Paul Heinze and J. R. Trimble.

The conventions lasted during the entire week and one of the big features was the banquet last Wednesday, which was attended by Governor Howard M. Gore of West Virginia. Governor Gore was in Chicago at the time in attendance of the annual Chicago Livestock show.

The elective officers of the state began their sessions yesterday at Charleston as a budget board to prepare the budget bill for submission to the legislature. Proposed expenditures for penal and corrective institutions were taken up today and the board expected to consider the budget for educational institutions tomorrow. Instead of the seven members usually making up the board, it is composed of but six at this time, because Secretary of State George S. Sharp is a member by virtue of his own office and also as acting auditor of the state.

CORONER PROBES AUTO FATALITY

Coroner George A. Arner, of Chester, conducted an investigation last night at New Cumberland into the deaths of Harry Fink and Arthur Ross, both of New Cumberland, who were killed yesterday morning when a car driven by the former left the road and plunged over an embankment at Blackhorse station.

After heaving the evidence of several persons who were in the vicinity the coroner returned a verdict of "accidental death."

GAS-ELECTRIC TRAIN RUNNING

New Service Being Tried Out on Chester-Steubenville Division.

Pennsylvania Railroad company officials were in charge of the run of the new gasoline-electric train operated for the first time last night on the Chester-Steubenville division.

Operations in charge of the regular train crews will be continued during the balance of the week, it was stated today by officials of the company after which it will be determined whether or not the services will be continued indefinitely.

The first train consisted of two cars, the first housing the gasoline engine, which operated the electric generator. In this same coach was a baggage and smoking compartment for passengers with a seating capacity of 45 persons. There was a trailer or coach for women. Each car measures 60 feet in length.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company has decided to try out the gasoline-electric trains, and if a success will continue them. They have been successfully operated in a number of instances, and for the past two years have been under consideration of installation on the branch from Steubenville to Chester. It is claimed that they can be operated at less expense and are just as efficient for service to the public.

The change is also effective on the Wheeling and Lake Erie line.

Attorney E. A. Hart, of New Cumberland, will act as prosecuting attorney of Hancock county during the absence of Prosecutor Thomas Hoffman who left recently for Dayton, Beach, Fla.; where he is visiting during the holidays with his family.

COMMISSION WILL SET DATE FOR FULTZ HEARING

MAY CALL MEET THIS WEEK TO ACT ON APPEAL

Notice is Filed with City Tribunal by Deposed Chief.

TEN-DAY LIMIT

Service Made on Individual Members of Body.

Action looking toward the determination of a date for a hearing on the appeal of John H. Fultz, suspended chief of police, may be taken by the Wellsville Civil Service commission within the next week or 10 days, according to announcement today by members of the municipal tribunal.

Fultz, suspended by Mayor W. L. Fogo last Thursday following the former's refusal to give up a bottle containing a small quantity of liquor which had been introduced in the case of James Pugia, arrested on a possession charge, placed his appeal in the hands of the commission yesterday afternoon.

The appeal reads:

"To the Wellsville Civil Service Commission:

"Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, having been removed from the office of chief of police of Wellsville by Wallace L. Fogo, mayor, desires to appeal to your honorable body from such order of removal and requests that a time be fixed within the limit provided by law for a hearing upon said appeal.

"JOHN H. FULTZ."

To Fultz's appeal was attached an affidavit certifying that he had served copies of the appeal on Dwight McLean, chairman of the civil service commission, A. C. Fogo and Harry Hammond, members, as well as Grattan V. Dugan, secretary of the commission.

Delivery in most of the case was made personally by Fultz.

It is probable, according to commission members, that the body will convene sometime during the latter part of the week or the first of next week, at least within 10 days of the filing of the appeal.

It is necessary, the commission explains, that a date for a hearing on the appeal be set within the 30-day time limit prescribed by statutes.

HIGH PASSERS OPEN SEASON DECEMBER 17

Rochester Quint Will Pry Off Cage Lid.

19 DATES CARDED

Pittsburgh Technical High Billed for First 1927 Tilt.

Wellsville High school's basketball squad, rounding into shape under the direction of Coach Earl S. Klinck, will open 1926-27 campaign on Friday night, December 17 with the Rochester, Pa., school five, according to announcement today by Faculty Manager Robert Trumbull.

A squad of 17 candidates are working out diligently at the high school gymnasium, and enough material has been uncovered to indicate another good Orange and Black quint.

Forward Dickey, Center and Captain Calhoun and Guard Perry are the nucleus around which the team will be organized this year. Dickey, Calhoun and Perry are the hold-overs from last year. With this trio on the job, Coach Klinck does not expect to find the job of completing the squad extraordinarily difficult.

In addition, new material this year has shown plenty of promise. Snowden, Wyper, Foley, Fogo, Householder and a number of others have been working well in practice sessions and will be among the outstanding candidates when the varsity squad finally is chosen.

Practice for the girls' team was launched yesterday afternoon with a squad of 38 players reporting to Coach Klinck from the various gymnasium classes. This squad will be drilled the remainder of the week and then probably will be reduced to a great extent. Miss Pauline Smith, side center and captain of this year's team, and Miss Jean Irwin, a forward are the only veterans from last season's combine.

Following the Rochester game, prior to Christmas, the teams will be idle until January 7 when the boys clash with Pittsburgh Technical high school here, a new opponent this year.

The remainder of the schedule follows:

Jan. 8—At East Palestine.
Jan. 14—Carrollton here.
Jan. 15—Mingo Junction here.
Jan. 21—Salem here.
Jan. 22—Open.
Jan. 28—At Salem.
Jan. 29—Columbiana here.
Feb. 4—At Carrollton.
Feb. 5—East Palestine here.
Feb. 11—At Mingo Junction.
Feb. 12—Chester here.
Feb. 15—East Liverpool here.
Feb. 18 and 19— Open.
Feb. 22—At Lisbon.
Feb. 25—At Chester.
March 1—At East Liverpool.

Manager Trumbull is considering a trip for the open dates on Feb. 18 and 19 but has not concluded negotiations at the present time. The girls' team will figure in 12 contests, including, beside that with the Alumni, games with East Palestine, Mingo Junction, Salem, Columbiana, Chester, Lisbon and East Liverpool.

Plan Examination Tomorrow in Christian Church.

102ND IN STATE

Recommendations Will be Made to Patients' Physicians.

Probably a score or more of cases will be diagnosed at the chest clinic which will be held tomorrow in the First Christian church here, the 102nd of a series being conducted in the state to assist contact cases of tuberculosis.

Dr. E. E. Kirkwood, of the Mahoning county sanitarium, Youngstown and Dr. F. C. Anderson, of the Mt. Vernon sanitarium, chest and tuberculosis specialists, will be the examining physicians.

Dr. M. C. Tarr, city health commissioner and Miss Martha Rex, community nurse, will assist in the clinic.

The health authorities point out that in every instance patients attending the clinic will be referred back to his own physician and that no information as to care or treatment will be given by the examiner.

The patient's physician will be given a copy of the specialists' findings and recommendations.

Dr. Tarr has announced that the physician's consent is necessary before nurses will register any patient for the clinic.

DISTRIBUTE AUTO PLATES

1927 Licenses Ready for Wellsville Motorists.

Distribution of 1,500 automobile tags, the first shipment of the 1927 license plates received here, was started yesterday by C. W. Arnold, deputy automobile commissioner for Wellsville.

The tags include pleasure car, truck and commercial plates.

The Wellsville tags are part of the 14,000 pairs received in Columbiana county.

The local series numbers run from 391-101 to 392-600. The plates have a grey background for black letters and figures.

Applicants must produce their bills of sale or sworn statements of ownership. All bills of sale must bear the recorder's stamp showing that the car has been registered at Lisbon. The number of the bill of sale or sworn statement of ownership, as designated at Lisbon, is also to be made a matter of record upon the registration blank.

Motorists are urged to secure their next year's licenses as soon as possible in order to avoid congestion which usually prevails at the license station during the last few days of the month. The 1927 plates will not be honored by police however, until after January 1, 1927.

Licenses this year will cost $4 for the small type cars, $6 for medium sized and $10 for the larger type. Trucks will be graded according to their weight.

ELKS PLANNING ANNUAL TREAT

Donnelly Heads Committee for Christmas Event.

Needy children of the city will be beneficiaries of the Wellsville lodge of Elks at the organization's annual Christmas treat on Christmas morning in the home in Riverside avenue and Eighth street.

Howard Donnelly heads the committee appointed to supervise the project and will be aided by John Fickes, James Scott, Henry Wooster and Harry Shipley.

Clothing, toys, gifts, candy and fruit will be distributed to the children from the Christmas tree that will be erected in the lodge home for the occasion, by "Santa Claus."

SOLONS TO ACT ON FIRE TRUCK

May Start Legislation at Meeting Tonight.

First legislative action toward the purchase of a fire truck and pumper for the municipal fire department probably will be taken by city officials and members of council tonight at an adjourned meeting of the solons in the city hall.

One of the most important steps that probably will be taken will be the selection of the type of truck that meets with the approval of the officials.

That the truck will be one of three—the American La France, the Seagraves, and the Ahrons-Fox—was indicated by Mayor W. L. Fogo and Safety-Service Director George P. Ashley at a meeting of volunteer and regular firemen Sunday night in the fire station when the fire fighters were asked to indicate their desire in a secret ballot.

Mayor Fogo and Director Ashley at that time pointed out that they had decided that any one of the three types would be adequate to meet the city's requirements.

NEW RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL BEFORE SENATE

WILLIS FIGHTS DIVERSION OF LAKE WATERS

Battle Centers Around Illinois River Appropriation.

OHIO RIVER AID

BY WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The new rivers and harbors bill, attacked by its foes as "pork barrel" legislation and defended by its friends as necessary for the development of inland transportation, came before the senate today for final enactment, following its passage by the house last spring.

The measure will be given right of way over all other legislation. This action was agreed upon by the senate before it adjourned last July and the agreement included a limitation of debate.

Administration leaders predicted a final vote before the Christmas recess.

The measure, however, faces a stiff fight. It is attacked by three groups, the principal assault revolving around the item for deepening the channel of the Illinois river. This plan came under fire from representatives of virtually every other Great Lakes state on the ground that it would result in diversion of water from the great lakes into the Mississippi valley.

Items of Discussion.

Two other items promoting discussion where the senate commerce committee's action in reducing an appropriation from $50,000,000 to $12,000,000 for improving the Missouri river from Kansas City to Sioux City, Iowa, and the inclusion of a $11,500,000 appropriation for purchase of the Cape Cod ship canal. The senate once rejected the latter appropriation.

The Illinois river item, appropriating $1,350,000 to build a channel nine feet deep and 200 feet wide, without any definite limit on diversion of water from the Great Lakes, will be fought by a senate bloc, led by Senator Willis (R.) of Ohio. It will be defended by Senator Deneen (R.) of Illinois and Senator Jones (R.) of Washington. A Chicago delegation headed by Former Mayor William Hale Thompson, attended the debate.

"I am going to carry out my original intention of fighting this bill," said Willis. "There will be no compromise unless it includes a provision that there shall be no diversion of water from the Great Lakes."

To this, Senator Jones replied: "The bill will pass whenever we get a vote on it. It is designed for the development of the country and especially of inland transportation. It will pass."

$110,000 For Ice Piers.

The senate measure included several items not approved by the house, including $1,655,000 for developing the Hackensack River, N. J. and $621,000 for the Galveston, Tex. channel.

The house items, which the senate must approve are $350,000 for Thames river, Conn., $2,000,000 for a waterway from Gravesend bay to Jamaica bay, N. Y. $62,000 for Great Kills, Staten Island, N. Y., $858,000 for Passaic river, N. J., and $91,000 for Appomattox river, $7,000,000 for an intra-coastal waterway from the Mississippi river, near New Orleans, to Corpus Christi, Texas, and $654,000 for a Sabine-Neches waterway, Texas.

Other items are $40,000 for Rock Island and Moline harbors, Ill., $67,000 for Mill Creek and South Slough, Milan Ill., $110,000 for Ohio River ice piers, $35,000 for Youghiogheny river, Pa., $4,921,000 for St. Mary's river, Mich., and $22,000 for Buffalo harbor, N. Y.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Enthusiastic buying of the motor stocks in early trading today was stimulated by the official denial of the Ford Motor company that new models of low priced cars would be ready for the market early next year. Freed from the bugaboo of Ford competition, the stocks of the well known motor companies continued their spectacular forward move, with Chrysler, General Motors, Hudson, Willys Overland, Packard, Dodge, Hupp and White reaching the highest price levels on the move.

The call loan rate of 5 per cent reflected the temporary hardening of the short term money market on the eve of the treasury department's billion dollar "settlements" at the banking institutions.

McDermott's Defense

until Judge E. W. Diehl finally ruled in favor of the state and ordered Kascholk back into the witness box.

Resuming where he left off, after telling how he met McDermott in Cleveland and accompanied him to Massillon, Kascholk continued, under direct examination by the state's attorneys, declaring that he accompanied McDermott to Rudner's hardware store in Massillon.

"I got into a car with a Mr. Smith, McDermott and a big German police dog, and we drove to Canton," the witness said. "We stopped in front of a hotel and Pat and I went in and got a room.

Says Defendant Showed Revolver.

"What happened then?" asked Prosecutor C. B. McClintock.

"McDermott showed me a revolver," he answered.

Kascholk said that after McDermott showed him a revolver the defendant said:

"We'll get him (Mellett) to the door, and I'll shove the gun into his ribs. Then we'll get him outside."

"We went out on a street car, looked the place over and went to a drug store for a soda."

"This is a rotten business, Pat, I told him," said Kascholk, then relating the details of his refusing to go through with the "slugging of an editor," the witness said he went to Cleveland and returned here on July 24 with an attorney of the Legal Aid Society there.

"Have you seen this Mr. Smith since returning here from Cleveland?" McClintock asked.

"Yes, that was Mazer" he said.

"Where did you see Mazer?"

Steve replied that he had seen Louis Mazer, who with McDermott and Ben Rudner, was indicted in connection with the Mellett murder, in United States Attorney A. E. Bernsteen's office in Cleveland.

Reference to Rudner.

"Have you seen the automobile you rode over here in that night?" he asked.

"Yes, but I don't remember much about that," Steve said.

"Do you remember going some place with a Mr. Armstrong?' asked McClintock referring to the Cincinnati detective who assisted Ora Slater, another Cincinnati private detective officer on the case.

"You mean in reference to the car," countered Steve.

"Yes" urged the prosecutor.

"I'm not clear on that auto," Kascholk insisted and could not remember, although the state pressed the question several times.

McClintock then retraced some of the original Kascholk testimony.

"When you went to Massillon did you ever see Ben Rudner in the presence of Pat?" he asked.

"Yes," answered Kascholk. "And Pat said 'this man has more guts than any man that ever walked.'"

After introducing certain clothes which Steve said had been in a suitcase in his hotel room here, McClintock announced that he was temporarily through with the witness.

Cross examination by Attorney Everett Mills was then started.

Will Call "Surprise" Witness.

The state's star "surprise" witness, expected to be called on Friday to testify against McDermott, is William Betzeler, it was announced today. Betzeler, originally from Johnstown, Pa., will tell details of McDermott's activities on the night of the killing of Mellett, it was said by an attorney for the prosecution. He has been kept carefully in hiding since he was located by the investigators of the case.

ROBERTS FLAYS "SILENT MAN" IN OIL LAND CASE

Prosecution Trains Guns on "Invisible Witness."

COTTER NAMED

Doheny Attorney and Once Secretary to Franklin Lane.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The defense today made its supreme gesture for the acquittal of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and E. L. Doheny, charged with fraudulently wresting oil lands of untold value from their government.

Following an appeal for conviction, by Owen J. Roberts, Frank J Hogan, defense ace, noted for his ability to sway a jury, took the floor.

He launched into an attack on Roberts, the government counsel. "Gentlemen," he said, "you have listened to as wholesale and vicious a villification as ever polluted the atmosphere of a court room.

"You have heard it from the lips of a man made desperate by the fact that in the past week he has seen his flimsy case collapse before him. You have seen him hopelessly trying to rebuild it from the shreds by his oratory."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—An "invisible witness" was flayed today by Owen J. Roberts, special oil counsel for the government as he completed his final argument demanding the conviction of former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and E. L. Doheny, millionaire oil man, for criminal conspiracy in the leasing of naval oil reserves.

This "silent man" was described as J. J. Cotter, Doheny's attorney and former secretary to Franklin Lane, secretary of the Interior under President Wilson.

"Joe Cotter" said Roberts, "knows more about this case than anybody else—Doheny included. Why haven't we heard from him?"

Reading from the testimony of other witnesses, Roberts showed Cotter's appearance at every stage in the negotiations which culminated in Doheny's acquisition of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve.

Doheny Is Scored.

"Gentlemen," the prosecutor asked the jury, "What is the implication when a man has knowledge, is available, but is not called?

"It can only be because his testimony would neither convince you nor aid the defense cause.

"Remember that Joe Cotter was the one man who conducted the negotiations for Doheny, and he was not summoned to tell about them.

Roberts then trained his guns on Doheny.

"Mr. Doheny," he said, "has come before you with the most incredible statement imaginable. With all his knowledge of business, he has the temerity to tell you that he was "a perfect fool" about the preferential right clause in the Pearl Harbor contract, whereby he later got the naval reserve."

Roberts criticised Doheny's motive in appearing before the senate investigating committee three years ago and admitting that he, and not E. B. McLean, had loaned Fall $100,000.

"He said he wanted the public to know, but we now know why he confessed. Because Senator Walsh went to Miami and got the truth out of McLean that he didn't make the loan. Because Fall then wired Doheny that "the facts were about to come out and names be known." That's why Doheny came forward. He had to. He was about to be found out.

Thieves Attempt To Loot Carl Turk Home in East End

Two unidentified thieves made an unsuccessful attempt to loot the home of Carl Turk, Erie street and Maryland avenue, East End, at 6:30 o'clock last night.

As Turk drove up to the door of his garage two men ran from the building and disappeared in the darkness. Turk, upon investigation, discovered that a glass in the garage door had been smashed and the doors opened. With an iron bar the intruders had also forced open the door which leads from the garage into the kitchen of the house.

Nothing in the house was disturbed. Turk believes that the robbers had just entered the house and that his return frightened them away. Captain of Police Conley made an investigation.

vestors in the Panhandle section of West Virginia and eastern Ohio lost thousands of dollars, it was alleged, when the institution closed its doors following an examination by a representative of the state banking commissioner's office.

Delay after delay occurred in the trial of the two men, who were released under bond. They faced a jury in December, 1925, and on the 18th day a verdict of guilty was returned. Sentence was passed in February after motions for new trials were overruled. In the interim, the case has been pending before the state supreme court of appeals.

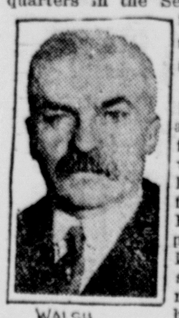
WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Senator Tom Walsh of Montana is a bit too old to play Hamlet.

It's an infinite pity. He was made for the part, physically and mentally.

Observe him, enroute from his quarters in the Senate Office Building to the Capitol, to "start something."



WALSH

He has a thin, highly intelligent, ascetic, hatchet face, with a very wide, lofty forehead. He's profoundly abstracted. He doesn't see the people he's passing. He scowls introspectively. His mouth is bitter. If he'd lived, Hamlet would have had just such a physiognomy at 67.

Walsh is a slight, smallish individual, but acting, like a swordsman, same as Hamlet. He strides briskly. He's on his way to skewer somebody and is in a hurry to get there, as Hamlet would have been.

He's extremely spruce, in black cutaway, pearl gray throusers and patent leathers. Hamlet was a dandy.

Walsh drips gloom, pessim'sm. He never smiles. He never jokes. He can't see anything funny in other folks' jokes. His mission is vengeance and he can't waste a minute on anything else until he's wreaked it.

If he ever had a sense of humor it's atrophied.

Yes, Walsh was on his way to skewer somebody.

It was the opening day of the short session of the 69th congress and it was his purpose to make the first speech and raise the first hades of the occasion—to usher in the session with a demand for the investigation of charges made against Arthur R. Gould, new Republican senator from Maine, in the recent campaign in that state.

He made his speech, he raised his hades and the senate adopted his investgation resolution.

Walsh settled back in his seat contentedly. He didn't smile but he looked satisfied. He had pointed to something which may possibly prove to be rotten in the state of Denmark.

As an instigator of troublesome investigations, Senator Jim Reed of Missouri is the only member of the upper house of congress in a class with Senator Walsh.

Reed, however, is a different type from Walsh.

Reed investigates largely in a spirit of pure mischief. He likes to get a witness on toast and have fun with him. He's a witty senator. His wit has a good deal of malice in it and a good deal of partisanship, but he can see a joke's point, even when it's at his expense, and get a laugh out of it.

To Walsh an investigation is a painful thing. He's sorry there's so much wickedness in the world. He regrets that the opposition party can't play honest politics, as his party does, in his opinion. He considers it his duty to expose wrongdoing and he goes ahead and exposes as much as he can of it, but he doesn't get any enjoyment out of it. At any rate, he doesn't get the same kind that Senator Reed does.

France Passing New Laws for Curbing Power of Landlords

PARIS.—American as well as other foreign holders of real estate in France cannot evict French tenants who occupy their property for "personal habitation or for commercial, industrial or agricultural purposes" under the terms of an amendment to the financial bill coming before the French Chamber soon.

The amendment already has been approved by the finance committee, but still has to go through parliament before it becomes a law. The law now allows French landlords to exercise the right of eviction in certain circumstances.

We used to wonder what became of all the dull boys and girls after they left school, but lately we've begun to suspect that a good many of them are drifting into vaudeville.—Columbus Dispatch.

ROAD REPORT IS SUBMITTED

County Surveyor Files Date With State Highway Officials.

Under the provisions of section 7181 of the general code of Ohio, the county surveyor is required to report annually to the chief engineer of the highway department the mileage of improved roads within his county, separating them as to the mileage on state system and on county and township system. This report was forwarded today and shows the following:

Brick—53.40 on state system; 26.84 on county; total, 80.24.

Concrete—50.94 on state; 19.58 county; total 70.52.

Asphaltic concrete—1.17 on state; total, 1.17.

Asphaltic concrete willite method—1.41 county; total 1.41.

Bit. macadam—25.65 on state; 7.22 county; total 32.87.

W. B. macadam—7.96 on state; 9.73 county; total 17.69.

Stone—1.15 county; total 1.15.

This makes a total mileage of 139.12 miles on state system and 65.93 on county system or a grand total of 205.05.

There has been a marked increase in the concrete roads in the last year and a marked decrease in brick and macadam and all classes of asphaltic roads.

In the matter of county line road one-half of the mileage on these roads is credited to this county, the remaining half to adjoining counties.

CLUB SUGGESTS CLEAR CROSSING

The Youngstown & Ohio River Railroad company is to be petitioned by the county commissioners to have both north and south bound cars "clear" all intercounty highway crossings before stopping to permit the discharge or receipt of passengers.

This proposition was placed before the commissioners by the county automobile club, the latter asking that the commissioners use their friendly office in having the carrier issue such instructions to its trainmen.

Reports of near wrecks and cars being ditched because cars did not clear crossings when stopping caused the automobile club to lay the proposition before the commissioners.

Made Party Defendant.

On his own motion, C. A. Shaffer has been made a party defendant in the action for receivership filed in common pleas court by Frank G. Jones, doing business as the Ohio Valley Oil company, and against M. G. Martin and Ray Kaul, partners, and doing a coal business at East Liverpool.

The court appointed a receiver on the original petition last week.

Leave To File Granted.

Leave to file an answer and cross petition has been granted the defendant in the case of Edward Wardles against James Pugie. This action is for the recovery of $500 claimed to be due the plaintiff as damages as a result of an automobile accident. The answer and cross petition can be filed immediately.

A motion for alimony has been allowed by Judge W. F. Lones in common pleas court in the action filed by Belva Rauch against her husband, Edward Rauch. icies which make social, educational, and religious institutions ultimate beneficiaries. Those whose business it is to help the safeguarding and protecting influences of husband and father to care for widow and children after death, can also help graduates and friends of a college to benefit it either directly or by letting remainders, after life interests have been served, come to it."

The advance in the cost of living has affected the churches, hospitals, orphanages, old people's homes, etc., in the same way it has individuals. It is figured that it now costs from two two three times as much to maintain one person in a home for the aged as it did 25 years ago. Hospitals are constantly emphasizing the increased cost of operation.

A member of the pension board of one of the large Protestant denominations in one city says that their fund must be increased from eight million to fifteen or twenty million. This sounds like a tremendous sum, and of course it is. When it is considered, however, that the number of persons who must be pensioned under the eight million dollar fund makes the amount available to each only about $300 a year, it can be seen readily that the need for more money is very real. Twenty-five years ago $300 a year was sufficient for an old person to live in some degree of comfort, but now it would not go far even if used frugally.

Individual institutions make drives for funds with more or less success but for the most part there appears always to be less money available than that needed to carry on the work in an adequate fashion. If enough people can be persuaded to insure their lives for the benefit of such institutions this may be one solution of the problem. As has been said before, no doubt there are many wh would be glad to pay out a moderate such each year so that in time a substantial amount might be paid to a particular institution or organization in which they were interested.

The first Bequest Week began yesterday and whether it will be the forerunner of an annual event depends largely upon the way in which the idea is received by the public.

So Many Endure Catarrh Needlessly

Why bear with the distress of stopped-up head, constant phlegm in the throat, irritating mucus discharge, or other unpleasant effects of catarrh when thousands have proved that you, too, can get rid of catarrh.

Catarrh is an inflamed condition of the mucous membrane—the delicate lining of nose, throat and head. Clear that up, and catarrh—catarrhal bad breath—and catarrhal deafness disappear.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine has been successful in the treatment of catarrh for over 40 years. Ask your druggist. Price 85c. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

DOES MORE WORK AND FEELS LESS TIRED, HE SAYS

Cleveland Electrician Is Grateful to Indian Medicine.

Like many a person who dragged along from morning until night, dreading work, Henry T. Williams, electrician for the Cleveland St. Railway Co., has been restored to health and vigor by Redwood's Tepee Tonic.

Redwood

Mr. Williams lives at 2067 E. 90th St. He says: "Gas would form in my stomach and bowels and bloat me. Meat and potatoes hurt me worse than other foods. I felt tired and draggy even though I hadn't done much work.

"I took Redwood's Tepee Tonic and after finishing the first bottle I felt better. I continued taking it and now my bowels are regular and I don't have that tired feeling."

If your health is poor try Tepee Tonic. It has helped others and it will also help you. Sold and recommended by Carnahan's Drug Store in East Liverpool and by other well stocked drug stores everywhere.

G. O. P. HOUSE MEMBERS-ELECT TO ORGANIZE

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 14.—Republican house members-elect were to meet here this afternoon in caucus and nominate a speaker, majority floor leader, clerk, sergeant-at-arms, parliamentarian and other assistants.

The Republican state senators-elect will caucus here Friday and nominate their slate of officials.

Candidates for the speakership include Representatives-elect O. C. Gary, Cadiz banker; E. H. Kreuger, Cleveland, second termer, and John T. Brown, Mechanicsburg, farmer. In event that a deadlock between this trio developes, house members today hinted that a dark horse may win.

British Engineers Win Over German Builders For Buenos Aires Tubes

LONDON.—A victory for British over German engineering is claimed as the result of the concession to a British group for the construction of a tube railroad in Buenos Aires. Over $50,000,000 will be expended in Britain for materials alone.

Not for fifteen years has such an engineering concession been secured in South America by British industries. It came as result of terrific contest between those engaged in the British electrical industry and German and other industries in South America.

During the past twenty years, German interests have secured almost a monopoly of electric light, power and tramway operations in South America, while other big German concerns have secured huge contracts for various public works.

This has largely been the result of the active assistance of German banks, who have supported the manufacturers throughout, while British industrialists have hitherto relied on individual efforts. On the present occasion the British interests made a concerted drive and it is stated that the people of Buenos Aires are enthusiastic of the plans submitted to them.

The Community Bank will loan you money to pay your taxes.

W. C. FIELDS IN COMEDY ROLE

Alice Joyce Also Featured in Ceramic Film.

The story of a glazier which can be seen through and laughed at! That's W. C. Fields' latest Paramount starring comedy, "So's Your Old Man," which opened at the Ceramic last night. Fields, long a favorite on the stage and rapidly developing into a screen comic of the first water, has more than hit his stride.

This picture, adapted from Julian Street's O. Henry Memorial Prize Short Story, "Mr. Bisbee's Princess," is the very human tale of one Samuel Bisbee, glazier and village character of Waukeagus. The despair of his wife and daughter, he has invented an unbreakable glass windshield which he hopes will make their fortune.

At a big convention, he displays his wares but picks on the wrong windshield. Taking deliberate aim at what he believes to be his own car, a brick flies through the air and causes a fusillade of flying glass. He tries again and again, but doesn't succeed in finding the right windshield. As a result of his failure, Sam has to resort to the efforts of his feet in endeavoring to catch a train.

THE NAME TELLS A TRUE STORY

The very name, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, tells why, without opiates or chloroform, it is so quickly effective in stopping coughs and in healing the distressing cause. Because it alone combines the curative virtues of pure Pine Tar and other healing ingredients, together with the mollifying demulcent effects of clear fresh Honey. From 651 E. 46th St., Chicago, comes this: "A stubborn cough worried me, kept me awake nights, and resisted other cough medicines, but quickly yielded to your good Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. My druggist recommended it." Ask for it. Sold everywhere.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. DEAR FRIENDS:

December 14, 1926.

Well, there's just 9 more shopping days until Christmas. I can see right now that they're going to be busy days for us, too.

I'm getting a big thrill out of it.

For instance, I know a little lady who is going to be made happy with a new wrist watch; I know a man who will find a beautiful cigarette case in his stocking on Christmas morning; I know a wife who will get a whole chest of silverware.

Can't tell you their names, of course. But don't you hope it's you?

Season Tickets For High Games To Go On Sale Wednesday

Full Period Strips Will Be Offered To Court Game Patrons

Fans May Purchase Seats for Each of Team's Eleven Home Games at One Transaction; at Slight Reduction Under Single Game Cost.

"Get your high school basketball tickets early and get them in season strips if you want to take advantage of bargain prices that accompany the full period pasteboards," is the tip offered by Faculty Manager Decker today, as he announces plans for the sale of cage admissions for 1926-27 contests in which Coach Lorah's Blue and White quint will figure.

Season tickets for the coming campaign will be placed on sale on Wednesday night at 7 o'clock in the main office in the high school building. The ticket sale then will be continued on Thursday evening and, if there should happen to be any left, these will be offered on Tuesday night of next week.

The sale will be held at night, Manager Decker announces, in order that everyone will have an equal chance to get their applications in.

The season pasteboards will be disposed of at $5.00 and for that amount, fans will purchase seats for each of the eleven home contests on the schedule, which will bea t the rate of a fraction of a cent more than 45 cents for each game.

Single admission reserve seats will be sold before each game at 50 cents each and general admission will go at 35 cents.

The season tickets also include the games in which the Reserves play when arranged as preliminaries to high school contests. However, Manager Decker explains, special charge will be made when the Reserves are in action on the local court and the varsity squad is away.

HINT $10,000 PAY BOOST FOR JUDGE LANDIS

Major Leaguers Will Put O. K. on His Regime.

$60,000 SALARY

Baseball Czar Will be Named for Seven Year Term.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Unqualified endorsement of the Landis regime and an advance in the judge's salary by a matter of $10,000 a year was the tip in circulation today on the outcome of the major league baseball meetings, starting simultaneously in New York and Chicago.

The action in question, it was inferred, would not be taken because the judge was loved for himself alone. It was to be forced, they said, by fear of public opinion, which might become adverse in the event that the judge stood on his dignity and feet long enough to walk out on the deal. This would give the unfortunate impression of baseball being unable to tolerate a sincere regime.

The nomination of the judge for another term of seven years at $60,000 a year is supposed to come from a National league owner. An American leaguer, it was said, woud second the nomination and then there was to be nothing to it except to count the contrary vote of Phil Ball. Philip is a Johnson man to the death.

Publicly, he is the only club owner who is adverse to Landis. Privately and strictly sub rosa, there are several such in both leagues; at least, up to and including the matter of Landis' aribrary powers. The boys may not mind being kicked into line on occasions but they object to paying for the privilege.

However, it is understood that the judge will not permit any weakening of his position by tampering with the major league agreement. So there seems to be nothing for it except for the boys to smile bravely through their tears.

The judge's contract seems to be the only matter of real moment to be considered, unless a few managers lose all self-control and pull a deal or two out of the hat. A few of the possibilities have been aired during recent weeks. Fumigation might have been better at that.

However, there seems to be some basis for the belief that the Yankees and White Sox may do business over Aaron Ward during the Chicago meting. The Yanks are said to have asked for Ted Lyons, causing the Sox to ask for smelling salts. The trade, if consumated, may be carried through on the basis of Ward and a pitcher for Hollis Thurston.

On this end, the proposed deal of the Boston Braves for Bill Terry, of the Giants, may mature. The Giants are said to want Joe Genewich in return and it may be that they will get him. Brooklyn also has declared itself in favor of Burleigh Grimes' departure. Burleigh is a good, smart pitcher but so far the silence among the bidders has been deafening. The 39-year-old Wheat also has been declared on the block without causing any great loss of life in the stampede for the gentleman's service.

Dreyfuss Assails Baseball "Farms" at Big League Meet

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—Big league club owners were characterized as "a bunch of hypocrites" because they preached the draft but practiced the maintenance of "farms," in a statement made by Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, before the National league meeting convened today. Dreyfuss said he planned to fight against minor league farms at the joint meeting in Chicago this week, declaring the system to be unfair to other owners and to minor league players.

His principal complaint seemed to be against the St. Louis Cardinals, which he said owned six minor league clubs.

INSIDE Ggolf

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

When you reach for the golf ball, in the address, you are almost certain to develop the habit of slicing, unless by some miracle you acquire the knack of somehow offsetting the falling—forward habit you are almost certain to get into. Keep that in mind: A reach for the ball in the address invariably means falling forward, toward the ball in the forward swing. This often causes the club to dig into the ground just back of the ball or, if the ball is hit, the heel of the club takes it and a slice results. In the stance and address stand just far enough from the ball so that the arms are clear off the body and the clubhead rests back of the ball without the slightest tendency on your part to reach for it. How far your arms clear your body is determined by the stoop you use. If you stoop greatly, the arms should be considerably out from the body, but still they should not reach for the ball. It is better to stand more erect, as this permits the easiest turning of the body.

Variety of Nom De Plumes To Be Sported By County League Teams

The Mullins, Quakers, Paragons, the Elks, Boosters and Scholastics—they're not baby foods, nor inhabitants of a menagerie—but six of the eight amateur basketball teams that will battle in the first Columbiana county circuit of its kind.

The Salem entry will show its wares under the name of the Salem Mullins Body Corporation and is figured as one of the strong combines of the recently formed loop.

The Quakers will win or lose for Damascus, whose historical data brings to the floor squad the name it will wear against county rivals.

If the East Palestine contingent, which opens the home schedule for the East Liverpool five Friday night at the high school manage: to show the ability of which north countains are boasting, it might be said of them, with a change or so in Shakespeare's orginal remark: "They have achieved a game that paragons description and wild fame." The East Palestine Paragons, with a bevy of good material, are counting on a big year.

The Elks are East Liverpool's own and while wearing the purple and white of the lodge will attempt to bring cage glory to the Ceramic City under the direction of Coach Bill Powell, old Central League star.

The Columbiana passers will be known as the "Boosters." If advance reports, which indicate that Hawkins, all around athlete, and several other of the former Miller Brothers five came into the fold, are true, Columbianans will have something worth boosting.

The Salineville and Wellsville quints, which probably will sally forth under those names, complete the list.

Tip from President.

Granting, of course, that attendance warrants, the league is certain to be a success if it is maintained and operated in the same spirit as that in which it was organized, in the opinion of Charles "Dim" Zange, of this city, who is president of the circuit.

It must be kept on an amateur basis, with high salaried players barred.

"The game for the game's sake" is the keynote.

Team Managers Busy.

Team managers have been kept busy for the last two weeks but will take a back seat the latter part of the week, as the schedule gets under way, and let the players do the work. The county league was organized in record time and the success in these preliminary plans was due entirely to the initiative and hard work of the managers. This delegation includes: Ray Adams, of the East Liverpool Elks; C. C. Roher, of Columbiana; Ralph Addison, of Salineville; Leroy Allen, of Salem; George Davis, of Wellsville; Stewart Orndorff, of East Palestine; B. M. Sullivan, of Lisbon, and A. F. Bye, of Damascus.

High School's Gridiron Star Was a Husband

FINDLAY, O., Dec. 14.—You seldom hear of a high school football player being married, but Findlay had one this past season in Captain Hollice Plotts, 19 years old, a tackle. The announcement that he had married Carolyn Irvina Benner, of Findlay, in Covington, Ky., on August 31, was made just a few days ago.

PLOTTS

Plotts played three years on the Findlay high football squad. He played tackle on the undefeated eleven of 1925. He will graduate next June. His wife was on the sidelines at every game this fall.

McGraw Knocks Out Johnny Rocco in Jersey City Fight

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 14.—Phil McGraw, spectacular lightweight from Detroit, had added to his prestige today by virtue of his clean victory over Johnny Rocco, of New Rochelle, in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

A terrific right to the heart floored Rocco in the fourth, and the New Rochelle fighter failed to arise until after the count of ten. The early knockout was somewhat of a surprise, as the bout had been fast and furious from the start. Rocco had successfully ducked McGraw's ferocious right from the beginning, and had given good blows in return.

Bison Passers Again Will Make Strong Bid for Tri-State Title

Schedule Being Arranged is One of Stiffest Green and White Five Has Ever Undertaken.

BETHANY, W. Va., Dec. 14—Having fully appreciated the rest since the close of the football season, the athletes of Bethany college, under Coach Furman L. Nuss and Captain Leland R. Beckwith of Buffalo, N. Y., will now turn to basketball. For the last thre years; in fact, ever since the Bisons defeated one of W. & J.'s greatest teams in 1925, holding the Washingtonians scoreless the first half of the game, Bethany has been noted for crack floor teams.

Since entering the Tri-State Conference, although they have never won the championship honors, the small West Virginia institution has ever presented a strong and formidable front against all of her opponents. Last year, when the Bisons for a time looked like possible winners of the conference, injuries to Captain Hanna and Hamill put a crimp in their chances, and the Bisons were forced to bite the dust at the hands of Duquesne by a margin of one point. This defeat practically eliminated the Green and White from the running, as Geneva later scored a 30-27 coin over the Bison Herd at Beaver Falls.

Coach Nuss has been looking over his material for this year with more interest than ever, as he feels that the football season which the Buffalo Creekers have just enjoyed is only the starting point of a great year in athletics at Bethany College. The schedule being arranged by Director of Athletics, C. V. Elder, is one of the stiffest a Green and White five has ever undertaken, but from all appearances, Coach Nuss' charges will undoubtedly come thru as expected.

In Captain Beckwith, the Bisons have a leader who has seen regular service on the Bethany varsity for two years, and around whom the Bison Mentor is expected to build a team comparable to any of those in the past, representing this institution.

Radio announcers are pestered with "mash notes" but it's easy for them to give the authors "the air."—Defiance Crescent-News.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

THE willingness of Dan Howley, new manager of the St. Louis Browns, to have George Sisler, deposed pilot, continue as a member of the team and as first baseman of the outfit presents an interesting situation.

First of all it indicates that Sisler puts baseball and his desire to win in the game above his own personal pride. It is not easy for a manager to step down into the ranks and watch another man wield the reins he once held.

Secondly it shows that Howley is not afraid of the presence of the former manager on the team—not a bit afraid that there will be a conflict in judgment at times and a wavering of the players between two loyalties.

Howley is "big" as men go He realizes that Sisler was handicapped in one way or another all of the time he manged the St. Louis club. More than anything Sisler was handicapped by his lack of experience in handling men. Through his college days Sisler didn't have to formulate and direct his team's play at Michigan. Sisler was virtually the team. No effort was needed, by the same token, to get from each member of the team the same measure of loyalty to the captain and the team.

Sisler, at St. Louis, found himself faced suddenly with the necessity of making a couple of dozen ball players appreciate the fact that he was not only their boss but able to teach them the tricks of the trade.

Howley has had the experience—has filled every position in baseball, so to speak. And he can handle men.

He is confident that he can handle the team Sisler had—with Sisler as one of the rank and file.

Murray Prepares For Battle Monday With 'Fargo Express'

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Lee Murray, English lightweight managed by Billy Gibson, will arrive in Chicago today to train for his fight with Billy Petrolle, the "Fargo Express" at Milwaukee next Monday night. After a hard day's work in a local gym, Murray will entrain for the scene of battle.

JACK DELANEY TO QUIT THRONE

Will be Contender for Heavyweight Crown.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Jack Delaney will resign as light heavyweight champion of the world within two months in order to fight, without official handicaps, as a legitimate contender for the heavyweight title.

This was the good word in circulation today and boxing men of national repute vouched for its accuracy. They declared that Delaney's action will be forced upon him in order to evade the curse of one of those New York state athletic commission edicts which would send him into the ring against Gene Tunney weighing not more than 175 pounds, under pain of disqualification. The commission already has established this precedent by ordaining that no champion may fight out of his class in this state except at the weight at which his title was won.

With the heavyweight sweepstakes promising a golden harvest for all concerned, the light heavyweight title would be worth no such sacrifice to Delaney.

The title itself, outside of this fact, would prove little encumbrance, it was said, since Delaney was smart enough to laugh off a title defense for six months, as a result of his workout with Jamaica Kid at Waterbury, Conn., last week.

Both of the principals made 175 pounds for the match; therefore, it must go down in the book as a title bout, leaving Delaney to his own devices for the next six months. In brief, he no longer can be confronted by some sap who wishes to battle him for the light heavyweight title at a time when the young man will be absorbed with the heavyweight problems.

However, even this strategy will not be sufficiently effective to make the light heavyweight title worth its burden, they say. The answer is found in the action taken some time ago by the New York commission in ordering Paul Berlenbach, then champion, to weigh 175 pounds or abandon his idea of fighting Johnny Risko a heavyweight. The board was so pleased with the idea that they made it apply to champions in all classes. It still applies—for the reason that the commission's last guess is always its best.

Of course, Delaney could avoid the edict by fighting his heavyweights in Jersey. This would be an easy out, if it wasn't for the fact that Rickard and Fugazy, the leading promoters, have leases on the two ball parks in New York and I presume they mean to use them.

Rickard has a Jersey site but Delaney isn't his man, anyhow, and says he won't be.

Fugazy will bring Delaney and Jack Sharkey together before February or break a bicep in the attempt. By that time, Delaney, who is alleged to have weighed less than 173 pounds the other night, may be well above the 175 pound class at his natural weight. He won't want to meet Sharkey at any other; therefore, they say the light heavyweight title must be cast off, at least for the time being.

Anyhow that woman swimmer who insists on wearing nothing more than a coat of axle grease in the Pacific race doesn't intend to "muddy the water."—Zanesville Signal.

A word to the WIVES—

For every pipe-smoker on your list

AT THIS season, when you are being urged on every hand to "Give this" and "Give that," be assured of this truth: Nothing you could give a pipe-smoker could make more of a hit than a generous supply of Prince Albert . . . mild, mellow, fragrant Prince Albert.

Here, for instance, is the crystal-glass humidor, all dolled up in holiday clothes. It contains a full pound of P. A.—the grandest tobacco that ever lined the bowl of a pipe. There's a little sponge in the top of the humidor to keep the tobacco "just right."

Every pipe-smoker on your list would be tickled to death to find this good-looking package among his gifts on Christmas morning. It will brighten the Big Day for him and furnish deep-down pipe-joy for the days that follow. The Prince Albert humidor, by all means!

This prime favorite of experienced smokers also comes in pound and half-pound tins. At the nearest shop, you will find Prince Albert in sizes to suit every purse and purpose. If he smokes a pipe, your Christmas problem is settled . . . and settled satisfactorily.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT

Annexation Means Additional Polling Places in City.

Legislation fixing the boundary lines of the four voting wards in East Liverpool will be considered by council at an early date as the result of the county commissioners' approval of the annexation proposal.

Unless held up by a court injunction the new territory, amounting to about 560 acres, will be added to the city within 60 days. Council will be required to complete its legislation fixing the ward lines early in the year if the newly acquired voters are to vote at the municipal primary election in August.

After council fixes the ward lines, the county election board will then establish precincts. At least one more voting precinct will be established probably in the Third ward to take care of the voters who now reside in what is known as the Maplewood and Park boulevard sections. This precinct will probably be located along St. Clair avenue near Maplewood.

Voters in the newly acquired territory will be required to register in the city before they are permitted to vote.

POSTCARDS IN UNIQUE CONTEST

One of the most novel round-the-world contests for a substantial prize on record is announced. Whether a post card can be sent from New York around the world in faster time by the east-bound route than the west-bound, is the point to be decided. On the outcome depends a wager of $500, made by two prominent New York philatelists, Hugh Clark and Theodore E. Steinway.

Within a few days the two postcards, Mr. Clark's bearing a portrait of President Coolidge, and that of Mr. Steinway a picture of Governor Al. Smith, will be started around the world, in opposite directions. The first to circumnavigate the globe and arrive at the Collectors club, No. 51 West 48th street, this city, will be declared winner. The rules of the contest are simple, it being agreed that the card traveling eastward, of course, shall be entitled to forty-eight hours handicap to make up for the difference in time—the east bound card losing a day and the other gaining twenty-four hours.

DORIS KENYON AT AMERICAN

Star Tells How Women Can Improve Looks.

Any woman who likes to be photographed occasionally—and who doesn't—can get better pictures if she listens to a few hints from Doris Kenyon, star of "Ladies at Play," now showing at the American theatre.

Miss Kenyon has to sit before a camera daily. It's her business. So she knows how to get the best results from the lenses. Here are a few words of her advice:

"Beware of too much rouge; the red photographs dark, and it makes the cheeks appear hollow and the cheek bones prominent.

"The woman who has a florid complexion should use a lighter shade of powder than she would use for the street.

"Eyebrows of the brunette should be darkened quite heavily.

"The lip rouge should be dark red. It will photograph black, but that is the way lips appear in photographs normally, and it makes the teeth appear whiter. Just before the photo is snapped, wet the lips slightly. This will impart a glisten that improves the appearance of the photograph.

"Use black mascara for the eyelashes, applying a heavier coat than most women wear for street use. A thin black line right at the edge of the lids is also an advantage, if it is desired to make the eyes appear larger and brighter.

"As for costumes, remember that reds, strong yellows, red-golds, and orange tints photograph black, while blues and purples normally appear much lighter in photographs than they do to the eye. Beware, too, of the use of lavender, if you do not understand that its brighter shades, which look fairly dark to the eye, often photograph a dazzling white!

"Bearing these facts about colors in mind, plan your costumes for portrait sittings accordingly and your pictures will benefit greatly."

Canada is Rapidly Overtaking America In Phone Ownership

MONTREAL, P. Q. — Canada is catching up to the United States in the per capita ownership of telephones. The Dominion has an average of one phone to every 8.4 people, while America has one to every 7.3, according to P. A. McFarlane, president of the Telephone Association of Canada, in an address here before the association's annual convention.

"Telephones passed the 1,000,000 mark in Canada this year," said Mr. McFarlane. "The total stood at 1,072,454 on January 1, compared with 902,090 in 1921. Investment in telephones in the Dominion now amounts to $200,000,000.

"Owenrship of telephones on farms ish higher per capita in Western Canada than in any other area in North America. There are two rural telephone subscribers to every urban subscriber in Saskatchewan. In Manitoba where the population is more than 60 per cent rural, there is a phone for every 7.5 residents."

The ENTERTAINING ANGEL

By SAMUEL MERWIN

SYNOPSIS:

Julian Reed is wandering southern California in his little roadster. At luncheon in a small restaurant he meets, by chance, a charming rather wistful young woman. She has missed connections with a troupe of vagabonding actors and he offers to drive her to the troupe's next stopping place, La Jolla. She accepts his offer. Julian meets Watt, the chief of the "Wayside Theatre"; Sadie, an ex-chorus girl, and the rest. Julian comes to the rescue of the troupe financially. Sadie is attracted to him. She tells him how Hester risked everything to try for the leading role in a movie of a play written by "Robert Johns," failed and joined the troupe as a last resort. Julian falls in love with Hester but when she learns of his financial help to Watt, is angry and will have nothing to do with him. Watt offers him a half interest in the enterprise for $4,000 and he accepts. Then he goes away for a time. A new member of the troupe, a college boy, Joe Maybury, is introduced. He, too, loves Hester. She knows he is much younger than she, but to her he is the symbol of youth and his love helps restore her faith in herself. The other members of the troupe understand and pity her. Julian rejoins the troupe at San Diego. Hester has nothing to say to him and walks away when he tries to speak to her. He has bought her a beautiful bracelet, but when she snubs him he thrusts it upon Sadie. Because of his clumsiness in helping with the scenery Joe names Julian "Marceline" after a famous old clown who tries to help but is in everyone's way. Unintentionally at first he calls Julian Marceline to his face, which angers him. Julian has a talk with Hester, telling her he loves her and considers her wonderful. Jim Wilde, stage manager, tells Julian that Lester, the young leading man, is leaving the troupe and that Hester and Watt think Joe may be trained to fill his place. It is decided that he will be given the chance. Joe again calls him "Marceline," whereat Julian warns him not to use that name again, but Joe laughs. Sadie overhears the conversation. Julian writes a play for Hester and is so engrossed he pays attention to no one.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE.

The only downright unhappy moments that Julian experienced during this period came when, on occasions, he wandered around behind the audience and watched the two in their scenes. Sadie watched for him there during her off half-hours. He seemed to her dazed about what was going on, but still carried forward by his faith in what he was doing. One night even Henry Harper slipped back and joined them there in costume as the comic old-world farmer. For a brief time he watched the young actor through narrowed eyes. Then his always wrinkled face wrinkled a little more. The audience was applauding with honest enthusiasm.

"What do they know?" he remarked. "If they like you, you're a good actor." After which sentious observation he walked away.

Julian seemed not to hear. Sadie covertly watched him. He'd speak before long. She knew that. When he did, it was to say, out of a clear sky, "Do you know, Sadie, when you get absorbed in a piece of work like this play . . . when it hits you so hard, I mean .. . . carries you up out of yourself . . . you have just one thought?"

"What's that?" The emotional girl's eyes were filling again, but it was dark back here, and he needn't know.

"Oh, just to get it done and put safely away somewhere before any thing can happen to stop it. I mean like being hit by a taxi. You know, dying. Things like that."

They passed the Sunday at Pomona. Julian worked desperately all day in the men's tent. Sadie dragged him out for a late luncheon. When dinner time arrived he radiantly refused to budge. So Sadie, with Grace's help, brought coffee and doughnuts from a convenient lunch room. But he pushed these aside and, while the coffee cooled, wrote the final scene of his second act. Then he insisted on reading snatches of scenes to the two girls. He didn't read well, and his excited, chuckling attempts to explain the characters and the events that preceded these bits were so confusing that they could make nothing of it. He seemed to know something of the playwright's craft, how to get the characters into and out of scenes, and a few of the lines read rather well, but they caught nothing more. Before that midnight he was deep in act three. And by mid-afternoon of the following day, at Pasadena, the play was done.

Sadie was impressed by the extraordinary force in him, if by nothing else. There was bulk to the play. He had written it virtually at a sitting. She knew that the creative work of the theater was often done in that burning swift way, but hadn't before witnessed such a performance. He was empty now, wistful as a sensitive child, even moodily happy. She walked with him to the postoffice, where he mailed a flat parcel. She felt certain that it was the carbon of the play, but he didn't explain. Nor could she see the address. But she noted that he paid for a special delivery stamp and for registry. And he seemed to know exactly where he wanted it to go. Later, as the afternoon wore on, he grew restless. She sensed the difficulty. His spirit was driving on again. He wouldn't rest until Hester had read the thing; and Hester was off, Heaven knew where, with Joe.

He caught her, after dinner, and pressed the script into her hands. She hesitated, in sober inquiry; then, because she didn't know what else to do, accepted it. They hadn't had a word together since that intense little scene at the filling station. She couldn't remember what town it was—the towns simply flitted by with the days—but she wouldn't soon forget the scene. She had almost wished that day she could care for him. For a moment Joe had seemed hopelessly young and a little cheap. It was such a tangle! He had left the memory of burning eyes in a pathetic face. But he had told her point-blank that he loved her and that he wouldn't let go. He had left with her, too, a more puzzling, even poignant sense of force, of spirit . . . that other man, grown stronger, more compelling, was staring down at her now. She wished she might throw the extraordinarily thick manuscript down at his feet and run. But, of course, she could hardly do that. So she waited.

"I told you, Hester, I could do something for you. Well, I've done it. This play. I've just written my heart out. The play is yours."

"Oh, I could let you . . ."

But he interrupted. "First, I'm only going to ask you to read it. Then, if you like it, I'll find a lawyer and make it over to you. Just so that nobody can get it away from you. Nobody else can play it, you know."

What could she say? It was unnerving. He couldn't know, this mad dreamer, the difficulties in the way of having a play produced. Even a good play, a great play. It might take years.

"Just read it, Hester,' 'he said, gently. That's all I ask now. I think I've caught a little of your spirit. I may be fooled about it, but I think I have. Will you do that for me? Read it?"

She felt that if she stood there another moment she would burst into tears. And so, contriving to get out something about reading it as soon as she could get her mind clear, she walked away . . . walked quietly and with every outward sign of firm character, like the little New Englander she was.

During the performace that night Sadie found Julian wandering restlessly back of the audience. She carried the script in her hand. She saw his eyes looking down at it, trying to make it out, in the dim light, just what it was.

"Hester asked me to read it dear," she said, uncomfortably. He wouldn't like that. But she had to say it as a preliminary to the dominant new thought that was in her mind. "She doesn't feel well tonight. A sick headache. It's all she can do to get through her scenes. I've been helping her dress. And Julian dear . .. . I've been thinking .. . . won't you let me show it to Murry? He knows all about plays, you know. He's an awful fool, but he does know his theater. What you can do and what you can't. I'm sure he wouldn't mind reading it. And . . . don't you see, dear, he might be able to help you. You know, with practical suggestions."

He stood motionless, staring toward the brightly lighted stage. He was hurt. She knew that. She wanted to kiss him.

"Of course, dear . . . ."

"All right," he said shortly. Then, sensing his own ungentleness, he added, hurriedly, "I'm going back and help Jim. I'm afraid I haven't been quite fair with him."

So it came about that J. Murry Watt carried the script into his private tent behind the stage. The audience was gone. A not unpleasant jangle of voices carried out from the two other tents. The hands were setting up their beds on the stage and drawing the curtains. He switched on the light over the folding table and sank down on his cot.

A small suit case that lay open beside him was heaped with papers. He really ought to get at those. But he sighed and glanced at this new script. Why was it that every mortal being appeared to belive in his heart that he could write plays? This boy now, a charming fellow and generous to a fault, couldn't possibly have the maturity, the craft, to build real drama. The thing was incredible on its face. He had shown in a hundred ways that he knew nothing . . . nothing .. . about the theater.

But it was a situation that must be met squarely. The lad's friendship meant everything. He'd be waiting impatiently for judgment of course. Young authors, all authors, were impatient. Mr. Watt looked again at the case full of papers. Bewilderment had lately come to him. Julian's four thousand dollars had seemed, at first, an inexhaustible fortune. But so many old claims had had to be met. He had been amazed by the number of those and their magnitude. And the new equipment was costly beyond his sketchy computations. The new generator alone come to nearly nine hundred dollars, and must be paid for on delivery.

And there was the new touring car! Mr. Watt had lately permitted himself to think that still another car, a small one, was really necessary in order that one or another of the boys might run on ahead at times for advance work. He had, indeed, set his heart on that. It might soon be necessary to approach his dear friend again. He sighed. Life was ever difficult. Heavy of mood he undressed. A blanket, rolled tightly, served for an extra pillow. And propping his head thus, stretched out on his cot, he read the play.
